THE MORMONS.

SERVICES AT THE GRAND STREET TABERNACLE, YESTERDAY.

(From the Brooklyn Eagle, Sept. 2.)

An inconsiderable number of Latter-day Saints assembled yesterday afternoon at their place of meeting, on the second floor of Americus Hall, No. 176 Grand St., to engage in the customary weekly services. The usual programme was carried out, embracing a communion of bread and water, addresses by a few of the brethren, and singing. On this occasion the tenor of the remarks, in addition to a defense of the peculiar doctrine, assumed the character of lamentation relative to the recent death of the prophet and head of the Mormon Church, Brigham Young. Of six or eight men seated upon the platform on either side of Elder Bywater, who was the presiding genius of the meeting, were two sons of the late prophet.

The exercises opened at three o'clock, with the singing of a hymn and a prayer by Elder Henry Bywater, who for more than a score of years has had charge of matters pertaining to the welfare of Mormon interests in this city.

Brother Thomas Fuller briefly addressed the assemblage upon the noble character of and the high position attained by Brigham Young in the Church. The Prophet was a great man, one of the chosen of God, in fact, whose exalted spirit would always live in the hearts of the people who had so fondly revered him. That spirit actuated the Church, of which Brigham had been High Priest and ruler for so extended a period, and would so continue, he trusted, to the end of time.

Elder Alexander was the succeeding speaker, and he, like the brother preceding him, was almost equally brief. He said substantially that there have been and are many who have derided Brigham Young, who have spoken and written of him in unmistakeable terms. Those persons did not know what they were talking of, else they would have refrained from attempting to injure him until they knew of something tangible against him.

At the conclusion of the Elder's remarks the communion was partaken of by the Saints, after which Brother Spencer Clawson responded to a call for remarks: He said: We are called to mourn the loss of our President, as you all know, and if my feelings were consulted, I should prefer to sit back and listen to others. Justice to the memory of Brigham Young cannot be done in a few remarks by myself or any other man. His is a character that stands out in bold relief before the entire world, and in the future his example and teachings will be a guide to salvation to thousands of his fellow-men. It had been five weeks since he had seen and shaken the great prophet by the hand, when his health and spirits were remarkably good for a man of his advanced years. Then, as on all occasions, he kindly received me. In fact, all through my life he has been a father to me and a father to my father. It was by his superior force of will and character that Brigham Young was enabled to develop the great mountain waste, now so productive and populous, in Utah valley. He made it possible to build the Pacific Railroad twenty years earlier than it could otherwise have been done, and in many other ways has proven himself a benefactor to the country at large. I predict, said the speaker, that the wisdom of Brigham Young's choice of Salt Lake City and the adjacent territory as the abiding place for the Latter-day Saints will be manifested by the existence of those settlements so long as the world shall last. Of all the 200,000 Mormons in the land, all loved and respected the head of their church from the fact alone, if for nothing else, that he defended it from the attacks of enemies, averted dangers menacing it, and invariably thwarted the evil designs of the ungodly Gentiles and apostates. He sleeps well and in peace after his troubled life, and today there are not less than 40,000 people gathered round his remains to do his memory the honor unquestionably due. Referring to the present lack of a head to the church, the speaker said no changes are possible or dangers feared, for the reason that it is thoroughly organized. Being thoroughly loyal the people of the church will see to it that it is sustained through this or any subsequent ordeal however trying it may be. They have been grossly misrepresented through the machinations of bad men, especially some apostates than whom the church has no worse enemies, and the Mormons as a whole are made to appear the most ungodly people on the face of the earth. Brigham Young, of all men, has not deserved this. That he has been assailed and maligned may be set down as sheer malice on the part of an unenlightened community by whom the man's good qualities were never known nor could be apreciated.

Brother Alex. Garrick, and a newly arrived convert from England, named Farrell, in turn spoke briefly in praise of the dead prophet, whom both styled a noble successor to the founder of the faith and on the whole a genuine philanthropist to the human race.

The principal speech of the session was made by Elder Bywater, at the close of the services. He reiterated the statement that the death of Brigham Young could not interfere with the natural force of events of affecting the continuance of the Church. Persecution might continue as in the past, as it doubtless would. Christ and his Apostles had to endure that, yet it did not interfere with the advancement of the Church in numbers or usefulness. As it then was, so, said the Elder, will it be with the Latter-day Saints. Our Church is the relic of primative Christianity, pure and simple, and we have faith to believe it will survive—even prosper—under the adverse conditions at present surrounding it. We are asked what we will now do that the head of the church has departed. The answer to all such queries is that we have a plenty of good men to take the place of Brigham Young. Though dead the influence is not lost to the Church, and will measureably guide his counselors.

After a further reference to the life of Brigham and the tenets and practices of the Mormon Church, Elder Bywater, in his concluding remarks, alluded to the presence of several scribes. He said to them: All we ask is a fair chance and to be reported simply as we speak. If we are of God, as we claim to be, woe to all enemies and traducers. If we are not chosen people, we certainly stand in need of some consideration, as we are then surely doomed and will be brought to naught. Feeling convinced we are of God, I warn you who would misrepresent us not to persecute us. Assuming we are wrong, said the Elder, in a Christian spirit we should not be driven to the wall by persecution. On the contrary, a kindly spirit should be manifested with a view to bring us to see the error of our ways.

With a closing appeal in the form of a prayer—the customary formula apparently—that God might bless all his people, the singing of a hymn and a benediction the services came to an end.

The MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO. have the honor to announce that the Organs of their manufacture have been UNANIMOUSLY assigned "the FIRST RANK in the SEVERAL REQUISITES of instruments of the class" by the Judges at the CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION at Philadelphia, 1876, and are the ONLY INSTRUMENTS OF THIS GENERAL CLASS AWARDED THIS RANK. This is after the severest competition by the best makers, before one of the most competent juries ever assembled.

They have also received the MEDAL, but, as is well known, medals of equal merit have been awarded all articles deemed worthy of recognition; so thus it will be easy for many makers to advertise that they have received "first medals."

The differences in competing articles, and their comparative excellence, are recognized in the Reports of the Judges from which the following is an extract:—

"THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.'S exhibit of Reed Organs and Harmoniums shows instruments of the FIRST RANK IN THE SEVERAL REQUISITES OF INSTRUMENTS OF THE CLASS, viz: Smoothness and equal distribution of tone, scope of expression, resonance and singing quality, freedom and quickness in action of keys and bellows, with thoroughness of workmanship, combined with simplicity of action."

(Signed by all the Judges.)

The Mason and Hamlin Organs are thus declared to rank first, not in one or two respects only, but in the SEVERAL REQUISITES of such instruments, and they are the Only ones assigned this rank. This triumph was not unexpected, for the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest honors in competitions in America, there having been scarcely six exceptions in hundreds of competitions. They were awarded highest honors and
