BREVITIES.

At least one quarter of the people of the United States make habitual use of tobacco.

Growing how many beans there are in a bottle is the latest form of dissipation at religious fairs in the West.

Thieves abound in Chicago, and prosecute their calling with great boldness by daylight and in the open streets.

Victoria Woodhull says: "We have had more than enough of the 'Woman's Cause' in this country."

The grand confessions of health and happiness, the cardinal points upon which everything turns, are exercise for the body and occupation for the mind.

"Clickety-clack" are the humming passengers on the late street cars without any attempt at decency.

Rev. Dr. Guthrie says: "If you want to keep a dead man put him in whiskey; if you want to kill a living man put him in whiskey into him."

A Hartford three-year-old consoling his mother, watching by the death-bed of his little sister, by remarking, "Mamma, don't cry! If Nellie wants to die, let her die."

In consequence of the rapid consumption of timber in the Canadian empire, it is proposed to pass a law enacting that no other fuel than coal is to be used in heating the engines employed on railways.

In the news from the diamond fields the Cape Standard says that diamonds are scarce now, and that diamonds are diamonds, that is to say, a very small quantity of quinine is worth a big precious stone.

A lady entered a drug store and asked for a bottle of "Jenny's Experience." The clerk informed her that Jane hadn't bottled her experience yet, but they could furnish "Jenny's Experience."

An eastern journal remarks that a patriotic matron of Maine has done her utmost to remove the reproach of New England by giving birth to three bouncing boys, and the admirable residents in her vicinity have made up a purse to reward her heroic labor.

A thick-headed squire being worried by Sydney Smith in an argument, took his revenge by exclaiming: "If I had a son who was an idiot, by Jove I'd make him a parson."

"Very probable," replied Sydney, "but I see your father was of a different mind."

"Ella, my child," said a prudent old maid to a pretty niece, who was currying her prettiness, "if the Lord had intended your hair to be curled, he would have done it himself."

"So he did, sister, when I was a baby, but he thinks I am big enough now to do it myself."

During the war an Irish peasant, who was posted with a musket on duty, and had wandered a little out of his post, was asked by an officer with his pistol, "What are you here for?"

"Faith, your honor," said Pat, with his accustomed grin of good humor, "they told me I am here for a century."

The report of the society for promoting Christianity among the Jews displays the observing fact that each individual conversion (and there are only six of them for the past year), has cost the benevolent public sixteen thousand dollars, so, as in everything else, the Jews requit their religion for as much as they can possibly get.

The thirteen new Woolwich infants, guns of 35 tons, now placed, are the most powerful pieces of ordnance in existence in England or any other country. The guns are specially intended for the navy, and are to be first used in the three large ironclads now in course of completion. Two of these ships, the Thunderer and the Devastation, are of 4,400 tons burden, and the other, the Formidable, is of 5,000 tons. Each of these vessels will be provided with four of the 35 ton guns, which they will carry in two turrets, two guns being placed in each turret side by side.

A writer in the London Graphic says:

"The quiet little village of Martham, Norfolk, was the scene a few days since of a royal and romantic marriage. Mabel, the queen of the glories, condescended to give her hand in holy wedlock to a young farmer thereabouts, of substantial means and good connections."

This is the first instance I have read of, in which a gipsy chief, whether male or female, consented or dared to marry a Sassenach. However, the friends of the bride, as well as those of the bridegroom, were present, so I suppose there was no loss of caste in the matter. I may add, for the information of the ladies, that, according to the reporter who was present, Queen Mabel, who is twenty-three years of age, was dressed in rich mauve silk, with a magnificent veil, and in her simple but costly jewelry looked dignified and queenly. Her sister officiated as bridesmaid."

What they chiefly want is to place the Mormon country. It is not polygamy that offends them, but the strictness of that hierarchical despotism against dram selling and prostitution. One of Judge McKean's reforms was to decide illegal a very stringent Mormon prohibition liquor law, and to give judgment against the officer who executed it in the sum claimed for the liquor destroyed. Cincinnati Gazette.
