CHAPTER I.

"I was taken sick a year ago
With bilious fever."

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I
Could not move!
I shrunk
From 228 lbs. to 120!
I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles I am not only as sound as a sovereign but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life."

EVENING NEWS.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION, THE TRUE EDUCATION.

At a special meeting of the District of Columbia Social Science Association, in the parlors of the Spencerian Business College, the committee on industrial education presented a report through its chairman, Col. Edw. Daniels—Dr. George H. Mitchell in the chair, Mrs. Helen Rand Tyndall secretary. The following were the chief points of the report:

Our present system of school training depends too much on books and formal recitations. It exalts the memory at the expense of the other faculties. It crams the mind with phrases and formulas which confuse and enfeeble it. It is defective in scope and mistaken in aim. The objective is rather the examination day than the whole after life of the child. The youth in these schools are educated as if they were all to be lawyers, preachers, college professors or clerks, to have plenty of money, and to be waited upon like the fine ladies and gentlemen they read of in the story books. Yet it is certain that nine out of ten of these children must live by working with their hands or sink into pauperism, prostitution or crime. To send children out in the world with only the literary and impractical instruction which our schools afford is cruel, if not criminal. A general who should spend the time of his soldiers teaching only what would make a brilliant parade, and bring them into action without knowing how to load and fire their guns, or cook their rations, would be justly condemned. Our present education is scarcely less absurd.

The remedy lies in enlarging the scope of school training and making it intensely practical. The child needs to know the material world, its laws and forces, and how to exert his own powers so as to secure safety, progress and a happy life. This industrial education will do.

It is needed by every child to make him independent and self-sustaining. The child has a sacred claim upon society for the training that shall fit him for a living. If left to chance, there will be thousands of willing youth who have no opportunity.

The opposition to apprentices is well known in all trades. It now has little chance especially in this city, unless he can get into government employ. The attempts to pick up trades are seen in the thousands of bunglars who beset every branch of industry. The loss of money, comfort and life from accidents so caused is incalculable.

SPECIAL SCHOOLS OF APPLIED SCIENCE

TO GIVE INSTRUCTION IN THE USEFUL ARTS WILL ALONE SUPPLY THE WANT.

In these, work instruction is methodized and made agreeable to children, it becomes a recreation. The plays of children are mainly imitation work. Taking advantage of this instinct, give the child good tools, showing him how to use them and how to save his forces and get the best result in the shortest time. He will take to work as naturally as the duck does to water. It will be to him not only the source of valuable manual skill, but the best mental discipline. The intelligence put into the work again reacts upon the worker's brain and builds up its best powers into healthful symmetry.

The obligation to do something useful is also early inculcated. Without this sense the child grows up

A SHIRK IN THE FAMILY AND A NUISANCE IN SOCIETY.

Industrial Education is therefore the essential condition of intellectual and moral growth. As all experience proves, it is the best foundation of character and of success in professional life. It is not for the poor and neglected class, nor for those only who live by honest labor, it is the proper training for every child.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

To complete our system of school instruction many things are needed. Among them, your committee recommend—1st, that a central school be established in this city, especially devoted to instruction in the useful arts. This school should be supplied with the most complete machinery for industrial education, and gardens should be attached for horticultural instruction. It should be opened to pupils as soon as they have attained a good knowledge of reading, writing and arithmetic, and its graduates should be able to practice profitably the trades they learn there, when they finish their course. In 1876 the Russian exhibits at the Centennial contained models of the machinery and products of schools for work-instruction. They attracted much attention. Massachussetts copied the plan. These schools were started in 1868 in Russia. They are largely imitated in Europe, and have been wonderfully successful.

2d. Your committee would recommend as the foundation of industrial education the adoption of the Kindergarten methods in the primary schools.

3d. Courses of lectures upon the physical sciences, fully illustrated, given to the schools as a part of their regular class instruction would do much to promote useful education. If to this were added excursions for making collections in botany, geology, etc. both pupils and teachers would find a delightful recreation and a source of healthful activity for the body as well as the mind.

4th. The various schools for art, sewing and cookery, should be most liberally encouraged. All are doing good work in the right direction.

5th. The Industrial Home School at Georgetown is doing a noble work. It needs additional money to give it wider scope and more varied industries. Its management should have ample power to take and hold all neglected children of both sexes. No wiser appropriation can be made than that which is needed to convert the hundreds of idle children in our streets from a burden and a menace, into useful men and women who will be a support and strength to the nation.

EDUCATION BY WORK.

The crying need is for a systematic training of all children in useful work. The body requires this for the proper unfolding of its powers. In childhood only can every nerve, sinew, and muscle be readily trained to skilful dexterity, which it is a pleasure to exercise.

The mind needs it for the healthful development of its faculties, for right thinking and maintaining its vigor amidst the strain of actual life. The moral needs it—now quirked and corrupted in so many children, by allowing their powers to be wasted in idleness, or in mockery of study.

For the happiness of childhood it is necessary to employ its powers usefully. To refuse the opportunity is to condemn it to feebleness and incapacity; to shut it out from the purest delights and best opportunities, and injure for it a blasted life.

Because a man has money, shall he refuse his children the best thing that life holds for them, under the insane delusion that it is not genteel to work?

The safety of society demands this education. Labor adorned by intelligence and enriched by science will not be despised; it will be sought, welcomed and honored. The spirit of caste is the child of ignorance. The gilded brutality of ignorant wealth grows on the same soil with the squalor of imbruted poverty. Each reproduces the other.

An intelligently trained body of workers will comprehend the great problems of production and consumption. They will recognise and establish the fraternity of Labor and Capital, and society will come. Invention will be vastly stimulated, and the new found powers of Science will be welcomed as allies, working for the common good, shortening the hours of toil, and yielding abundance.

Educated Labor consumes tenfold, and will make a market for its own products which no glut nor stagnation will ever effect.

For this work the means of instruction must be changed. The workshop with appliances, machinery, surrounded by gardens, fields and woods, must supplement the study and recitation room.

The school must represent life. Will not those who have means to endow schools, think of these things?

THE LIVER AND ITS FUNCTIONS.

It has become a well established fact that the larger portion of diseases to which the human family is subject arise in the first place from some derangement of the Liver. This organ, if not only the largest, but at the same time one of the most important in the system. From the heart, passes through this organ, and in its passage the impurities, as also the sometimes which are necessary for digestion as well, are separated, and assimilated from the blood to supply the different tissues of the body. If the Liver is liable to get out of order, it is impossible to properly fulfil its office of removing all objectionable matter from the blood, but allows it to pass through, carrying with it the poisons of which it should have been purged. With impure blood the wholesystem becomes affected, and no organ can properly perform its functions unless it is supplied with PURE BLOOD to maintain its strength. Sometimes the Liver becomes all important, and when [illegible] feeling is manifested, constantly tired, worn out, accompanied by Piles, Headache, Sick Stomach, Sallow Complexion, Dyspepsia, Constipation, and many other symptoms, a remedy is required to act directly upon the Liver, and at the same time purify the blood. For all the complaints and diseases which arise from a disordered condition of the Liver, there is no remedy so effectual as

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS.

The result of years of study, experiment and practical knowledge of the properties of Roots, Herbs and Barks, by DR. H. H. SHERMAN, the originator of PRICKLY ASH BITTERS, and the wonderful success attending its use, has induced many to offer worthless imitations and preparations of Prickly Ash, in order to benefit by their reputation. Prickly Ash Bitters acts directly upon the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels, in a mild yet effectual manner, and is a sure and safe cure for all diseases of the same. It is the best remedy known for purifying the blood, and will be found to be an especial favorite with females, and is highly recommended by them for all complaints peculiar to their sex.

PRICKLY ASH BITTERS is a medicine of rare merit, and we are therefore cautioned against worthless imitations. It is not a drink for the intemperate, but a medicine to cure the sick. It is not a BLOOD PURIFIER merely, but will cure when all others fail. If he has none on hand, send him a bottle at once for one.
