Wednesday, when other sections of the bill will be considered. The Election Law.

The passage by the House yester-day of the so-called Garfield amendment to the Federal election laws continues to be the topic of conver-sation in political circles to-day, and there are indications that it will give rise to an exciting contest in the Senate. The democrats are generally very jubilant over the re-sult in the House. A COMPLETE ASSORTMENT

Congressman Springer says of it: any more riders now. The republicans are completely demoralized, and don't know what to do. It is a sad blow to the Grant boom, too, be-

Congressman Frank Hurd, of Ohio, representing the out-and-out Bourbons on this question, takes a very different view of it. He predicts that the democrats of the House will regret their action, because, in the first place, it is a complete abandonment of the positions take at the extra session; that the election laws are unconstitutional and that the THE BEST IN THE WORLD-MANU-factured in Detroit, Mich.
