

TARDY JUSTICE.

JUSTICE, which seemed to be slumbering for nearly a quarter of a century, has at length redeemed the fame of General, or as he will henceforth be called officially, Colonel Fitz-John Porter.

He has never ceased to dispute the rightfulness of the sentence. But all these years he has suffered under its effects. They have been both pecuniary and moral.

It is not creditable to the country that the act of justice to Porter has not been made complete. The bill recognizes the injustice done to him and restores him to the position from which he was unjustly cast out.

His case is an illustration of the mistakes into which a nation may fall, through misrepresentation and that impatience which is often exhibited towards the accused and their attempts at explanation.

One of the arguments in favor of another and a better world is the injustice that often prevails in this. Justice is an eternal principle, and must in due season claim its own.

THE CONSPIRATORS AT WORK.

It is understood that the local agitators and conspirators are so dubious about the passage of the Tucker-Edmunds bill that they feel quite desperate, and they have induced certain officials to telegraph to the manager of the bill and others at Washington, urging extraordinary efforts to forward it without delay.

The great hope of the conspirators against the peace of Utah is a nasty and sudden pressure of the bill upon the action of the House, at a time when, anxious to adjourn and get away from the heat and back to personal and party interests in their own districts, members will be ready to assent to anything to dispose of a disagreeable matter.

We do not believe the plot will succeed. Even the passage of the measure in the House would not insure the consent of the Senate to the extraordinary and indefensible provisions it contains.

In any event, the people who are to be most affected by the result will not be in any agitation. They trust in a Power which is above all cabals and plots and laws and authorities, and who will take care of them and their interests while they honor and obey Him.

THE FIGHT FOR IRISH HOME RULE.

THE contest in England which is being fought on the Home Rule question is likely to be very close. On a fair test, we have no doubt that Gladstone would be sustained by a very large majority of the voters in Great Britain and Ireland.

But the chief source of danger to the Gladstone party is the defection of the Liberal dissidents. Chamberlain and Hartington will make quite a diversion, for they each have many admirers, and the force exerted by John Bright is particularly unfortunate for the Home Rule movement.

The apparent understanding between the Tories and the recalcitrant Liberals is ominous. How much of an alliance actually exists is not known, but the understanding evidently arrived at between them that certain seats on either side shall not be contested, argues that the coalition means mischief.

The sincerity of John Bright will not be questioned, we think, by those who are familiar with his political course. But the action of Chamberlain and Hartington and their followers must be regarded with suspicion.

It looks as though the expressed desire of justice for Ireland on the part of the bolters was insincere, and that the policy of force and oppression finds advocates outside of the Conservative ranks and inside the camp of the pretended friends of suffering Erin.

There will be rejoicing throughout the United States if Home Rule, as championed by the grand old man, achieves a victory in the present political struggle in Great Britain.

SOME SENSE IN CANNIBALS.

THERE is one recommendation to the smokers and chewers of tobacco. If they should be cast upon the shores where cannibals most do congregate, they would not be in danger of being devoured by the consumers of human flesh.

This may be a point in favor of smoking and chewing for missionaries to the cannibals who have a horror of being eaten, but it does not score a mark on the side of the tobacco advocates. For it is evident, if this testimony is true, that the use of the weed strongly affects the tissues of the body, and that its narcotic properties do not pass off in stifling smoke or flow away in sickening saliva.

AN IMITATION BOGUS "UPRISING."

A BOGUS rebellion scare has been manufactured in Dakota, after the fashion of the Murray-McCook-Tribune-Ireland fiasco in Utah. The failure to obtain Statehood on the division plan by which two States were to be fashioned out of the Territory, has undoubtedly enraged its promoters. But the story was started that a civil war was imminent in Dakota, and rumors of revolution reached Washington and were circulated throughout the country.

The authors of such sensational stories ought to be punished for their falsehood, at criminal law, and should be despised by all honorable people in every community.

OBITUARY.

WASHBURN.—Patriarch Abraham Washburn departed this life June 17th, 1886, at the ripe age of 81 years and 3 months.

Deceased was the son of Daniel Washburn and Ann Wright Washburn; was born at Nine Partners, Dutchess County, New York, March 17th, 1805; baptized by Parley P. Pratt at the town of Sing Sing, New York State, February, 1837; gathered to Nauvoo and passed through many of the trying scenes with the Saints at the time of the death of the Prophet Joseph; arrived in Salt Lake City with the early settlers; he was called to locate in Sanpete Valley, and chose, with others, his residence at Mantie, where he settled in October, 1849, and endured many hardships and privations with the founders of that now prosperous city; he was the first Sunday School superintendent of that place. Was ordained a High Priest under the hands of James Warcham, December 27th, 1870. Moved from Mantie to Monroe, Sevier County, in the spring of 1872, where he resided until his demise. He was ordained to the office of Patriarch August 24th, 1864, in which capacity he was traveling in the county when he was attacked with his last sickness.

Brother Washburn was the husband of two wives and father of seventeen children, eleven of whom are still alive; he was grandfather and great-grandfather to over one hundred children.

He was strict in his integrity to the Gospel and ever ready with wise counsel to the people. Thirty-three vehicles and hundreds of people followed his remains to the grave.—[Con.] Home Sentinel please copy.

The McCormick H. M. Co's New Steel Binders, introduced here in 1885, are conceded to be far ahead of all competitors, combining as they do, beauty of design, superiority of workmanship, excellence of finish, durability and ease of management.

The combined Reapers and Mowers, Droppers and Single Mowers are unequalled. The Case "Agitator" is acknowledged to be without a competitor, as the sales of the past—more than trebling those of all other threshers—will prove.

The Woodbury Power is the most durable and lightest running horse-power known. The South Bend Chilled Plow, although not introduced into this market until long after other styles of chilled plows, is fast crowding them out and assuming the position of the leading chilled plow.

The Weir Sulkeys, Hand Plows and Harrows are known throughout the length and breadth of Utah as first-class goods in every particular.

The Boss Sickle Grinder is a tool every farmer who has a mower needs and cannot afford to be without.

We shall carry a full and complete stock of repairs for above goods, not only for those of this year's manufacture, but for those sold in previous years, so that any farmer having any machine or plow of the line mentioned can get any repairs without needless trouble or expense.

All parties ordering extras for machines bought in previous years, are specially requested, when ordering to give the number or letter on the article wanted.

WE ALSO KEEP A FULL LINE OF Tents, Whips, Wagonettes, Wagon Covers, Lamps, Buckboards, Rakes, Rubber, Round Up Wagons, Machine Extras, Cloth, Harrows, Wagon Extras, Duck, Robes, Washers, Coach Candles, Farm and Carriage Harness.
