DESERET EVENING NEWS: SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1906.

POEMS EVERYBODY SHOULD KNOW.

THE SOWER AND HIS SEED.

He planted an oak in his father's park And a thought in the minds of men. And he bade farewell to his native shore. Which he will never see again. Oh, merrily stream the tourist throng To the glow of the southern sky: A vision of pleasure beekons them on. But he went there to die.

The oak will grow, and its boughs will spread, And many rejoice in its shade. But none will visit the distant grave Where a stranger youth is laid. And the thought will live when the oak has died And quicken the minds of men, But the name of the thinker has vanished away And will never be heard again. -W. E. H. Lecky.

PENSEROSO.

Soulless is humanity to me Tonight. My keenest longing is to be Alone, alone with Gods gray earth that seems Pulse of my pulse and consort of my dreams.

Tonight my soul desires no fellowship, Or fellow-being; crave I but to slip Thro' space on space, 'till flesh no more can bind. And I may quit for aye my fellow-kind.

Let me but feel athwart my cheek the lash Of whipping wind, but hear the torrent dash Adown the mountain steep, twere more my choice Than touch of human hand, than human voice.

Let me, but wander on the shore night-stilled. Drinking its darkness till my soul is filled: The breathing of the salt sea on my hair. My outstretched hands but grasping empty air.

But let me feel the pulse of Nature's soul Athrob on mine, let seas and thunder roll O'er night and me: sands whirl; winds, water beat: For God's gray earth has no cheap counterfeit. -Pauline Johnson in "The White Wampum."

NOTES.

The eighth volume of the limited we paper edition of "The Works of aurice Hewlett" contains "The Fool one of the latest and most characteristic of that writer's romances.

LEAVES FROM OLD ALBUMS

BISHOP R. T. BURTON AND WIFE 54 YEARS AGO.

This interesting picture, reproduced from an old daguerrotype taken by Marcena Cannon in December, 1852, shows Bishop R. T. Burton and his wife as they looked in those interesting days. The two children are-first, in her father's arms, Mrs. Theresa Burton Hills, wife of President Hills of the Deseret National bank. Second, in hismother's arms, W. S. Burton, the well known builder, who had charge of the construction of the Deseret News building.

Bishop Burton is today in his eighty-fifth year, and his wife is in her eightleth year.

bow, laid a document on Mrs. Craw-ford's lap. Her horror when he an-nounced that he was the owner of the castle and its domains was finally ap-

WHAT THE BEST MAGAZINES CONTAIN.

The Youth's Companion comes this t of the fruit tree under which she stands. The contents are as usual enter week with a charming cover design. suggestive of the month of flowers, a taining for both old and youthful while the children's department furfemale figure with light draperies, blown by the May airs while about nishes its special choice bits for little her head cluster the dainty blossoms tots.—Perry Mason, Boston.

Our London Literary Letter.

ing her to open a typewriting bureau

Special Correspondence.

in London, and it was with pleasure that I learned from Bret Harte's daughter that up to the present time this venture has pleasantly exceeded has anticlasticas ONDON, April 25 .-- Will the Winston Churchill who wrote "The Crisis" and "The Crossing" agree, her anticipations. after a while, to print a tiny Judging from the case of Alphonse Karr, one can never be sure at the out, set, for what reason a statue or other American flag after his name to show that he is not the English Winston? And will the accomplished son of Lord monument will ultimately be erected to Randolph Churchill likewise consent to one's memory. Karr, for instance, if he embellish the title-pages of his books could have foreseen that a bust in his honor would be unveiled on the Riviera-as one was unveiled last with a small Union Jack lest any should take them for the work of his Ameri-Rivera—as one was unvelted list week—would probably have deemed it a fitting recognition of his years of labor as an author, but, as a matter of fact, it is nothing of the sort. It was put up because Karr was the real founcan namesake?

The thing is quite possible should a plan be adopted which the British So-clety of Authors is said to be "seriously considering" at the present time. It is no more or less than that authors generally should adopt definite "tot-ems" or trademarks in order to dis-France! tinguish them from other writers who make up each picture of horroalmost named, and it must be admitted that as things are now there is chance for a good deal of confusion in the mind of the reading public. Perhaps the case of the two Winston hurchills is the most striking instance n point, but one also recalls immediately that no less than three brothers by the name of Benson are writing simultaneously in this country, that as many Haggards, similarly related, are producing fiction, and that romantic works of a moral character are being turned out by two Hockings-both of turned out by two Hockings-bold of them clergymen, too-the Rev. Silas and the Rev. Joseph. To name these, how-ever, is only to make a beginning, and a well known literary authority has just drawn up a much more formid-able list of writers who not only have the same surpares but in some cases the same surnames, but in some cases the same simames, but in some cases the same Christian names. They in-clude, three Zangwills, five William-sons, six Fowlers, seven Murrays, eight Smiths, and no less than nine Watsons -to name only a few out of a veritable literary army. "Why should each of these writers not adopt some distinctive insignla, or tot-em?" asks the patient compiler of the afore-mentioned list, and he then goes on to advocate "humor and common ense" in the matter of selection. "For instance," he says, in dead seriousness, "if Cutcliffe Hyne printed a kettle af-ter his name to distinguish himself from Conrad Hyne there would be nothing inappropriate, for his Captain Kettle stories have made that useful article quite a famous and bloodstirring emblem emblem." In case the thing come into effect Mr. E. F. Eenson might distinguish himself from the other Bensons by printing a picture of a Dodo on the title pages of his novel—that is if any betwee new exists of that noteriously title pages of his novel—that is it any pleture now exists of that notoriously extinct biped. But think of the pos-sibilities that this scheme has in the matter of future advertisements. Im-agine being told to "ask for Laura Jean Libbey's new romance and insist exceeding the trade-mark (view of Libon seeing the trade-mark (view of Lib-bey Prison) stamped on the cover." But after all, will it be any easier for But after all, will it be any caster for a reader, say, who has an affection for, and "insists on getting" the books of the Mr. Haggard to remember that his "totem" is a female figure. ("She,") than to recall the simple fact that his first hame is Rider, and not Andrew or Longle as the other literary Haggards Lionel as the other literary Haggards are respectively named?

his competence and retired. Then h decided that the spade was mightien than the pen and set himself to become "the first gardener in France." Before "the first gardener in France." Before his time the flowers for Riviera dinner parties had to be imported from Genoa He changed all that, with the result He changed all that, with the result that the Riviera now produces flowers for all Europe and so Karr has his statue-but not as a writer! He de-served some kind of a monument, however, if only for his epigrams, where famous, especially that which which uttered when first it was proposed t abolish capital punishment in France "Tis a good plan," he said, "bu let Messieurs the assassing commence! HAYDEN CHURCH. France "bu

NEW LIBRARY BOOKS.

The following 40 volumes will be added to the public library Monday morning, May 7, 1966;

REFERENCE. Bohn-Handbook of proverbs. Hepburn-Japanese-English diction-

Polk & Co .- Salt Lake City Directory, 1906. Tomita—Handbook of the Japanese language. Wulker-Rhyming dictionary. Tauchnitz-English-Spanish

dic

MISCELLANEOUS.

Adams-Works, vol 2, Crothers-Endless life, d Dana--To Cuba and back. Dickens-Speeches, Dickens & Collins-Letters, Dunning-Today on the Nile, Hall--Christian belief interpreted by Pristian experience. Hollis—The Masai, Kirkebride—Modern trust company. Moore-Old pewter, Napier, ed.-Johnsoniana Philippine Ethnological Survey-Negritoes. Philippine Ethnological Survey-Moros. Thwaltes-Early Western travel Spargo-Bitter cry of the children.

FICTION.

Brainard-Nancy's country Christ-Cutting-More stories of married

Kielland-Professor Lovdahl. McCutcheon-Cowardice Court. Newman-Callista. Newman-Loss and gain. Pomberton-My Nyord for Lafay

Savage-Lady in waiting

Seawall-Chateau of Montplasir. Sinclair-The Jungle.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

Bullfinch-Legends of Charlemagne Eggleston-Camp Venture, Foa-Boy life of Napoleon Hammond-Pinkey Perkins Hughes—Dozen from Lakerim. Hughes—Lakerim athletic club. Meadowcroft—A. B. C. of electricity. Stratemeyer—Under the Mikado's

Electricity on the Farm.

A progressive farmer of Westfield, Ind., is making his own of Westfield. Ind., is making his own electricity. He gathers it out of the air, but in no more mysterious way than by means of more investerious way than by means of a windmill. Others have harnessed the windmill to a dynamo, but the result has never been satisfactory on account of the variability of the wind power. Mr. Wilson of Westfield allows his windmill to perform primarily its cus-towary function of number water. The tomary function of pumping water. The water flows into a dydraulic regulator-a chamber fitted with automatic valves; a chamber litted with automatic valves; through these it passes under uniform pressure into a water motor, to which a dynamo is attached. Blow high, blow low, the dynamo works at even speed brilliantly lighting Mr. Wilson's house and barn and doing the chores, all for an original investment of $200. With of the flower-raising industry in an, original investment of $200. With a telephone in his house, through which he can talk over wire fences with the whole county, receiving his letters more punctually by the rural delivery service

Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling Increases in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year-How Women May Avoid Them.

The following letters cannot fail to large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow white beds women Miss Ruby Mushrush, of

Miss Ruby Mushrush, of East

on those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations. Why should this be the case? Sim-ply because they have neglected them-selves. Female troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feei-ing, pain at left or right of the abdomen. Miss Ruby Mushrush, of East Chicago, Ind., writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:--"I have been a great sufferer with irregular "I have been a great sufferer with irregular or the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those of warning in that bearing-down feei-ing, pain at left or right of the abdomen. Mrs. Alice Berryhill of 313 Boyce patients in the hospital beas had pierty of warning in that bearing-down feel-ing, pain at left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, dizziness, flatulency, dis-placements of the organs or irregular-ities. All of these symptoms are indi-cations of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a danger-ous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hos-pital and submit to an operation-but remember that Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound has saved thousands of women from surgical operations. When women are troubled with ir-regular, suppressed or painful periods, of the organs, that bearing-down feel-ing, inflammation, backache, bloating to determine the submit to an operation-of the organs, that bearing-down feel-ing, inflammation, backache, bloating to determine the submit to an operation-ting inflammation, backache, bloating to determine the operation of the troubles and who to-day are as well and submation. Backache, bloating the operation of the organs, that bearing-down feel-ing, inflammation, backache, bloating to determine the operation of the organs, that bearing-down feel-ing. inflammation, backache, bloating to determine the operation of the organs, that bearing-down feel-ing. inflammation, backache, bloating the total submit to an operation-ting the total submit to the submit to the total submit to the total submit to the submit to the organs, that bearing-down feel-ing. inflammation, backache, bloating to the total submit to the submit to the submit to total submit to the total submit to the submit to the total submit to the submit to the submit to total submit to the submit to to the submit to the submit to the submit to the sub

ing. inflammation, backache, bloating

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-(or flatulency), general debility, indi-gestion, and nervous prostration, or are Refuse to buy any other medicine, for beset with such symptoms as dizziness, you need the best.

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-men to write her for advice. Her advice alone" feelings, they should remember and medicine have restored thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

GREEN, FANCY, IMPORTED & STAPLE GROCERIES

FISH, CURED MEATS, POULTRY, ETC.

Telephone Nos. 964-965-968

lassitude, excitability, irritability, ner-

there is one tried and true remedy.

25

The ninth volume of this edition will contain "Pan and the Young Shepherd," and will appear early next month. The Macmillan company expect to publish the tenth and last volume on or before the first of June.

Rudyard Kipling has written a new series of tales entitled "Robin Goodfellow-His Friends." The first of "The Centurion of the Thirtleth." In it Parnesius, this Roman centurion and friend of the Emperor Maximus, becomes commander of the great Roman wall running across England and defends it under dramatic circumstances. This first story of the series appears in Mc-Clure's Magazine for May.

Jeremiah Curtin, the translator of Henry Sienkiewicz's works, is at pres-ent enguged in writing "The Mongols. a History." Mr. Curtin spent three months among the Bureats, the only tribe of Mongols that has retained the horse sacrifice and preserved the cre-ation myths of their race. Mr. Curtin is the author of "Creation Myths of Frimitive America," "Myths and Folk-lore of Ireland," "Myths and Folk Tales of the Russians," "Western Slavs and Jeremiah Curtin, the translator of of the Russians," "Western Slavs and Magyars," and other similar volumes. Folish is said to be but one of 70 foreign languages with which he is fa-

. . . Since Lafcadio Hearn died, Mr. John Luther Long is almost the only living writer who can give to fiction the color and atmosphere of Lorent. The scene where who can give to fiction the color and atmosphere of Japan. The scene of his new novel. "The Way of the Gods," is laid in the beautiful land of "Madame Butterfly," and in the heart of the Lady Hoshi, "Dream-of-a-Star." This novel is said to be one of the most entrailing polynamic and romantic eathrailing, poignant and romantic tales that have come from the pan of the author of "The Darling of the Code"

. . . Upton Sinclair's rampant novel of Chicago stockyard life has reached England, and it is now the theme of lengthy reviews in the London papers. One reviewer thus writes of it in the Daffy News, and he appears to like it

"The Jungle' is not a novel in the o-dinary sense of the term; it is clearly intended as an accurate account of the working classes in Chicago, the fictitlous characters being the plvots on which this inner history is made to turn. The book would be lightened if there were more dialogue, if there were turn. less descirption and more action. But the fore and character and the sense of human terror which the author puts into his narrative compel the reader's attention and hold him with comulative effect from beginning to end." Egerton Castle, whose latest novel, "If Youth But Knew," is just from the press, was born in London in 1858. He was educated at the universities of was educated at the universities of Paris and Glasgow and at Trinity col-lege, Cambridge, went through Sand-hurst, rose to be captain of the Boyan Engineer Militia, and later studied submarine mining. For 10 years he was on the staff of the Saturday Review, and since then he has been editor of the Liverpool Mercury. His lifelong devotion to swordsmanship was apparent in his first book, "Schools and Masters of Fence," and it savors the atmosphere of all his novels, most of which have their scenes laid in Europe in the day, their scenes laid in Europe in the day, before the disappearance of the code duello. A French translation of Stev-enson's "Prince Otto" first called atten-tion to Mr. Castle, and he took his place among modern novelists with the ap-pearance in 1898 of "The Pride of Jenni-co." "Young April" and "The Bath Comedy" followed soon after. Some of his best books have been written, as is "If Youth But Knew." in collaboration

"If Youth But Knew." in collaboration with his wife, Agnes Castle. His repre-ations, aside from fencing, include ritle and pistol shooting, cycling and ram-bling in country scenery and old towns,

Years before the Villa Crawford, at Sorrento, became a tourists' shrine, the proprietor used to write his novels in an octagonal room at the top of the building, that peers across the Bay of Naples toward Vesuvius. Of late years, however, Mr. Crawford has removed his workshop to a picturesque ruin 80 or 90 miles south of Sorrento, on the Cala-brian coast. The ruin is that of one of the watch-towers erected centuries ago by Charles V against Saracehic inva-sion. It rears its head upon a bold headland, is two stories in height, and has walls 80 feet thick. The manner in which Mr. Crawford acquired this cas-which Mr. Crawford acquired this cas-telleto forms an interesting, story. Every summer, on board his yacht, the Alda, Mr. Crawford cruises south along the Italian and Sicilian shore. This yacht, by the way, was once the New York pilot boat, Ezra Nye, which the author purchased in America, sailed across the Atlantic, reflited and rechtigtened with the neure Alda. Durrechristened with the name Alda. Dur-ing his voyages in the Alda, he accumulated much material which finds ex-pression in "Southern Italy and Sicily and the Rulers of the South." A favorite stopping place of his was a beauthful little landlocked bay on the Calabrian coast overlooked by an ancient

It was a pleasant place and quite off the track of inquisitive tourists, for the nearest habitation was 12 mlies dis-tant. From time to time, Mr. Crawford and his family used the little bay and the shadow of the tower for a plenicing ground. The tower fitself was closed by heavy ancient locks. The idea came to Mr. Crawford that he would like to possess this tower; so one day, when the Alda was anchored close to the foot of the tower, he quietly left his foot of the tower, he quietly left his family, and, taking an old servant with him, started for the nearest villags, which contained the government official who had charge of the national prop-erty in that part of the peninsula. All day he was gone, and the shades of evening had begun to lower before they on the yacht saw him returning. He came on board, and, with his courtliest

Evidently Bret Harte's daughter in-herited a portion at any rate of her father's literary genius, for quite a promising little tale from her pen ap-pears in the London "Tatler," this week, and I hear that another rather longer story by Ethel Bret Harte, as she calls herself, has been accepted by the London Magazine and is also to ap-pear in the United States. These are almost Miss Bret Harte's first ventures in the way of story-writing, although she has had some little experience on the stage. It may be remembered that the fund which was raised for her ben-elit some time ago was used in assist. Evidently Bret Harte's daughter in-when Mostetter's Stomach Bitters is taken promptly at the first symptom No wonder so many people use it in preference to anything else. Then there is a 53 years' record of cures back of it, too, which ought to appeal to every man or woman. One battle of HOSTETTER'S will convince you that it is the be Poor Appetite, Flatalency, Headache, Bloating, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Cos-tiveness or Female Uis. Try it today. Karv just missed being a great novel-ist, and just missed being a great jour-nalist, though he did some fine stashing work for "Les Guepes," for which he which he than he would in town, the trolley wrote an attack on Sainte-Beave, which is perhaps the bitterest thing of its kind in any language. His real fame, however, was achieved after he had earned | one .-- Philadelphia Ledger.

STOMACH ILLS ARE SOON FORCOTTEN.

GREAT ARTIST DISCOVERED IN JESUIT BROTHER

One of the most remarkable artistic "finds" of recent times is that of Brother Schroen, a member of the Jesuft order, who was "discovered" a fortnight ago at St. John's college, New York, where he has been for some time at work on mural decorations.

A born artist, but without ever having had an hour's instruction, Brother Schroen has for 12 years been a member of the Jesuit order, and has lived in seclusion without suitable recognition of his talents until now.

Following his "discovery" by a number of visiting Jesuits of artistic attainments Brother Schroen has been relieved of his routine duties and has been assigned to decorating and painting the Catholic churches and institutions throughout the country.

Some of his best work is to be found in Catholic churches in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. One of his most notable decorations reproduced herewith is a celling panel at St. Johns college, entitled "The Baptism of Christ." Jesus is shown as standing in the waters of a brook which seems to have its source in a stream descending from the heavens. John the Baptist stands at the left of the Christ with hand raised to receive the water from on high. The crystalline purity of the descending water is most artistically shown in the blendings of tints from the brush of this remarkable artist. The white robes of the angels add to the influence of the painting.

$1.50

American Dental Rooms No. 159 So. Main Over Western Union Tel. Office

CATARRH, FOUL BREATH

If You Continually K'hawk and Spit and There is a Constant Dripping From the Nose Into the Throat, If You Have Foul, Sickening Breath, That is Catarrh.

CURED THROUGH THE BLOOD BY B. B. B.

CURECTNERCOUGHTEE BLOOD BY B. B. B. S. Strand and the system of the polson germs that the blood Blaim (B.B.B.). It is a quick of the system of the polson germs that the polson germs that the polson germs that the polson germs that the polson germ

