

Christ of Latter-day Saints:—One in union, in spirit, in Council, in faith and hope, firm and unflinching in the cause of truth: may the choicest blessings of Joseph's God rest upon them, and their families; may they live long to instruct and rejoice with the Saints, and let all the people say, Amen.

W. I. APPLEBY.

Here's to the increase and perpetuity of the Nauvoo Legion:—In all emergencies, may they have the aid of the Chariots of Israel and the Horsemen thereof.

PHINEHAS RICHARDS.

Mormonism once despised and hated; now respected, because feared: it will yet triumph over every foe.

J. A. LITTLE.

The Inhabitants of Salt Lake City:—May they, like those who entered Noah's Ark, survive; while pestilence makes its ravages o'er the land.

E. STEVENSON.

Rise and shine, O, Deseret!

Latest, least, in all the train;
Wealth and honors wait thee yet,
Mid the mountains rise & reign.

Like the mustard seed of yore,
From the least the greatest grows;

When proud empires are no more,
Here in peace shall man repose.

Lift thy banner far on high,
Let thy star in grandeur rise;
Light the earth, illumine the sky,
Gild the way to Paradise.

P. P. PRATT.

May the blood of "76" circulate in the veins of the fair sons and daughters of this Valley, and apostolic truth dwell in their hearts, and proceed from their lips, till the word oppression is cast out of the vocabulary of languages.

EMIGRANT.

To the Emigrants:—We hope they will leave flour enough in the Valley, so that the mice will not have to leave our flour barrels with tears in their eyes.

W. M. MUIR.

The Governor of the State of Deseret:—By a prophet's eye he saw this land, and by his ready access to the same fountain of light, has characterized his government over the people of the same, thus far.

D. S.

The Constitution of the United States:—Like ancient Israel, pure in its origin, but by unwise and wicked expositors has become corrupt; yet like her, and through the same instrumentality, shall in the latter day be restored to its primeval purity.

D. S.

Liberty and Truth:—May they continue to illumine the whole earth, until the sun shall soon rise for the last time, on the palace of the tyrant, or set on the cottage of the slave.

The Inhabitants of the Great Salt Lake Valley:—May they ever prosper.

B. HOLLADAY.

Let God dictate, and the State of Deseret will include the United States.

H. GIBBS.

A hint to the wise:—Martin Van Buren said,—Gentlemen, we know your cause is just, but Congress has no power; but we say,—Gentlemen, we know your cause is just, and knowledge is power.

CAPT. D. TYLER,

In behalf of the Artillery.

Government:—God dwells in the midst of his kingdoms; let all people say amen, as we do.

A Dream:—Joseph's sheaf stood upright in the harvest field; all others made their obeisance to it.

WILLARD SNOW.

The United States:—The land of my nativity. Her liberties and freedom I once enjoyed and loved. Her mobocracy and oppression I have also shared, and hate and despise. Her Constitution the best in the world, and most abused. May peace and prosperity attend her citizens while they inculcate its pure principles, and the curses of God when they violate them; and I will say amen.

B. BROWN.

The Ladies:—The only tyrants who dare rule over us.

Champaigne to our friends, and real pain to our enemies.

Offered by G. A. SMITH.

The Chairman of the Committee remarked, that it could not be consistent with the arrangements for the evening, to continue the exercises longer, only to hear from the Governor; who arose and expressed his approbation of what had passed before him that day; offering an apology for the failure of the public dinner, which had been anticipated; that the lumber and poles furnished for the shade which had been contemplated, would be an advantage to the public works, where they would be applied, and in the advancement of which we are all interested; and blessed the people in the name of the Lord.

Benediction by Father Isaac Morley, and the people dispersed, while the Band was playing a lively tune.

The Grand Concert in the evening at the Bowery, served to add to the interest of the day, and was an honor to the Band; the Bowery being too small to accommodate all who wished to attend.

No disturbance marred the enjoyments of the day or evening; good order, and saintly conduct characterized the vast multitude assembled.

FRONTIER GUARDIAN.—Elder Hyde is sending many copies of the Frontier Guardian, for sale to the citizens of Deseret. See terms in advertisement of this week. We consider the Guardian is a well conducted paper, so far as we have had the opportunity of perusing, and recommend our friends to encourage its circulation.
