Atty. S. P. Armstrong and Mrs. Pintro Demand to Know Where Valuables Are.

WERE AT THE UTAH NATIONAL

Peculiar Case Comes Up Which Puzzles the Bank Officials—Story From Both Viewpoints.

TWO VIEWS

By Joseph Nelson, vice president, Utah National bank: "It is absolutely and maliciously silly to attempt to build up a theory around the Pintro safety deposit box incident to the effect that officials of the bank could have had access to this box. The day after Pintro died a young man called at the bank, notified us Pintro was dead, and the box was immediately sealed up, and was not opened till the administrator of the estate opened it. No one but the owner of a deposit box key could possibly get into a safety-deposit box."

By S. P. Armstrong, attorney for Mrs. Pintro, who declares a box was valued at $335 and other valuables: "I challenge the truth of Mr. Nelson's statement. Whenever a company installs safety deposit boxes it furnishes two keys to each box. We have located only one of Pintro's keys. Whenever a box was vacant, the keys laid loose inside of it, and it was open. Any employee of the bank could have secured duplicate keys to any empty box in any."

From S. P. Armstrong, attorney, and from Mrs. Adrian Pintro, common law wife of Adrian Pintro, deceased, comes a demand to know what has become of valuables alleged by them to have been stored in the safety deposit department of the Utah National bank. They were discovered to be missing by Attorney Armstrong and Mrs. Pintro when they applied to the bank for the safety deposit box key to obtain the valuables which he had told his woman companion were stored there, four days before his death, when his physician had told him he could not recover.

Armstrong declares that he had known Pintro a long time, and that while he was a saloon man and had a Frenchman's idea of virtue, still he was well known as one who had no imaginative conception of things, and always kept his promises, and told the truth in literal detail. Armstrong learned that $200 was on deposit in the bank to Pintro's credit and has had it removed, but was unable to locate his bank book to verify the amount. In his check book mentioned in the safety deposit box at the Utah National.

"I fully believe the money was left in the box by Pintro," said Mr. Armstrong this morning. "At first I thought possibly he might have had a safety deposit box elsewhere, but a rigid search has failed to reveal his name among the renters of safety deposit boxes in any other place where they are rented. I intended to lay the matter before Mr. McCormick and Mr. Chipman, and see if they would not do something to make the matter right."

The inquiry into the matter of Pintro's box became a public matter this morning when Mrs. Pintro, also known as Anna Reinhardt, gave out a statement of the case. Pintro, who was the Lone Star saloon, on Commercial street, and had formerly had the Reinhardt woman there or in a place nearby, as one of her common law wives. They first met in New York when Miss Reinhardt could not speak any English and they came west together, deciding to make their home in Salt Lake, but apparently had never gone to the trouble of securing formal documents in the case.

For the past few years Mrs. Pintro—she wears this name used—has lived with Pintro alone, and has completely abandoned the sporting life which formerly she knew.

BOTH MADE WILLS.

To protect the family property Mrs. Pintro had made out a will, deciding all to Mrs. Pintro, and he had done likewise, so that whoever should die first would be the beneficiary of the other's property. On Monday, Jan. 12, Pintro became very ill at the family home, No. 161 west Third South street. Being assured that he could not live, he told Mrs. Pintro that $335 in cash was on deposit at the Utah National bank in a safety deposit box, to which he gave her the key, and previously to this he had told her that his gold watch, which he did not carry on account of a fear of being held up, was in this box, with some diamonds. These had been taken in as securities for loans to Frenchmen, many of whom secured money from Pintro.

ASHWORTH'S STORY.

The total estate is valued at about $7,000, and Mrs. Pintro has had two lawyers engaged in the matter, and the death of Pintro. The first one, Thomas Ashworth, was hired very cheaply after Pintro's death and died shortly after. The second, in favor of S. P. Armstrong, Armstrong and Mrs. Pintro secured from Ashworth all papers and the key to the safety deposit

box. She says he took them away when her mind was upset and that he came to her declaring himself to be a friend of Pintro, without her solicitation. He says in answer to this, that the inferences are false, that he was not a friend of Pintro's, that a party claiming to represent her asked him to call and see her, that he did so, and that she appeared perfectly calm and rational, finally asking him to take Pintro's keys and all documents of value, including a will, to his office for safe keeping. He kept them until demanded by Mrs. Pintro. Who this party was Mr. Ashworth would not say, declaring that Mrs. Pintro knew as he remained during the conversation, and appeared to be a friend of hers. At this first meeting he recalled once doing some business in which Pintro had an interest, and had mentioned this incident to Mrs. Pintro.

NOT FORMALLY MARRIED.

"Before I left," said Mr. Ashworth this morning, "Mrs. Pintro was addressed as Miss Reinhardt by her friend, and she replied, 'Mrs. Pintro, if you please.' This led to questioning and I found that she had not been formally married, so that I told her her status was that of a common law wife. She wanted me to get the will probated, and I then drew up a note which she signed, merely authorizing me to act as her attorney in this work. "This was on Saturday. Sunday I went back at her request, and she wanted me to help select a casket for the body, and also to go to the saloon and look over the property. The man in charge of the saloon came in while we were talking and all three of us went to O'Donnell's, where she became hysterical over the body, and we got her to leave at Mr. O'Donnell's suggestion. This was the only symptom of mental distress I witnessed. "Monday afternoon I went and filed the will for probate, and asked her for the fees, telling her they would amount all told to $3 or $10. She gave me $15, $10 of which she secured from the man in charge of the saloon, who came up to her while we were in the county building grounds.

SEEMED SATISFIED.

She seemed perfectly satisfied then. That was the last I heard till S. P. Armstrong came along with a demand that I turn over all the papers I had to him. I asked that I turn them over to the lady herself, and in a little while she came with others. I took all her papers out, and they were all the same, and then told them that the balance of $13 I had of the $15 given me, I would retain as fees, and that the advertisement for the body would not be paid. "All I know about the vault and the safety deposit box, is that Monday, Feb. 3, I called at the bank and told them to seal up Pintro's box as he was dead. I was never in the safe deposit department in my life."

S. P. Armstrong declares that he does not think Ashworth ever used the key in his possession to get into the box. This is confirmed at the bank where Mr. Nelson says he never saw the key, and has made no attempt to enter the vault.

WHAT ARMSTRONG SAYS.

Mr. Armstrong declares that he with Anna Reinhardt went to the bank Feb. 23, Miss Reinhardt having been appointed administratrix of the estate and that they asked Mr. Openshaw to admit them to deposit box No. 112, to which they had the key and the authority of the court to open it. He did so and left the vault room. They opened the box and found instead of the $335 they expected, that it was empty, except of a few valuables, and that Pintro had papers in his desk at the saloon much more valuable than those found in the box.

The case was taken to Mr. Openshaw, who replied, according to Mr. Armstrong, that he did not know anything about it and could not understand the matter, but could open the box but the key holder.

In concluding his story Mr. Armstrong declared that he had not given the matter out for publication, and that this initiative must have come from Miss Reinhardt.

Among Pintro's effects is a memorandum book showing that deposits were made on Dec. 6, of $405, $30 and $100 being deposited but without a date mentioned. The notation is partly in French and partly in English.

WEATHER TALK.

It will be fair tonight and then—oh then, it's going to snow, or maybe just rain. There's a storm over the north Pacific and the thing is expected to sweep down this way. And the streets are beginning to dry a little, too. It's too sad a story except as told in the matter of fact, heartless English of the weather bureau. Here is the usque:

The north Pacific high barometric pressure has decreased in energy and moved eastward to the middle plateau attended by fair weather. Another high pressure was reported over the north Atlantic states, also attended by fair weather. Storms were reported over the British northwest territory and upper lake region, the former causing rain or snow over portions of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, British Columbia, South Dakota, and Manitoba, with rain this morning at the latter place. Heavy rain fell at Victoria. Zero temperature was reported over Manitoba.

The storm over the north Pacific will probably cause rain or snow, and colder in this locality Saturday, preceded by fair weather tonight.

TAMPERS WITH ELEVATOR

Impatient Passenger Takes County Building Lift Into His Own Hands With Startling Results.

What might have been a serious incident, but which fortunately proved to be only an affair of deep concern and delay to a number of persons, happened at the city and county building early this morning. Shortly before 8 o'clock Harold King, the elevator operator, stepped for a moment from the cage and during his absence was entered by O. H. Skidmore and several other people, including two ladies. Skidmore, who is a member of the board of directors of the city engineers, took upon himself to give the passengers a lift. He started the machinery all right by pressing the button, but in a jerky manner, he became excited and in manipulating the various keys in an endeavor to stop, a short circuit was effected, and the cage was boyed out.

The elevator went within a foot or two of the top and then gradually descended nearly to the basement of the building, where it stopped half way between two landings, making it impossible for the occupants to get out. There they remained for an hour, while Engineer "Sid" Case was repairing the havoc that had been wrought by Skidmore's foolishness. The entire floor was burned and had to be filed to produce a rough surface before the machinery could again be started.

While repairs were going on, the cage load of passengers were imprisoned, while the many persons employed in the building, as well as persons having business to do in the various offices, were compelled to walk up and down the stairs. Skidmore's action was severely criticized by many persons in and about the building.

Engineer Case says the cage is a very safe and reliable one, or the chances for an escape from injury would have been very slight. The elevator was more than likely to have gone through the roof, or to have fallen to the bottom of the shaft. In either case it would have meant great injury, and perhaps death, to the load of passengers.

NEW YORK'S UNEMPLOYED.

Governor of Utah Asked to Help Furnish Them With Work.

Gov. John C. Cutler is in receipt of a letter from Hon. Louis Klopsch, editor of the Christian Herald and president of the Bowers mission of New York, telling of the vast number of unemployed men, old and young, and asking assistance in providing them employment.

Accompanying the letter is a circular containing a list of names of men who are unemployed, and who are in need of work. The Bowers mission says that men for all kinds of unskilled labor can be furnished on a moment's notice, and that the mission is willing to assist in the providing of work for the vast army of unemployed. Only transportation is asked for, the mission asking no remuneration for its service. The headquarters of the Bowers mission is 92 Bible House, New York.

Beer Bottle Figures in a Drunken Brawl at Lehi.

(Special to the "News.") Lehi, March 13.—Last night in a drunken brawl, Dave McCandless struck Moses Jones over the head with a beer bottle, fracturing the latter's skull above the left eye. The fight occurred just after the closing of the saloon, at 11 p. m. The men had been quarreling in the saloon, and continued their fight outside. The fight was a mixup occurred with the result given. Both are young married men, and had been drinking and quarreling more or less all evening.

Jones' condition is quite critical this afternoon, and McCandless is being held pending further developments. The county officials have the matter in hand.

WEST TEMPLE DEAL.

Louis and Adolph Simon to Purchase Major Hill Property.

Louis and Adolph Simon are closing a deal, it is reported, for the Major Hill property on West Temple street, disposed by the major some time ago when he left Salt Lake. The property is 530 rods, nearly opposite the Utah hotel, and is a large building, and is stated to be $40,000. It is the intention of the Simon brothers to build a business structure there to cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. The Utah Commercial & Savings bank is just to be sold by Fred Stauffer for $5,000, 57½x30 feet on Richards street, the purchase being for investment.

TOMORROW FATEFUL DAY

Abrogation of Agreements Between Rio Grande and Employees and Strike or Peace?

Tomorrow is the day. What is it to be? An open-shop and a big strike on the Rio Grande, or no abrogation and continued peace? March 14 was the day selected by the company for the abrogation of agreements with its employees. Nothing to the contrary has been issued since the original announcement, although there has been a number of additional declarations from time to time. The employees, shop men and all assert that they simply will not submit to an open-shop policy and will insist upon their unions being recognized.

The company is equally firm in its assertion that it will let the unions run its business but tomorrow will throw off the yoke—and what?

No one seems to know. There was a meeting of laborers in Labor hall last evening. What happened on one outside of the men, themselves know and they will not tell. But it is common knowledge that the men are going to fight down or attempt to defeat anything bordering on the open-shop or cut-in-wages proposition and are ready to make their boasts good by a walk-out, if orders to go out come from Denver.

Committees representing the employees of the Goulds are now in Denver but no word was received from them today. There is a tenseness in the situation that is approaching the snapping point. The word is expected this afternoon or by tonight sure. This word will tell what is going to happen—or not happen tomorrow.

V. OF A. FREE DISPENSARY

All in Readiness for the Opening at St. Mark's School Tomorrow Morning.

On Saturday morning, at 9 o'clock, the free dispensary of the Volunteers of America will be opened to receive patients in the part of defendant. The building, the old St. Mark's school at 18 east First South street. This is the first institution of the kind in Salt Lake City, although the necessity for this kind of an institution has long been recognized by those who are engaged in philanthropic work here.

The rooms for the dispensary are now being fitted for work and tomorrow will be ready to receive patients. On the right side of the building the windows show the red cross, before which the niles of the warring nations are lowered, and on the lower panels appear the words, "Free Dispensary."

This is the doctor's office and examination room, while the room on the left side of the building will be used as the reception room for patients. A drug room is also being included, where the prescriptions will be put up.

It is not the intention of those who have had charge of the organization to dispense with treatment of persons promiscuously, without investigation, as it has been the experience of those interested in this sort of philanthropy that the members of the organization who would take advantage of the philanthropic intentions of those promoting the work of an institution of this kind.

Cases of immediate necessity will be cared for but others will be carefully investigated by the staff of patients as seen worthy will receive free medical aid.

A charge of not over 25 cents will be made for prescribed drugs in all cases, but where it may seem advisable and necessary, other sources will be called into requisition to supply the need. This will be at the option of those in charge.

All will be welcomed. There is no restriction of any kind as to the work of this dispensary. It is conducted on strictly humanitarian lines, and the physicians will give their time and labor, and the philanthropic their money to make this dispensary one of the factors for the alleviation of human pain, and suffering in the city of Salt Lake.

TO STUDY NEW GUN.

There will be a meeting next Monday night, at the state armory, of officers of the guard to study the new Springfield gun model. An officer from Fort Douglas will be present to give instruction. As diagrams accompany the arms from the arsenal, it is urged that the men who are to use the guns be required to make drawings of the various parts so as to secure a more thorough knowledge of the mechanism. A large attendance is looked for, not only by officers, but other members of the guard, as well as citizens of military mind. The members of the guard will be working of the new arm, and the progress made in the manufacture of fire arms.

M. I. CONFERENCE.

Y. M. and Y. L. Associations of Salt Lake Stake to Meet.

The Young Ladies' and Young Men's Mutual Improvement associations of the Salt Lake stake held their annual conference meetings tonight and Sunday evening. This evening in the new Seventeenth ward chapel all the ward leaders, members of both organizations will hold a business meeting in connection with the conference. Sunday evening next at 7 p. m. a general public meeting will be held in the Assembly hall. Special musical numbers have been provided, talks on M. I. A. subjects will be given and the general boards will be present to address the meeting. A large attendance at both meetings is expected.

EIGHT JURORS SECURED TO DATE

Morning Adjournment in Sullivan Murder Trial Sees Box Two-Thirds Full.

THIRD VENIRE EXHAUSTED.

Recess Follows Discovery of Absence Of Two Men, at Request of Defense—Leave of Absence.

Thomas Alston, bookkeeper, Sugar House. Samuel Oldham, laborer, city. Charles Denny, printer, city. Hyrum Stoffer, bricklayer, Murray. Hyrum E. Evans, contractor, city. Joshua Hill, shoemaker, city. Thomas A. Lowry, carpenter, city. Robert Hazen, Jr., salesman, city. The above eight men have been accepted as jurors in the Sullivan murder case to date.

ADJOURNMENT.

At 11:30 o'clock today a recess was taken until 2 p. m. The adjournment came immediately after the third installment of veniremen had been examined on their voir dire. As in the two previous instances, 50 takersmen had been summoned, and also as twice before 33 men were accounted for by the sheriff's returns. There appeared in the jury box 23 men, three responded and were excused and two were missing. The absence of the two men was the occasion of the recess, and the question came from the defense, George T. Odell had sent word to Judge Armstrong that he would be in attendance this afternoon, and counsel for Sullivan sanctioned the leave of absence granted by the court.

When it was found that William Coates of Bingham Junction had been found by the officers but was not present in court, defendant's counsel asked for an adjournment and the same was readily granted.

Eight jurorsmen have now been accepted. Five were named in last evening's "News," two were secured late in the morning. Joshua Hill, a shoemaker of this city, and Thomas A. Lowry, a carpenter, also resident in the city, were the two chosen yesterday afternoon, and Robert Hazen, Jr., was selected this forenoon. The latter is a salesman in the employ of the McDonald Candy company.

LAST SEVEN EXAMINED.

Only seven takersmen remained to be examined of the second list of 50 when court resumed at 10 o'clock today. A. Hanauer, Jr., was excused for cause by the defense, as were also George B. Gudgel, William Morley, James C. Paine and John McKendrick. Andrew Reynolds was excused upon his own motion, as he had been compelled to close his place of business to attend court. Mr. Hazen, as stated, was accepted.

TWO DIVORCE SUITS.

Mabel Youngberg and John J. Brennan Ask Release from Partners.

Suit for divorce was filed today by Mabel Youngberg against Joseph W. Youngberg, the complaint alleging non-support on the part of defendant. The couple married Jan. 3, 1907, and the failure to provide is alleged to date from March 1 of that year. The plaintiff also asks for the privilege of assuming her maiden name, Mabel Fox. John J. Brennan today filed suit for divorce from Pearl Brennan, plaintiff alleging that he was deserted by defendant three years ago, without sufficient cause or any reason. The couple were married at St. Louis, March 1, 1904. There are no children, issue of said marriage.

BUTTER CASE COMES UP.

M. O. Miner on Trial Before Justice Lundberg.

M. O. Miner is on trial before Justice of the Peace Anton Lundberg of precinct No. 7, Salt Lake county. This afternoon, on a charge of offering for sale butter not stamped with the real name of the makers. It is alleged in the complaint that said package of butter thus offered for sale were stamped as follows: "This package contains 15½ ounces of butter when analyzed, it was found to contain 15½ ounces of butter, and 15½ ounces of water." It is further alleged that Miner Brothers were not the manufacturers of said butter, and that it was not made at Fairfield, Utah. The complaint was sworn to by City Food Inspector Frazer, Precinct No. 7, is Sandy, but Justice Lundberg holds court in the office of the paper clerk, City and County building.

JOHN C. STUBBS HERE.

Harriman's Traffic Director Spends a Few Hours in Salt Lake.

J. C. Stubbs, traffic director of the Harriman lines was in this city this morning. His visit here was short and, consequently, very strenuous. Immediately upon reaching the Oregon Short Line headquarters he went into conference with W. H. Bancroft, vice president and general manager of the Oregon Short Line. Other local officials were called in from time to time and "bull horns" were kept on the jump carrying files, maps and records of all descriptions to and from the scene of activity. Upon concluding his business Mr. Stubbs hurried down to the depot and at a few minutes past the noon hour his special car was pulled out of this city by an eastbound train.

Mr. Stubbs is one of "the" members of the Harriman family, is on a long trip of inspection and investigation. He has been along the southern edge of the United States, coming up the Pacific coast as far north as Portland and other points in the northwest. Then he hurried down to Salt Lake, from here he headed over the Union Pacific. His trip is no ordinary one of inspection nor one of ordinary inspection. He is looking over the various centers of the troubles of several lines and taking notes. When he returns to Chicago and looks over his notes results will follow. It is commonly believed Mr. Stubbs' present visit was to ascertain where retrenchment was possible without inconvenience and from reports from some points along his trail retrenchment was "mighty convenient."

Just what is to happen here or whether anything is to happen here or not is not known—yet. It is not regarded as probable that any cuts in fares to be made in traffic departments in the Oregon Short Line headquarters as the bone is pretty bare of any extra meat right now. What can happen in the intermountain region, however, and what is feared by some railroad men is the chopping off of heads at various outside points. No word which might throw light upon these various rumors could be obtained from the visitor, however. It is believed conditions here are O. K. The trouble spent several days in some places he has visited. He was here just a few hours. It didn't

MRS. YOUNG BETTER.

For Awhile This Morning She Was Conscious, Recognizing Husband.

"Joe" H. Young, the old time railroad of this city, and now one of E. E. Calvin's right hand men, is in the city to be at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Le Grand Young, who lies unconscious from a paralysis of brain nerves at her home, Red Butte. The stroke is believed to be a temporary one, although of long duration. Mrs. Young having been stricken very suddenly at midnight Monday.

For a few moments this morning Mrs. Le Grand Young was conscious, recognized her husband, and her condition is such that strong hopes are entertained for her recovery. The relapse into a comatose state is not considered unfavorable by the attending physicians, as it is said that such conditions sometimes exist for a week without fatal results. Mrs. Young's health is holding out well, and it is believed that in a comparatively short time the stupor will be overcome. Mrs. Kenneth C. Kerr and Miss Afton Young, daughters of Mrs. Young, who were summoned from California, are also at their mother's bedside.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

Dudley H. Jenkins, the 22-year-old son of Deputy County Clerk William E. Jenkins, was brought to St. Mark's hospital last evening suffering with a broken shoulder bone. The accident occurred in Skull valley, Tooele county, on Wednesday last, and was caused by a fractious horse which the young man was endeavoring to "subdue" to a post. The animal in running around the post succeeded in getting Mr. Jenkins entangled in the rope and he was hurled against a building with such force as to cause the fracture.

Mr. Jenkins was brought to Tooele, where the bone was set, and the journey was then continued to this city. The X-ray was brought into requisition to determine whether or not the long ride had displaced the injured member, but it is thought that the setting is all right.

SPARKS HAS A RECORD.

Believed That Young Man Took Part In Three Burglaries.

There is strong likelihood that young Will Sparks, who was arrested yesterday morning by Officer Pierce with a young man named Cowan, on the charge of stealing harness and carpenter tools from A. J. Eardley, will have to stand trial on at least three counts of burglary. As a result of careful investigation on the part of the police it was learned this morning that young Sparks was mixed up in at least two other burglaries. Harness stolen from Dr. Baugher and a harness stolen from the residence of Frank Sandquist, has been traced to second hand stores, where the stolen property was disposed of. Sparks has been identified in each case as the person who sold the property.

GETS THREE MONTHS.

Apperley, Mixed Up in Clift House Robbery, Receives Light Sentence.

W. H. Apperley, one of the four men arrested on Feb. 29 for robbing two railroad men in a room at the Clift house, was before Judge Diehl this morning on the charge of robbery. He was permitted to plead guilty to petty larceny, the taking of a watch, and was sentenced to three months in the county jail. The worst man of the bunch, Edward Carroll, escaped from the chain gang. The other two, Blane and Edwards are awaiting hearing on the charge of burglary.
