MARSHAL BAZAINE.

On dispatches state that the trial of Marshal Bazaine by court-martial in the palace of Trionion, the Duke d'Aumale presiding, commenced at noon yesterday.

The indictment was read. The specific charges therein are not mentioned.

It is understood that they are based on unworthy conduct connected with the capitulation of Metz, with the possibility of bribery by the Prussians.

Franco's Achille Bazaing was born February 22, 1811, studied at the Ecole Polytechnique, entered the French army, served in Africa in 1832, and received the Cross of the Legion of Honor on the battle field.

In 1837 was engaged in Spain against the Carlists, returning to Algeria as Captain in 1839. He took part in the campaigns of Millanah, Kabylia, and Morocco. In 1853 he commanded a brigade of infantry in the Crimea, and in the siege of Sebastopol was honorably mentioned.

He became a general of division and commanded the French portion of the expedition to Kinburn. In 1856 he was appointed Inspector of several divisions of infantry.

In 1858 he received a command in the French expedition to Mexico, where he distinguished himself, and in 1863 succeeded Marshal Forey in the supreme command.

He was nominated commander of the Legion of Honor, Aug. 16, 1856, and grand cross on the same July 2, 1863, and was created a Marshal of France, Sept. 5, 1864. While holding supreme command in Mexico, he drove Juarez to the furthestmost frontiers in 1864, and Feb. 8, 1865, compelled the surrender of Oajaca.

most as much interest as if the three American gentlemen had continued with it, instead of making their jumping off place on the classic ground of old Connecticut.

The reasons which caused the gentlemen to leave the balloon, and land on American soil, instead of pursuing their journey to Europe's shores, do not yet appear, but they must have been all-embracing, or Mr. Donaldson would hardly have taken that course after all his brave statements about doing anything he could to make the voyage a success, and to determine the possibility or impossibility of crossing the ocean in a balloon.

The public will not only be glad to learn what record the balloon makes for itself, but also what Mr. Donaldson has to say for himself for making his record so brief. Meantime, the way is open for the new Graphic silk balloon and for Bar-nam and his balloon.

We may also observe that the responsibility of Mr. Donaldson's failure can not be fairly placed upon the Graphic company, because they, previous to the ascent, expressly disclaimed such responsibility, and Mr. Donaldson expressly said, "I want it distinctly understood that this undertaking is wholly my own, and that responsibility for its result is to rest entirely with me."

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

FIRST DAY. Conference was resumed at 2 p.m. Singing by the choir. Prayer for the day.

Prayer by Elder LORENZO SPOW. The choir sang: Glorious things of thee are spoken, Zion, city of our God.

Elder LORENZO D. YOUNG said he had attended the first Conference in the valley, and every subsequent one excepting one. When he called to mind the past and compared with the circumstances of the present he could not but acknowledge the interposing hand of God in behalf of the people who had been so favored.

Just as soon as the people were prepared to accept the Gospel, the blessings of the Lord they would become wealthy. It some times appeared that they had more of these blessings now than was good for them. It was not poverty and persecution that destroyed the faith and ending of the Saints, but rather the allurements and temptations of the world.

He said he had attended the first Conference in the valley, and every subsequent one excepting one. When he called to mind the past and compared with the circumstances of the present he could not but acknowledge the interposing hand of God in behalf of the people who had been so favored.

Just as soon as the people were prepared to accept the Gospel, the blessings of the Lord they would become wealthy.

ELDER DAVID MCGARRIN speaking of the possibility of crossing the ocean in a balloon.

The speaker then alluded to the signs of the times, showing that they were indicative of the fulfillment of the predictions of the ancient prophets in the setting up of the Kingdom of God and the demolition of governments of human origin.

Some of the Latter-day Saints were not doing sufficient attention to those matters and were getting too much heed to the things of the world. The last worldly gain they had enjoyed was happiness even in this life, but tended, in many respects, to increase of care and responsibility.

The Lord was acquainted with the organization and consequently would not allow a plan that would bring happiness to them. The object of this titling, the necessity of obedience to the counsel of the living oracles of God, the ultimate establishment of the Kingdom of God, and the responsibility which was placed upon them.

ELDER WM. V. CLUFF said he had devoted the greater portion of his life to the study of the cause of God on earth, and he felt an increased desire to continue in the study of the scriptures.

LONDON, 7.—Sir George Rawlinson, in a speech at Birmingham last night, expressed his belief that England would send a vessel to complete the expedition of the Polar expedition.

ELDER JESSE N. SMITH bore testimony that the work which he and his brethren were engaged in was of a permanent nature, and would last for ever.

President GEORGE A. SMITH spoke on the necessity of keeping the Word of Wisdom, and of the saints to abstain from every thing forbidden therein, as far as climate and other conditions would admit.

ELDER BIRCHAM YOUNG, JR., bore testimony to the truthfulness of the Word of God in the last days, and spoke of the evidence that the leaders of the Latter-day Saints were led by inspiration, and that the latter had been gathered together under the direction of revelation.

ELDER GEO. Q. CANNON announced that a Priesthood meeting would be held in the Old Tabernacle at six o'clock p.m.
