EDITORIAL NOTES.

Here is a useful hint to horticulturists, concerning splits in fruit trees, given by the Toronto Globe: "Select a small limb from each fork and clear them of leaves and branches. Then bring the split up together, twine the two small limbs together and secure them. The limbs will grow together in time, and keep the split from opening."

The Prairie Farmer says: "A terrible inundation and hail has caused serious disaster to crops in Spain. At Morelia every trace of vegetation is said to have disappeared, and the ground was covered with hail to a depth of eight inches. A shepherd, surprised on a plain, had 600 of his flock killed, and he only escaped death by obtaining shelter in a hollow oak tree."

A little girl, eight years old, named Libbie Grant, a few days ago, swam across Harlem River, from Ward's Island to the bathhouse at the foot of 114th Street, New York, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. The tide was running at the rate of five miles an hour. She accomplished the task in fifteen minutes. She was dressed in a gray suit trimmed with red.

The Darwinists rejoiced when they heard that the genuine gorilla, now exhibiting at Berlin, had learned to smoke and drink. But as he has not learned to laugh, an exercise distinctly peculiar to humans, they had better be guarded in their inferences and gratulations. The gorilla is a very advanced ape, but there is a wide gap between an educated or improved animal and uneducated or degraded man.

Another case of coal oil burning should aid in admonishing careless persons against the practice of using kerosene to kindle a fire. A twelve years old boy in St. Louis, a few days ago, in order to make the fire which he had kindled burn better, emptied into the stove a portion of a can of coal oil. The can exploded, and the boy was burned so badly on the face and body that he died in a few hours. Now, will you quit?

Very few kids are ever killed; therefore "kid" gloves, so far as the name goes, are generally a fraud. "What are they made of then?" Don't shudder, ladies, rat skins are used extensively in the manufacture of those indispensable articles for an out-door toilet, and lamb skins are also pressed into the service. Who would think that the skin of a most repulsive rodent closely enveloped and tightly squeezed that fair hand that, if placed upon the animal itself, would quiver with horror while shrieks would split the air?

A "Charlie Ross" affair has happened at Omaha. This time it is a girl who has been kidnapped, the little daughter of Mr. S. E. Rose. A most complete and rigid search in the city and its neighborhood has failed to disclose any trace of her. Five hundred men joined hands and passed through field and prairie, so that no object could escape their notice in the grass, but made no discovery. A man named Holmes, who had an old grudge against Mr. Rose, has been arrested on suspicion of being the abductor. The distracted father has offered a reward of $1,000 for the restoration of his child.

It is the easiest thing in the world to "run a paper." That is the idea which many people entertain. We published yesterday a telegram containing news which was afterwards found to be a canard. The contradiction was published also. A correspondent wonders why we can be so trifling. This is a thing that frequently happens in daily papers, and is often unavoidable. The news comes by lightning, and is set up in type with almost lightning rapidity. Just as we go to press perhaps we learn, in the same swift manner, that the first dispatch is incorrect. What then? We publish the correction to save the public from being misinformed. "Why not take it all out?" Simply because there is not time to fill up the space which would be left vacant, without delaying the whole issue of the paper and displacing a great many people, each of whom is perhaps as much importance as the quick objector. Do you see the point? The Deseret News will strive all the time to be as correct as possible and to publish only that which is reliable.

THERE is a spurious kind of polygamy practiced and acknowledged in the court circles of Europe. Kings, Princes, Grand Dukes and other titled dignitaries contract what are called morganatic marriages, presenting the left hand instead of the right when the ceremony is performed.

These marriages do not prevent the royal and princely husbands from entering into further matrimonial alliances. But the morganatic wife is not considered the legal wife, and her children have no rights of heirship or claim on the father's estate.

Expediency and reasons of State generally impel these morganatic marriages into confugal relations with ladies of royal blood, and double households are then maintained. The morganatic wife occupies an acknowledged social position. She is not despised as a mistress, but still cannot appear at court as a lawful wife.

While the legal marriages of these royal personages are generally but matters of convenience, the morganatic connections are affairs of the heart. Quite a number of the latter have been entered into with ladies of rank and title, and in other instances, single and actresses of celebrity have accepted the left hand of a princely polygamist. La France says: "Among the princelings and augustali who who have married English ladies are a Saxe-Weimar, a Monaco and a Lichtenstein." "The King of Portugal, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the reigning Duke of Saxe-Meiningen and the Prince Louis of Bavaria have all taken their wives from the stage, whence one of the Carsons, the Grand Duke Alexis, is said also to have taken the partner of his joys."

What is the actual difference between what is generally termed polygamy, and that which is countenanced in continental Europe under the thin title of morganatic marriage? The "Mormon" system appears to us to be vastly superior in every way. Each marriage contracted under that system is as valid as the other, in the eyes of the Church which solemnizes it and the people who are members of that Church. It is no left hand arrangement. The connection is understood by all the parties concerned. It is rendered sacred by the most solemn rites, and the divine seal placed upon the ceremony by an ordained minister believed to hold divine authority. Every wife is a wife with all that the title implies, so far as the community of which she forms a part is concerned.

This a law which we consider unconstitutional, as well as unwise, impolitic and unjust says there can be only one legal wife in a household. But this does not alter the views, faith, affection, and actual relationship before God and this community of those who practice celestial marriage. While each wife is a wife of the offspring of the father's love, care and sustenance during his life, and upon his estate at his decease, and can demand an equal share of the property, if he dies intestate, whether the law calls them legitimate or illegitimate. The status of a "Mormon" plural family is thus well defined. It is not a sub rosa affair. And compared with the morganatic system of European royalty, or the social customs which prevail among either Christian or heathen nations, "Mormon" plurality, or more properly speaking, celestial marriage, when carried out according to its letter and spirit, is as far in advance of them all as truth is above error and order is ahead of chaos.

BY TELEGRAPH.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH LINE.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

EASTERN.

The Telegraph Companies - Points of the Contract.

NEW YORK, 22.—The Tribune says, Russell Sage stated to the Tribune reporter that he could not furnish a copy of the contract entered into between the two telegraph companies, but he gave the points of it as follows: It provides for the pooling of the gross earnings of the rate of seven-eighths for the Western Union, and one-eighth for the Atlantic and Pacific. The next section provides for the extension of the lines, the companies to furnish the money, each to be credited for the actual money invested; each company agrees to keep the present lines in first-class order. The agreement leaves the adjustment of the rates of pooling with the two telegraph companies, and the designation of the sphere of action of the two lines with the officers of the companies. No existing contracts are to be in any way interfered with. The Atlantic and Pacific is to furnish news to the American Press Association, and the Western Union to the Associated Press. In case of any disagreements the questions in dispute are to be left to arbitration.

The Pooling Contract.
The Sun says, W. J. Lyons, Vice-President of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, will, in conjunction with other stockholders, make immediate application to the Federal court to restrain the officers of both telegraph companies from further execution of the pooling contract.

Trade Prospects.
The Times has the following on the trade prospects: In the grain trade there is great hope of a good time coming, with immense crops from the west, and there is a steady healthy growth in the produce and grocery trades, which encourages men with small profits. The volume of business done by grocers is larger up to this time than it was at a corresponding date of last year. Clothing manufacturers are feeling a small but good inquiry for their wares. There has been a great augmentation among the boot and shoe manufacturers, and the hat makers they have not done so much business for many years. Hard as the times are called, piano makers have had good business, and the dry goods trade reports a slight improvement of from 30 to 50 per cent. in leading houses. There is not so much disposition as there was last August to make sanguine predictions, but the conviction is strong upon business men that they will keep the ground they have recovered, and continue to do a fair business with moderate returns.

Struck by Lightning.
OMAHA, 22.—A boat, containing five persons, was struck by lightning while near the Union Pacific bridge, yesterday. George Slade was instantly killed. Mrs. Hege fell overboard and was drowned, and the rest, two women and a man, narrowly escaped.

The Presidential Visit.
CONCORD, N. H., 22.—The President and party left Plymouth this morning. Taking a special train at Ashland, a short stop was made, and the President and his wife were introduced to the crowd by Governor Prescott, and shaking of hands was participated in.

At Meredith village, a small number had assembled, and the President and his wife were introduced, shaking hands for a moment and departing, amid cheers.

At Ware Station, the location of the Winnepesaukee camp meeting, at least 500 people were together, brought there by the meeting and by a desire to greet the President and party. The visitors were at once taken from the train by a committee, and escorted to the speakers stand, where an address of welcome was delivered by Rev. Mr. Adams.

The President replied as follows: I wish to assure you that this kind welcome gives me very great gratification. We do not, I am sure, mistake its meaning. You are interested in me and I am interested in you because of the great trust which, under the Constitution and laws, have devolved upon us. My earnest desire and my earnest prayer is that in every difficult and every grave emergency I may be so guided that all good citizens can approve the measures that may be adopted, and that all may conscientiously pay for their complete success.

Remarkable Medical Case.
A very remarkable medical case has come to our knowledge, and we have seen no account of it thus far in the journals of the profession. A lady living at Alilton was troubled with some affection of the chest, which she attributed to a bronchial and recommended a trip to the South. She obtained no relief from the climate, and on her way back consulted an eminent physician in Baltimore, who said that a tumor had formed inside the windpipe. On reaching home she communicated this opinion to her physician here, and after consultation the doctors decided such to be the fact. The lady, who is a nurse in charge of some of the best medical talent in this city for the treatment of her case, which was becoming very serious. It was with great difficulty that she could swallow anything, and her breathing was becoming more and more obstructed. It was decided that the tumor was the cause of the trouble, and such an operation as taking a tumor from the inside of the windpipe must be invented for the purpose. A tube was put into the windpipe below the diseased spot, and the throat, subjected to a course of "education" for the operation. An instrument was devised, having at the end a combination of claws, which could be worked from the other end, so as to close firmly over the tumor, and an arrangement was made for passing a current of electricity through the instrument. In due time the operation was successfully performed by gently pressing the instrument down into the windpipe, firmly grasping the tumor in the claws, and turning it out by the electric current. The tumor, drawn out, and the lady, who was drawn out the ordeal without the use of any anesthetic, was doing well at the last accounts.—Boston Globe.

THE BATTLE OF LIFE.—Of twenty-three young men who recently stepped across the threshold of life from an Eastern college, and went west upon the trackless ocean of life to battle with relentless fate, and win renown or a glorious death in the arena, eleven are clerking in auction stores at $14 a month, one is running a job, and the rest are learning the house painting trade, one started to death before he had been out of college a week, one is driving team on a street contract, two are tramps, and the rest are living with widowed mothers, who are their only support. Fact is, brethren, when old life grasps its hooks into a man's collar, it shakes all his academic notions, and he is a man out of his skin, quick, that in six weeks, if he is alive, he knows more in a minute about the price of paint and lead than he can tell you about a Greek root in six months.

The famous story of the student, who was asked to perform at the end of the year, and performed well, is quoted by the Montevideo.
