BREVITIES.

Large quantities of bones, beads, coins and other Indian relics have been found in the great Indian Mound in St. Louis, which is now being opened.

Nearly the last oddity in the fashionable world is wooden parasols, made of thin leaves of wood, and decorated something after the Chinese fashion.

A lady of Richmond Va., recently gave birth to twins, thirteen days elapsing between the births. Physicians speak of this as one of the most remarkable cases of this age.

"Do you say your prayers regularly every night and morning?" asked a sympathetic lady of a little shoeblack to whom she had just given a trifle. "I allus sez'um at night, mum, but any smart boy can take care of hisself in the day time," was the little rogue's reply.

Parepa Rosa has abandoned concert giving, and will remain quiet until fall, when she will come out with a grandly appointed English opera enterprise, in which the principals, besides herself, will be the best that money can procure from England, including, probably, Mr. Sims Reeves.

Deplech, the woman of Marseilles, who boiled twenty children to death, has been sentenced to the galleys for life, having being found "guilty with extenuating circumstances." The "extenuating circumstances" possibly were that she boiled them in water and not in oil.

Paper Fire Hose is the latest article produced in this country, and it is claimed by the inventor that it will outlast any hose yet invented, and that it will stand a pressure greater than any other, and will not deteriorate, mildew or rot from use.

The mechanics of San Francisco have turned their attention to the contrivance of earthquake-proof chimneys for the large factories. An immense iron smoke-stack, forty feet high, eight feet in diameter, has just been raised upon a sugar refinery, the roof of which is sixty feet from the ground.

The fabulous sounding report about the birth of a little girl with a living and growing fœtus in a tumor on her back, at Schliewen, in East Prussia, is fully confirmed. A great many physicians have already inspected this wonderful lusus naturae, and most of them believe that the fœtus will arrive at maturity and be safely brought to light. The little girl on whose back the tumor is, is not yet a month old.

Queen Isabella has given orders to the effect that no more newspaper reporters and editors shall be admitted to her new palace. She is greatly displeased with some of the stories which several of these enterprising Bohemians have published about her. Father Claret is likewise dissatisfied with the attention the newspapers of Paris have been bestowing upon him. In January last the ex-Queen hinted that she would not be displeased if the French government would prosecute certain Parisian editors for slandering her immaculate character. The French government, however, did not take the hint.

New York thieves have in training a number of dogs for summer operations. They are taught by repeated endeavors to rush into a room and seize from a counter a parcel and quickly bring it to their master. Their counter is made so as to resemble those in banks, and the parcel is covered with yellow paper, and made to look like the packages of bank-notes that are exchanged from one bank to another. The design is to take, or send by a confederate, one of these dogs to the door of a bank or broker's office, where a parcel or package of bank-notes is seen to be lying on the counter, and send him in. The trained animal darts in and seizes the valuables in his mouth and rushes out to the place where he expects to find his master.

Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, mentioned in the scriptures, have recently been thoroughly explored by Macgregor, the famous canoe traveler. Macgregor, after going from Cairo to Suez, and exploring the delta of the Nile, had his canoe carried by land to Beyrout, thence over Mount Lebanon, and finally launched in the river Abana, on which he paddled to the plains of Damascus. The rivers Abana and Pharpar, in consequence of the wild beasts, deep jungles, and savage Arabs, have hitherto been laid down inaccurately on the maps by travelers. Macgregor gives an interesting account of a "giant stone town," with some doors, rafters, and window-shutters, covered with Greek inscriptions, dating before the Christian era.

A correspondent writes of the famous Sioux chief, Spotted Tail, and his daughter, as follows:

When a young man, Spotted Tail was a brave warrior, and always seen foremost in the fight. He wore a coon's tail in his head-dress, and hence Gen. Harney gave him the name of The man with the Spotted Tail. He has five or six wives and several children. A few years ago one of his daughters fell in love with an officer of the army at Fort Laramie. The officer did not return her affection, and she pined and died. She is represented to have been a virtuous, beautiful girl of great intelligence; and it was pitiable to seeher, day after day, following about the man she loved as a dog does its master. Spotted Tail removed her from the fort and sent her a long way off among his people, but she refused food and pined away to skin and bones. Before she died she sent for her father, and made him promise that he would have her body buried among the whites, where her heart was. She also exacted of him a promise that he would give over his war against the whites, live at peace with them, and befriend them whenever he could. Spotted Tail loved his child much, and it is said, never forgot the promise he made. The young officer she loved so passionately was a Lieutenant in an Ohio regiment during the war.
