The Times Washington special says a personal feeling is developing into a proposition to elect a new President of the Senate, in order that the successful issue of the impeachment trial would not result in the elevation of Wade to the Presidency. Canandaigua, N. Y., 4.-When near the Hopewell station yesterday, a baggage car train, from Elmira, jumped from the track, and overturned all the passeng ers into one end of the car, inflicting serious injuries on twelve. The car stove was broken, and with a mass of living coals of fire, was thrown with great force upon the already suffering passengers, burning several in a most shocking manner. Washington .- The bill authorizing the Secretary of War to employ counsel for the defense of the General of the army, or any other officer or person entrusted with the enforcement of the reconstruction acts becomes law without the President's approval. The House considered Jencks' additional impeachment article, he speaking in its support. Washington. - Carpenter concluded his argument in the Supreme Court today, in support of the authority of Congress, under the constitution, to pass the reconstruction acts. Trumbull followed on the same side, denying that the Judiciary has jurisdiction in the McArdle case. Senate.-The chair submitted a communication from Chief Justice Chase relative to the rules adopted by the Senate, expressing his dissent from the view taken by the Senate that managers can be received or any act done, except as a court of impeachment; but he is willing, if necessary, to abide their decision; referred to the committee of seven. The House impeachment managers appeared at one, followed by the members of the House, the latter ranging themselves outside the bar of the Senate. At the close, Mr. Caine was loudly called for and on appearing a speech was claimed, to which he responded as follows:-

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Words would fail me to express all I feel this vening, therefore I shall not stempt it, but evenin content myself by simply returning you my stances, to render the house attractive by se-curing the best talent that came within our reach, making it a place where the citizen, and the stranger sojourning in our midst, could pass their evenings in innocent amusement and pleasant instruction.

We propose closing the Theatre to far as dramatic performances are concerned till about the 1st of April, when if all is well, we shall open for a Spring and Summer season. We have already secured some fresh attractions, and shall spare no labor to render the Thestre more attractive than ever. Before retiring permit me to thank thus publicly the Ladies and Gentlemen of the Company, the Gentlemen of the Orchestra, Capt Croxall and his splendid Brass Band, Lisle Lester, Miss Clive, Mr. Dunbar, Mr. Ottinger, Mr. Savage, Messrs Folsom & Romney, the Attachees and Supernumeries connected with the Theatre, and all others who have so generously contributed their services for this occasion.

The Gentlemen of the Press, Mr. Cannon, Mr. Stenhouse and Mr. Sloan will also please accept my warmest thanks for their liberality and courtesy.

TESTIMONIAL John T. Caine, Esq., The Salt Lake Theatre. 0909 200 from The Ladies of the D. D. Association, March 3d, 1868; And the latter had the names of M. G. Clawson, Sara A. Alexander, A. A. Adams, E. S. Colebrook, inscribed on it. Of course he could do nothing but fall back on his "native" dignity, master his surprise as best he could, and accept with brief response the testimonial so unexpectedly and courteously presented, READINGS .- We learn that there is a probability of Lisle Lester giving one of her popular readings in the Theatre on Saturday night. The short poem which she read last night, though not one to give opportunity for varied display in elocution, fully manifested her ability and her practical acquaintance with its principles. The poem was a pretty, touching, simple story, and the difficulty, yet beauty, in reading it, was in the expressive monotone in which much of it had to be given; yet the clear intonation, distinct enunciation, and simple pathos of the reader, made its beauties stand out like stereoscopic figures before the glass.

The lady labored under some disadvantage in commencing before a very crowded audience had fairly got to their seats after the first piece, and in opening with such a simple poem, which allowed of no particular effect. The touching tremulo, towards the close, was so briet, so little of it, and so gently given, that strict attention was required to justly admire it. From the jobil A-02 z 1-11 z sedent 0 Morid to exist little we have heard, we look upon Lisle Lester as a very competent and clever reader.
