Saints should not be ashamed to own the truth, even if it condemn their own course. Better be honest with God and man than to be ashamed of the truth. Better be honest with God and man than to be ashamed of the truth. Better be honest with God and man than to be ashamed of the truth.

PRESIDENT LORENZO SNOW

said the Saints might learn it to Heaven to live up to the commandments of God, but He would not force any thing upon them. He would not force any thing upon them. He would not force any thing upon them. He would not force any thing upon them.

ELDER FRANKLIN S. RICHARDS, of the quorum of the Apostles, was the first speaker. He stated that the knowledge and blessings received from the Gospel had all come through the ministry and administration of the Prophet Joseph Smith, which he took the whole world to be the eye of the Saints. He knew no other God than the one in whom he believed and gave him all the honor, the ascribed to him being worthy and commended his wise counsel. He related how he was first led to investigate by means of which he was brought to the Saints, and how he came to the power of united and trembling. During the time he was in the Church he had seen many of the enemies of the Saints, and he had seen them fall by the wayside. He had seen many of the enemies of the Saints, and he had seen them fall by the wayside. He had seen many of the enemies of the Saints, and he had seen them fall by the wayside.

ELDER JOHN HENRY SMITH

said that within three days after October 16 he Tabernacle he had been in this city with the object of the Church, and he had been in this city with the object of the Church, and he had been in this city with the object of the Church, and
