After the faculty meeting an embargo was placed on all of the teaching force, demanding silence on the entire subject. For that reason it was difficult to learn today what action was taken, but it is understood that the report went to a vote, and except for the fact that some members wanted to give "Cuddy" a chance to stati-bls case, he would have been expelled by a large majority, if not almost unanimous vote. Postponement was taken till this afternoon, and the distaken till this afternoon, and the discovered offender is under orders then to appear before the assembled faculty and explain what reasons he has, if any, why he should not be suspended.

THREATENED REVOLT.

Meanwhile the situation became known to the students. Against the sophomores the freshmen are at war, but they did not cater to faculty in-terference, and a number of them met to consider quitting in a body, if sum-mary action was taken against the other party to the joke. The sopho-mores also met, and made a similar decision. Then at 12 o'clock today President Harold M. Stephens called the presidents of all classes rogether for half an hour. At the end of that time the entire student body was as-sembled and the first business was to pass a resolution requerting the news mass a present to withdraw. It is inderstood that their purpose is to con-It is citiate things as far as possible, and to prevent the students from assuming deflant attitude to their lawful ad

What it is all about, is hard to find out, and the question has three decided sides. One is that of the freshmen, another is that of the sophomores, and the other is that of the faculty, which takes things in a very serious light.

RESULT OF FRIENDLY FEUD.

The incident was apparently the result of the traditional feud which exists between sophomores and freshmen in all colleges. About a month ago, the sophomores gave a party, and when they came to seek their ice cream and vefreshments, they found they were "swiped," and that the freshmen had enjoyed the dinner.

The cost was something like $24, and the sophomores figured that they had this sum coming to them if they could only collect it. An opportunity to do so presented itself last Friday night, when the freshmen gave a party, and a mar stood on the second floor of the building, collecting money, while the dancers were on the floor above. This man was where on the nost a solver in a finite way the class president. Archie McAillster, and the only other man to be figured with was the nightwatchman, whom the sophonores figured out would not shoot, if a man got the drop on him.

"HOLDUPS" ELECTED.

Three men were consequently elect-ed to do the daring holdup deed, while ed to do the daring holdup deed, while others of the class remained outside of the building. They attired themselves as desperados, put on masks, and the three walked up to the innocent look-ing president with the money on a ta-ble before him, and pulled big revol-vers in his face. The revolvers were wooden, except one which was a relie of days before the Clvil war, and hadn't been working for over half a century. The class president, however, was builted, and after letting out a class yell, he put up his hands. BOLLED OUT TOGETHER

ROLLED OUT TOGETHER.

The yell frightened two of the so-phomores, who retreated, leaving Russell to get the money alone, and in is-suing his commands to the president. 'Spike" Hennessy, a big freshman and also a football player, who had started down from upstairs, recognized the down from upstairs, voice of his team mate, and called out who he was. Fear was turned to fight in a minute, and help came from out-side and upstairs both, with the re-sult that Hennessy, McAllister and twe
