

a successful conclusion on account of the rain. Early Sunday morning, however, they did the work and hauled goods valued at about $100 to a ravine above the penitentiary. The boys live in the south-eastern part of the city. They passed last night in the city jail.

Elder John V. Bluth, of Ogden, was a visitor in this city Monday. The gentleman's appearance here at this time was a surprise to his friends as they were of the opinion that he was in Europe doing missionary work. But he returned home on Saturday last on account of poor health, caused by a lung trouble. Elder Bluth's energies were mostly devoted to work on the Millennial Star during his absence from home. His labor there was faithful and good and he would have continued in the same line but for the fact of physical disability. He stood his voyage very well with the exception of a brief spell of distress caused by heavy fogs on the ocean. Now that he has reached a higher altitude and purer atmosphere he is feeling decidedly better. He is welcome home and there are earnest hopes for his rapid and permanent recovery.

All that was mortal of Mrs. John James was laid to rest in the city cemetery Sunday afternoon amidst the weeping of grief stricken friends. The services were held in the Twentieth ward meeting house and were conducted by George Romoey, Bishop. The speakers, Elders George G. Bywater, D. R. Gill, Elias Morris, W. N. Williams and Walter Lewis, spoke feelingly and praiseworthy of the many virtues of the deceased, and prayed God that comfort and consolation might come to her bereaved husband and motherless children. A quartette consisting of Messrs. J. D. Spencer, J. T. Dunbar, T. E. Harper and John Burleigh sang beautifully and sympathetically "Come Ye Disconsolate," "Go Bury Thy Sorrow," and "We Shall meet Beyond the River." There were numerous handsome floral tributes and a large attendance of sympathizing and sorrowing friends.

A terrible accident occurred about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning at Lehi Junction, says the Banner, which resulted in the death of Mr. Henry Winn, a section hand. Mr. Price, the section boss, and his men were about to start on their day's work on the road and went to the hand-car, upon which was lying a loaded gun. It had been left on the car over night. Mr. Price, thinking he would take care of the gun, which was lying with the muzzle towards him, raised it some little and pulled it towards him at the same time. In some unknown manner the hammer was caught and the gun discharged. The charge passed through Mr. Price's coat close to his thigh, passed by Mr. Sorenson who was standing just behind him and struck Mr. Henry Winn in the throat and lower part of the face. Mr. Winn made one or two steps and fell dead, never moving after he fell. He leaves a wife and three children. The sad event has cast a gloom over the whole place.

Died at Salt Lake City, Oct. 22, 1894, of typhoid fever, Miss Grace Mayhew, aged 21 years, 6 months and 2 days. She was the daughter of Elijah and Sarah Mayhew, and at the time she was taken ill she was a student of the University of Utah. She was an estimable young lady, being possessed of many lovable qualities. In her demise Pleasant Grove loses one of its brightest gems, and our citizens mourn the departure of one of its loveliest daughters. The immediate household is plunged into deep sorrow.

The funeral of Miss Grace Mayhew, of Pleasant Grove, took place Thursday under the auspices of the bishopric of that place. The young lady was highly esteemed by all who knew her, and at the University, where she was a student for a brief time this year before being taken ill, she was regarded by the faculty as a student of unusual promise. In accordance with a custom now prevalent, that some member of the faculty should attend the funerals of students when they occur, Dr. Talmage was present at Miss Mayhew's funeral, and was one of the speakers. The ceremonies were largely attended.

There was a most serious runaway accident on South Temple street Thursday and one that was attended with very painful results. The victim was Mrs. Morris Grossman, who was driving a buggy along the thoroughfare named when her horse took fright at the embankments and trench made in the middle of the street for the laying of gas pipes. The vehicle was violently overturned and the lady was thrown to the ground with such force as to be rendered unconscious. In that state she was conveyed to the Temple barber shop by ex-Councilman Daly and Colonel Donellan, who happened to be in the neighborhood at the time. Dr. Fowler was called in and gave directions as to the care of the patient and later she was removed to St. Mark's hospital where she now is in a critical condition. There are serious cuts and bruises about the head and upper part of the body, while internal injuries were also sustained. Inquiry at the hospital today elicited the reply that a speedy recovery is anticipated.

An exciting feature of the case is the reported attempt on the part of the lady's divorced husband to remove a valuable ring from one of her fingers while she was unconscious. But Captain Donovan, who was present, prevented him from carrying out his designs and ordered him away.

Elder M. H. Fitzgerald, of American Fork, reached his home October 14th, on his return from a mission to Virginia. He left for his field May 18th, 1892, and was consequently absent nearly two and a half years. He labored in Virginia during the whole term of his mission, doing missionary work and gathering genealogical data. He met with success in both lines.

In at least one respect, his labors were of a character entirely different from those usual to a "Mormon" Elder in the mission field. Elder Fitzgerald was formerly a resident of Nelson county, in the state named, and was living there when he embraced the Gospel, five years ago. On his return to that vicinity, a number of his old friends solicited him to teach in a public school. Elder Fitzgerald, acting under proper instructions, accepted the position and taught the school for five months during the winter term, the first winter of his mission. He did the same thing the second winter, making ten months of school teaching during his mission. He could have had the school again the coming winter.

Prior to Elder Fitzgerald's conversion to the Gospel, he was a minister of the Campbellite church, and as such had taken out a license and given a bond of $500, in pursuance of the laws of the state. His conversion to Mormonism did not affect his obligations under this bond, and so, when a couple applied to him to be married, he found himself obliged to perform the ceremony, which he did.

Elder Fitzgerald had with him his wife and family, and they enjoyed their visit among their old friends very much, and did considerable good. They enjoyed good health all the time they were absent.

Elder Wm. J. Henderson, of Cannonville, Utah, reached this city Monday, on his return from a mission to West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland. He left Utah October 15th, 1892, and labored the first year and a half in West Virginia. The last six months he spent traveling and laboring in Pennsylvania and Maryland. He met with fair success, and the conference embracing the states named is improving in condition and prospects. The Elders traveling in that field receive very kind treatment as a rule.

Park City Record: There has been recently a complete change in the control of the stock of the Lucky Bill Mining company, and the indications are that under the new management there will be a decided change for the better in the method of developing the property.

Dr. Lindemann, the well known Colorado expert (says the Cheyenne Sun) who has been at work on the Fairview mine at Silver Crown for some time, arrived in this city Friday with 200 pounds of ore taken from a vein at a depth of seventy-three feet. The doctor at once went to Denver, where he will have the ore tested.

The new waterworks at Park City, says the Record, are rapidly nearing completion and house connections will soon be commenced. The cross main from Main street to Marsac avenue was laid this week and the line on that street is now being rushed to completion. Another week's good weather will see the entire system under ground and beyond the reach of frost.
