

BREVITIES.

The crow is a brave bird; he never shows the white feather.

147,771 tons of iron were manufactured in the United States in the year 1887.

Divide the live weight of sheep by 7 and you have the weight of quarters.

Nine farms out of ten in Texas are going to ruin for want of laborers.

"Whistling taught in six easy lessons" is advertised in Connecticut.

A Jewish proverb says, "Commit a sin twice, and you will think it perfectly allowable."

How may you keep eggs from spoiling? By eating them when they are fresh.

Of the revenue of the Atlantic cable 89 per cent. comes from American patronage.

An Editor is a man who teaches wisdom to the world, and often acts like a fool himself. (Our Local.)

"My work is done," said the Countess of Huntingdon, when eighty-four years old; "I have nothing to do but to go to my father."

White gunpowder is now manufactured in France, which leaves no trace in the gun. It is highly spoken of in French military circles.

There is a refinement which even wit and knowledge of the world cannot teach their votaries, who often wound the heart without violating perfect politeness.

A lawyer, being sick, made his last will, and gave all his estate to fools and mad men. Being asked his reason for so doing, he replied, "From such I had it, and to such I give it again."

The Country Gentleman tells of a man who planted ten acres in forest trees when he was married; when his oldest girl was married he cut down $1,600 worth of timber to buy her a fitting out; this he did also for his other children, and they have a good forest left.

Every parent is like a looking-glass for his children to dress themselves by. Therefore, parents should take care to keep the glass bright and clean, and not spotted as their good example is a rich inheritance for the rising generation.

The pompous epitaph of a close-fisted citizen closed with the following passage of Scripture: "He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord." "Dat may be," soliloquized Sambo; "but wen dat man died de Lord did not owe him a red cent!"

The following are among the signs over the shops of traders at Fort Smith, Arkansas: "Campbell And burning felled;" "Ches Nuts billed and Roas;" "Cainseet cheers Reeseted Hear;" "Woshing, ironing, and goin out duin daisward dun Hear."

Because people are married it doesn't follow that they are necessarily happy! Going to a clergyman, ordering half a dozen loaves of cake, a shower of bouquets, and making a tremendous dash in white silks, black coat and all that, never changes nature. You are just what you were before and so is she; and you are sure like the measles, to break out early, and very likely, often.

After Napoleon created General de Fertonnerx a Count, the latter sent to the Mayor of the village where he was born for a copy of the register of his birth. A few days after he received it, and at once returned it to the Mayor as erroneous. The Mayor, to flatter him, had described his father as chevalier, when his father really was simply a cook. The new count wrote to him: "Far from blushing at my origin, I am proud of it. It is not every son of a cook who becomes a General and a Count, and I am solicitous to establish my origin by authentic and legal process."

A certain doctor, who sometimes drank a great deal at dinner, was summoned one evening to see a lady patient when he was more than "half seas over," and conscious that he was so. On feeling her pulse, and finding himself unable to count its beats, he muttered, "Drunk by Jove." Next morning, recollecting the circumstance, he was greatly vexed, and just as he was thinking what explanation to offer to the lady, a letter was put in his hand. "She, too, well knew," said the letter, "that he had discovered the unfortunate condition in which she was when he had visited her, and she entreated him to keep the matter a secret in consideration of the enclosed"—a $100 bill.

A learned professor in a New England college was accustomed to demand of students an excuse whenever they were dilatory at recitation. The excuse given, he invariably added: "Very well but don't let it happen again." One morning a married student happening to be behind time, was promptly interrogated as to the cause. Slightly embarrassed, he replied: "The truth is, sir, I had an addition to my family this morning, and it was not convenient to be here sooner." "Very well," replied the Professor in his quick, nervous manner, "Very well, but don't let it happen again."

Engravings shed their spirit over a household; the calm portraits of the great and worthy dead exercise a great influence over me," says Sidney Smith. "I could look on those over my own fire-place until they seem neither absent nor departed, but living yet. Every good picture is the best of sermons and lectures. The same infuses the soul. Whatever you have, have beauty. Let beauty be on the paper on your walls. It is as easy to choose a paper suggestive of the lovely in form and color as the uncouth. Why should not every household object be sanctified with this grateful charm? Each chair, table, tea or china service, and every object for kitchen or parlor, for the home of the poor man, artisan or mechanic, I would have been as worthy of a home of taste."
