

How Queen Victoria Entertains.

I need not tell you how simple, plain and perfectly English and womanly are the habits and tastes of the Queen. The Prince of Wales, socially, is nothing more than a rich, sporting, pleasure-loving squire. The style of entertainment at the palace, for example, is quite like that of a well-to-do squire. When she comes to London for the early parliamentary season, her favorite method of dispensing hospitality is to give garden parties and "breakfasts" in Buckingham Palace Gardens, or in the private garden of Windsor Castle. Invitations to these are, of course, much sought for, because they are the most select; there you come directly in contact with royalty, and see it more nearly and familiarly than if you dined with the Queen in the case. When you are conducted to the garden by one of the scarlet flunkies of majesty, said flunky is about the only vestige of the Queen's presence in the velvet lawn, or by the side of the pretty miniature lake. If this is in the Buckingham Palace Garden, which is in the very center of fashionable West-end London, the moment you have passed behind the high wall which shuts it out from St. James' Park on one side and Grosvenor place on the other, you would never guess that you were in the midst of the city. The surroundings are more exquisitely and most gloriously rural, and the number of gentlemen and ladies, elegantly dressed, standing about in groups, or partaking of the by no means sumptuous fare which is being served, without ceremony in the tent. The scene is cheerful, elegant, easy and unstrained. You catch a glimpse of the Queen, dressed in black, with here and there a taller in rich white lace, but with no suspicion of finery or grandeur about her; a plain lady, of substantial appearance, of the prime of life, the center of a respectful but by no means adored or abashed circle; receiving those whom she recognizes with a slight smile and a pleasant word, and the presentation of those whom she does not know with a slight bow. There are faces here familiar to you in the windows of the print shop, the nobleman, statesman, minister, ambassador, leaders of society and court fashion; but there is no pretension of manner or carriage. You are surprised above all at the simplicity, the elegant commonplaceness of the whole thing. You may jostle with a duke, a count, a duke of Teck. If perchance you have been at a jeté champagne at some great country house—say at Chatsworth or Belvoir—you say to yourself that this differs in no striking respect from it, unless indeed it differs by its lesser brilliancy and more suggestiveness of simplicity. This is the striking characteristic of modern English royal life. There is a great change even from the old-fashioned George's time. The faded and painted dandy never appeared as a host without being bedizened with stars and lace. To be sure, there are nowadays grand occasions, like the coronation, levees, openings of Parliament, thanksgiving pageants in St. Paul's, and so on, when majesty assumes all the trappings and insignia of rank. But these are the rare exceptions—rare to royalty, but our own birth-day and patriotic anniversaries—to the ordinary routine of royal life.—London Correspondence Boston Post.

THE BOAT RACE.—Cambridge adds another laurel to her wreath. In the annual race which took place yesterday between the two great universities of England there was, of course, the vast multitude which forms so striking a feature of the contest. The English rowing men, who were the row (high tide) happened to fall just before noon. The day was one of those extraordinary spring days one sometimes meets with in England. March, when summer throws all its gladness and beauty into a single welcome. We have not yet begun in America to understand the meaning of this holiday. We have never comprehended the Derby, or a cricket match at Lord's, or a shooting festival at Wimbledon, or the university race on the Thames, and we cannot understand the national character of an event like that of yesterday. All England believes in the light blue or the dark blue, and millions turn aside from the feverish pursuits of business and the chase to watch the fortunes of two groups of athletic young men rowing for a half hour on the Thames. It is, no doubt, a trivial affair in some respects, but we have no events in this country that do not have their trivial aspects. Even Waterloo became a scene of boat snatching and robbery. What we observe is in an event like this boat race is the natural, earnest, hearty love of an Englishman for water and air and green fields, for the finest development of brawn, and the hope that we may come in time to have the same sentiment in America.—N. Y. Herald, March 29.

DANCING.—Henry Ward Beecher says of dancing: "It is wicked when it is wicked, and not wicked when it is not wicked. In itself it has no more, more, than walking, wrestling or rowing. Bad company, untimely hours, evil dances, may make this exercise evil; good company, wholesome hours and home influences may make it a very great benefit." Our frisky old General Tecumseh Sherman says of dancing, "It is wicked, sir, it's good anywhere. It opens the pores, clears the brain, stimulates the digestion and strengthens the muscles, to say nothing of increasing the circulation by the sight of the pretty girls looking about like Venuses, sir, in a sea of white satin. Look at me, sir, look at me." And the venerable railway rooster went off in a pigeon-wing that would have astonished and frightened Elmer. Senators Hamilton and Chandler are of the same opinion. Both of these elderly statesmen begin each morning with a bath and a dance, in which their ancient bones are heard snapping like Chinese characters.—Washington Capital.

Chapped Hands and Face. Sore lips, chapped hands and face, are the result of dry skin. Use the following remedy: Take one ounce of Glycerine, one ounce of Rose Water, and one ounce of Alcohol. Mix them together, and apply to the affected parts. It will cure them in a few days.
