DESERET EVENING NEWS: WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1904.

Recurring to the curtain, Daugherty, Balance January 1, 1903 $ 100,518.51 insisted that it was not a light on the proseenium arch, but the five-foot plank which was used as a platform to sustain the spot light, which obstructed the asbestos curtain. Arrangements for the inquest over the bodies of victims were completed by Coroner Traeger today. Everything snow in readiness for the examination of witnesses when the inquiry begins Thursday. Since the day after the fire the sheriff's office has been busy serving subpoenaes on persons wanted as witnesses. One hundred and forty of them have been summoned. States Attorney Deneen announced today that no special jury would be called to investigate the fire and its at-tendant loss of life. The coroner's jury is making careful inquiry into the cause of the fre and its attendant loss of life, and said he "will undoubtedly fix all responsibility."

STRATTON MINE CASE.

U. S. District Judge Riner Decides For the Defendant.

Denver, Jan. 5.—In the case of the Stratton's Independence Mining com-pany against the executors of the es-tate of the late Winfield S. Stratton, the Cripple Creek millionaire, claiming 6,000,000 damages for the alleged salt-ing of the Independence mine before its sale to the English company, Judge Riner, In the United States court this afternoon, decided for the defendants. The grounds for the defense were: First, that the sale was made by Mr. Stratton to a company of which he was a member, payment being made in Denver, Jan. 5 .- In the case of the Stratton to a company for which he was a member, payment being made in stock, it being held that a man cannot defraud himself; second, the mine pro-duced $10,000,000 in gold since the sale, which is more than the selling price; third, the present suit was filed against the executors of the estate before they had qualified; fourth, the death of Stratton before the filling of the suit ended, according to English law, under which the company is incorporated, any may have had. Judge Riner held that any one of the four grounds for de-fore... may have had. Judge Riner heid that any one of the four grounds for de-fense is sufficient. The attorneys for the plaintiff were given permission to present arguments on a bill of excep-
