LIEUT. GEO. C. KIDDER
As He Appears Today.

Among the G. A. R. veterans resident in Salt Lake City who saw active service during the greater part of the Civil war is George C. Kidder of 809 Park avenue. Mr. Kidder enlisted Aug. 6, 1862, as a private in Company G of the One Hundred and Thirtieth Illinois regiment. During the war Mr. Kidder served under Gen. W. T. Sherman in the campaigns of the western armies, and took part in the siege and capture of Vicksburg under Gen. Grant. During the assaults upon this stronghold of the Mississippi River, Kidder was made second lieutenant of his company for meritorious services, and he was wounded on the field in front of the Vicksburg trenches. Lieut. Kidder was made second lieutenant of his company for meritorious services, and he was wounded on the field in front of the Vicksburg trenches. Lieut. Kidder was made second lieutenant of his company for meritorious services, and he was wounded on the field in front of the Vicksburg trenches.

LIEUT. GEO. C. KIDDER
At the Close of the War.

Great Salt Lake, and which was afterward given the name Lake Bonneville in honor of the brave captain who explored it. Capt. Bonneville had a remarkable record, having graduated from West Point in the year 1815, remaining on front duty until 1828. Starting out with the exploring party in 1821, he was not again heard of until 1828, and the war department, thinking him dead, dropped his name from the army roster. He returned, however, and was restored to the army and served through the Florida and Mexican wars, becoming major in 1848 and brevet colonel in 1847. He became colonel in 1855 and was assigned to the command of the department of New Mexico, and in 1857 he commanded the Gila expedition. In 1881 he was retired from active service for disability, and during the Civil war served as superintendent of the recruiting service and chief disbursing officer in Missouri. It was here that Lieut. Kidder met Capt. Bonneville, and served under him in his jurisdiction in the department of Missouri.

Soon after his enlistment Mr. Kidder's company was ordered to Memphis and joined Morgan L. Smith's division. With that division and two others Gen. Sherman marched in November to reinforce Grant at College Hill, Miss. On arrival there Sherman was ordered back to Memphis with Smith's division to organize and command what was afterwards known as the Yazoo expedition. With this expedition, consisting of three divisions of troops on transports and a strong flotilla of gunboats, Sherman moved from Memphis in December, and at the latter end of the month entered the Yazoo river and made an assault on Chickasaw Bluffs, one of the defenses of Vicksburg. The assault failed with a loss of 1,700 men. Sherman then moved up the Arkansas and assaulted Fort Hindman, which was captured with all its garrison of 7,000 men. He then returned to Young's Point, opposite Vicksburg. Sherman was there joined by Gen. Grant with additional forces. At this time army corps were formed, and Smith's division, in which Mr. Kidder served, was under the command of Gen. David Stuart, who was soon replaced, however, by Gen. Frank P. Blair and became the second division. The fifteenth corps with Gen. Sherman commanding. The division from that time on participated in all the clashes and sieges that finally resulted in the surrender of Vicksburg on July 4, 1863. On the occasion of Grant's memorable assault of May 18, 1863, Private Kidder was wounded and four days later he was promoted to be second lieutenant for gallant service on the field. Lieut. Kidder came out of the Vicksburg campaign with a heavy case of fever, and spent some weeks in the hospital. On recovery he came in command of his company, through the absence of the captain and first lieutenant on other duty. Lieut. Kidder served in the capacity of company commander until he was made a prisoner the following year.

After Vicksburg the regiment, much depleted by hard service, was transferred from the Fifteenth to the Sixteenth Corps and ordered to Corinth, Miss. From that time until the close of the war the regiment served on garrison duty and in campaigns against the Confederate forces in northern Mississippi and western Tennessee. Clashes with these forces were of frequent occurrence, and in one of the minor affairs that occurred near Ripley, Miss., on June 11, 1864, Lieut. Kidder was made a prisoner. He was confined at Macon, Ga., from whence he was transferred to Charleston, S. C., where he was under the fire of Union batteries and was wounded on two occasions. He was confined at what the soldiers called "Camp Sorghum" and Columbia, S. C., and was finally released at Wilmington, N. C., on March 1, 1865. He was then ordered to St. Louis, Mo., where Capt. Bonneville was mustered out on May 15, 1865. Bonneville was then over 70 years old.

Some of Lieut. Kidder's experiences while a prisoner are extremely interesting, and some of them were funny. At Charleston, while confined in the department of the prison assigned to officers, a certain southern banker by the name of Potter made a little business proposition to the prisoners which was eagerly accepted by them. It was well known that prisoners in the south were none too well treated, and at Charleston was no exception to the rule. It was almost impossible to get sufficient to eat, and absolutely impossible to get anything to wear; what the prisoners wore was all the clothing they possessed until their final release. The days of the war were nearing the end, and the banker thought to profit by the position of the prisoners. Being officers he had entire confidence in the affluence of the prisoners, and he agreed to take them at the rate of three to one. This proposition was taken up by the officers, and in return for $600 Confederate money they gave Banker Potter their rifles, $200 United States money on northern banks. "While Confederate money was not worth much at that time even in the south," said Lieut. Kidder, "the boys accepted the $600 and from that time on they were able to buy food from the southern prison officials. The excellent physical condition which those officers were in at the termination of their imprisonment was entirely due to the business foresight of Banker Potter, who considerably traded them the Confederate money for goods on northern banks. Every member of an officer executed his draft for the $200 exchange, but to my knowledge never one of them was cashed. Most of them were drawn on banks of the existence of which the prisoners had no knowledge, whatever, and which, perhaps never had an existence in the business world."

The accompanying portraits show Lieut. Kidder when he was mustered out at the close of the war, and as he appears today. He is a fair exemplification of the men with strong and hardy physique who gave of their strength to the nation in time of need, and who now, in their advancing years, are honored by a grateful nation for their patriotism and for their service through the Civil war.

Ralph R. Grant, better known as "Rollie" Grant, residing at 46 south First West street served his country to maintain the Union, from April 20, 1861 to May 28, 1863, and during that time saw "great deal" of fighting, passed through many hardships and escaped without being wounded. "I enlisted at Ogdensburg, N. Y., April 20, 1861," said Capt. Grant, "and went with the Third brigade, First division of the Sixth army corps. If I remember rightly the First brigade was made up of the following regiments: I was in the first battle of Bull Run, and was with Franklin in the army of the Potomac. "I was also present and participated in the first battle of Fairfax courthouse where we lost one man. Then I was in that memorable seven days' fight under McClellan on the Chickasaw Bluffs at Malvern Hill, Harrison's landing. "I guess the worst experience I had was the fight at Cold Spring Mills. We went into the fray with 340 men and within 15 minutes or so 168 were killed and many wounded. I was carrying my rifle on my right shoulder, holding it rather low across my back. A bullet struck the rifle and glanced off without injuring me. We were on the retreat then and I remember my brother, A. M. Grant, stooping over and tussling with his shoe. I ran back to him and demanded to know why he did not run. He replied: "How in blazes can I run when my shoe is not tied?" He finished with the job and then joined us. "I recall an amusing incident that happened at the battle of Bull Run. There was a young lieutenant, whose name I have forgotten, mounted on a horse. He came to a creek and after giving his horse a drink, concluded to take one himself. As he squatted down he accidentally sat on his spurs. With a yell and then a groan he fell flat on the ground and began to beg for quarter. He thought he had been shot. "As I said before, I was with Newton who blew up Hellgate, and I was also with Burnside, but it is so long ago I do not recall many particulars of the different engagements."

A BARK CAMPFIRE AT ASSEMBLY HALL

Songs and Music Heroically Did Their Best to Lighten Up the Situation.

With the lights all out at Assembly Hall last night, the program for the campfire was continued by the aid of matches and when these ran out, strips of paper were put into service. The program had just started when the lights sputtered, got weaker and finally ceased to shed a ray of light. Col. George B. Squires, chairman of the meeting, was just about to announce the first number when the darkness came. John Held and his band, not to be outdone by the elements, started to play "Marching Through Georgia." As the lights still did not come on, Col. Squires announced that Henry M. Neivous, commander-in-chief, and J. Kent Hamilton, senior vice commander-in-chief, and Charles C. Boyce, junior vice commander-in-chief, who were on the program for addresses, could not appear. The Douglas mixed quartet was then called. In the darkness some one sang—in fact several did—but who they were the persons who heard them are unable to say. When some one started to play "America" on the piano the entire audience joined in.

Mrs. Emma Ramsey Morris sang "The Flag Without a Stain," and on request sang "Annie Laurie." It was at this time that some one appeared with a lantern which was placed on the speaker's desk. Miss Edna Evans then sang "Our Own United States."

Some one called for Robert Barton of Moscow, Idaho, for an address, and out of the dark came to voice of a man who said: "We have no sympathy for that teaching which would give peace. We believe in war, and believe we should be ready for it at all times. We believe that when anarchy tries to break down the republican form of government, we should resist it to the last drop of blood. We believe in teaching the lesson of patriotism so strongly that and so thoroughly that we shall never again witness such a crime as the killing of our president. A government which seeks to destroy government."

Comrade Dovine of Colorado then recited Robert Ingersoll's "Vision of War," and he was followed by S. W. J. Gilman of Pasadena, Cal., who recited an original poem.

The meeting closed with the singing of "Marching Through Georgia" by Mrs. Morris. The entire evening of entertainment was spent in darkness and but two lanterns aided the chairman in getting an outline of the program.

People with chronic bronchitis, asthma and lung trouble, will find great relief and comfort in Foley's Honey and Tar, and can avoid suffering by commencing to take it at once. F. J. Hill Drug Co. ("The Never Substitutors.")

BADGER CLUB HOSPITALITY.
Members of the G. A. R., their friends and relatives as well as any person from Wisconsin, are being given a royal welcome by the Badger club, which has quarters at 214 Boston building. Although things were put together in a hurry, every effort will be made to make the stay of the Wisconsinites pleasant.

E. D. R. Thompson is president of the club and a number of members are assisting him in presenting the banquet to Wisconsin. Among the arrivals is William H. Olderslev of Waupaca, who is 81 years of age. He was the first to arrive and instead of taking the elevator he preferred to walk up the stairs. Former Gov. William Upham is among the earliest arrivals. A. G. Weissert, former commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., is expected to arrive tomorrow morning. Phil Cheek of Baraboo, well known as a member of the "Iron Brigade," has arrived.

DEATH OF A. W. WINBERG.
Well Known Scandinavian of Nineteenth Ward Goes to Great Beyond.

After attending the services at the tabernacle Sunday afternoon, Anders Wilhelm Winberg, possibly one of the best known Scandinavians in Salt Lake, returned home apparently in the best of health only to pass away at 7 o'clock the next morning.

Mr. Winberg was born April 30, 1839, at Lund, Sweden, and joined the Church in 1861. He performed a mission in 1862 and organized the first branch of the Church in Sweden at Shonabeck, Skone. In 1864 he emigrated to Utah coming to Salt Lake where he built the houses in which he lived for the remainder of his life. For 20 years he was president of the Scandinavian meetings and was a member of the high council of the old Salt Lake stake for 28 years. In 1875 he started the Bikuben, the official Scandinavian organization of the Church. He was a good humble citizen universally known by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance.

Funeral services will be held from the Nineteenth ward meetinghouse Friday at 3 p. m. WASHINGTON'S PLAGUE SPOTS. Lie in the low, marshy bottoms of the Potomac, the breeding grounds of malaria. JUDGE POMEROY ACCEPTS THE JOB

Wires Manager Finn That He Will Be Here in a Few Days—Starter Dwyer is Also Coming.

This morning Manager W. W. Finn of the Utah Jockey club, which is to promote a 30-day meeting beginning September 18, at the old Buena Vista race track, announced that he had heard from Judge P. P. Pomeroy and that the latter had accepted the position of presiding judge of the meeting. Starter Richard Dwyer, who has been officiating at the barrier in Canada, has wired that he will be here on time for the opening of the races and also that he will send down a bunch of fast Canadian horses.

The water supply at the track is much better than was at first supposed. Manager Finn set a big gang of men to work cleaning out the flowing wells. There is a big supply of water from the wells, but most of them have been clogged up. When once thoroughly cleaned out there will be no lack of aqua pura.

A number of horses that raced in Butte are on their way here and long before the opening of the meeting Manager Finn expects between three and four hundred speedy equines will be quartered at the track.

S.S.S. NATURE'S PERFECT TONIC

Something more than an ordinary tonic is required to restore health to a weakened, run-down system; the medicine must possess blood-purifying properties as well, because the weakness and impurity of the circulation is responsible for the poor physical condition. The blood does not contain the necessary quantity of rich, red corpuscles, and is therefore a weak, watery stream which cannot afford sufficient nourishment to sustain the system in ordinary health. A poorly nourished body cannot resist disease, and this explains why so many persons are attacked by a spell of sickness when the use of a good tonic would have prevented the trouble. In S. S. S. will be found both blood-cleansing and tonic qualities combined. It builds up weak constitutions by removing all impurities and germs from the blood, thus supplying a certain means for restoring strength and invigorating the system. The healthful, vegetable ingredients of which S. S. S. is composed make it splendidly fitted to the needs of those systems which are delicate from any cause. It is Nature's Perfect Tonic, free from all harmful minerals, a safe and pleasant acting medicine for persons of every age. S. S. S. rids the body of that tired, worn-out feeling so common at this season, improves the appetite and digestion, tones up the stomach, acts with pleasing effects on the nervous system, and reinvigorates every portion of the body.

TETON VALLEY

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITIES.

It has the greatest natural resources, such as fuel, coal and timber, pure water, abundance of grazing lands, and miles of fertile prairie and meadow lands. The soil is most fertile and productive, the yield of grain, per acre, is from 40 to 110 bushels per acre; wheat from 25 to 60; fruit water berries, and all kinds of hay, such as alfalfa, clover and timothy, grow large and thrifty. It is the home of the stock and the sheep man. Two hundred miles of the choicest stock range of the west. We have the cheapest irrigated lands in America. Our improved and unimproved lands are selling with perpetual water rights, from $15 to $20 per acre. Here are a few of the many bargains which we have to offer: One hundred and sixty acres of heavy, loamy soil, fenced; has a three-roomed house, barn and out buildings; 50 acres into alfalfa and clover, 50 acres of grain, perpetual water right, nice location, price $25.00 per acre.

Here is to the stock man. We have 320 acres adjoining the range, independent water right, puts up about 250 tons of hay; nice four or five-roomed house; good out buildings; will thrash 1,500 bushels of grain. Price, if taken now, $25.00 per acre.

The half has not been told. We have a first class steam saw mill, located in millions of timber; can be bought at a bargain. For particulars see our Mr. Winger, at the Windsor Hotel, Salt Lake City, from August 7 to 14, or address
