

ALDRICH FORCES ARE INVINCIBLE

Time After Time Senator Dolliver And "Progressive" Republicans Went Down to Defeat.

FINANCE COMMITTEE WON.

Party Lines Broken—McEnery of Louisiana Only Democrat Voting With the Republicans.

Washington, June 10.—Time and time again Senator Dolliver and eight or nine others of the so-called "Progressive" Republicans went down to defeat in their efforts to break the ranks of the Aldrich forces on the wool schedule of the tariff bill. Senator Dolliver offered numerous amendments looking to a reduction of the finance committee rates, but in each instance the amendments were voted down and the committee sustained. The first of Mr. Dolliver's suggestions had for its object the confining duty on mixed cloths to the wool in them. This amendment was defeated by a vote of 31 to 42. Mr. Warren contended that the object of this provision was to prevent the importation of cheap cloths, but Mr. Dolliver argued that there might be some people who would be benefited by having cheap cloths, brought in from abroad.

On this vote, Mr. Dolliver was supported by Senators Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Clapp, Cummins, LaFollette and Nelson, while Senator McEnery of Louisiana was the only Democratic senator who voted with the Republicans against the amendment. Many of Mr. Dolliver's amendments were along the same lines as the first, and in the entire series the vote was virtually the same. In no instance did any of the Republican senators change. One of Mr. Dolliver's amendments was identical in terms with a provision suggested by Mr. Aldrich as a part of the McKinley tariff bill of 1888, but the Rhode Island senator refused to accept it, saying the conditions were entirely different now from what they were in those days. In the course of a discussion between Senators Aldrich and Owen on the duty on blankets, the fact was brought out that blankets paid at the rate of 150 per cent ad valorem.

In this connection, the chairman of the finance committee was given an opportunity to accept a general provision prohibiting any rates in the schedule above 100 per cent, but he declined to do so because, as he said, it might let in foreign wool manufactures. The debate throughout the day was good-natured and Mr. Dolliver discussed polka dots, corn plasters, home motes and kindred subjects with much humor. He seemed to have real feeling over the tears of the eyes of the Irish potatoes.

The wool schedule occupied the attention of the senate throughout the entire day and on this account consideration of the proposed income tax, which had been set for today, was postponed until tomorrow. The house was in session just 11 minutes, transacting little business, before adjournment until Monday.

"PROGRESSIVES" DETERMINED. The "Progressives" came into the HEAD OF SOUTH POLE EXPEDITION, WHOM KING EDWARD WILL HONOR.

An extensive demonstration is being planned in London to honor Lieutenant Shackleton, the antarctic explorer, when he shall return in the next fortnight. Lieutenant Shackleton will visit King Edward and will receive a medal and some decoration that has not yet been publicly announced. Several members of the expedition to the south pole have already arrived in London and are being lionized on all sides. These form the advance guard of the exploring party, and they have brought back many interesting geological and faunal specimens from the locked antarctic circle.

Senate today determined to continue their fight against the wool schedule, although all the votes taken yesterday demonstrated the ability of the committee on finance to maintain a majority of 10 or 12 on all the provisions it had recommended.

Shortly after the senate met, a vote of 31 to 42 was cast against the contention of Mr. Dolliver that only the wool in yarn should be taxed, thus upholding the committee on finance. Nine Republicans, Beveridge, Bristow, Burnett, Brown, Clapp, Cummins, Dolliver, LaFollette and Nelson, voted against the committee, as did Senator Foster of Louisiana, although his colleague, Mr. McEnery, cast his vote with the Republicans in support of the committee.

Before this vote was taken Senator Warren declared that the purpose of levying the duty on the entire weight of the yarn was to keep out material that was mixed with cheap cotton.

Mr. Dolliver claimed there was nothing surreptitious in the mixing of cotton and wool in making cheap yarns, and said there was no good reason for discriminating against such cheap material.

Continuing his effort to tax only the wool in fabrics made partly of cotton, Mr. Dolliver offered a substitute for that purpose for the paragraph relating to cloths, knits and other fabrics and manufactures made in whole or in part of wool. He insisted that it was practicable to assess the wool in the fabric, and, commenting on his proposed substitute, convulsed the senate with his witty retorts and his humorous allusions to peculiarities in the Dingley law. Even cotton cloth with polka dots of wool glued on them were, under the law, he said, obliged to pay the full duty that would be levied on them if wholly of wool.

"Then the senator wants to lower the limit on that polka dot game," interposed Senator Warren.

"I hope the senator will not introduce mysterious figures of speech with which I am not at all familiar," responded the Iowa.

DUTY ON MOTTOES.

Even "Home, Sweet Home" and "Welcome" mottoes, he said, were subject to pay duty under the wool schedule. Corn plasters when made of wool were obliged to pay tribute to the wool schedule, under a decision that had declared them to be "wearing apparel."

Referring to his apparent inability to affect the recommendations of the committee on finance, Mr. Dolliver said that when the bill was finally enacted it might be quite different from its appearance at present.

"Then," he said, "the potatoes of the senator from Delaware, with tears in their eyes, may go out of the bill, meeting the stockings of the senator from Pennsylvania coming in."

The substitute was defeated by a vote of 39 to 42, with the same division that had been shown in the previous vote. Offering other amendments, Mr. Dolliver said they were exact copies of paragraphs reported to the committee on finance in 1888, a few months prior to the enactment of the McKinley law, and then approved by both Senator Aldrich and the late Senator Allison. He hoped that their antiquity and the authority that had been behind them would recommend them to senators.

But they were voted down. Rejecting a suggestion by Mr. Clapp that all of his amendments bearing on the wool schedule and for the same general purpose of those previously offered be presented and voted on by one recall, Mr. Dolliver proceeded to offer them one by one, demanding a rollcall on each. The votes developed no change of party lines from that shown by the first vote taken after the senate met today.

Becoming engaged with Mr. Carter in a debate on the protective tariff system as the subject, Mr. Bacon declared he would place the wool industry in Montana on the same basis as the cotton industry of Georgia, and would not tax the people of Georgia to allow the sheepherders in Montana to live in hotels, as had been suggested by the senator from Montana.

AMENDMENTS BY DOLLIVER.

A series of amendments by Mr. Dolliver of women's and children's dress goods, ready-made clothing, suspenders, and first levying the duty on wool contents of the goods and then providing a direct reduction of duties, were all voted down.

Mr. Dolliver also next offered an amendment limiting to 100 per cent the duty on any article. Mr. Aldrich opposed both the levying of duties according to the wool in the fabric and also the limitation of duty to 100 per cent.

A long discussion, in which Senators Aldrich, Clapp, Beveridge, Dolliver and Smoot took part, in its subject the practicability of ascertaining the quantity and quality of wool in cloth for the purpose of levying a duty, and also the practicability of a protective measure so determining what the duty should be. On the one hand, members of the finance committee contended that the proposition was impracticable from a number of points of view, while the other senators took the opposing view.

A merry discussion of causes for the low prices of wool was indulged in by Senators McClure and Heyburn.

The Wilson tariff bill was blamed by the senator from Mississippi presented figures to relieve the Wilson bill of this charge.

By a vote of 32 to 43, Mr. Dolliver's amendment for the limiting duties to 100 per cent was voted down.

Another amendment by Mr. Dolliver, limiting to 60 per cent the duty on wool waste and other by-products of woolen goods, was lost, 27 to 39.

As the wool schedule was still before the senate, Senator Bailey obtained unanimous consent to bring up the income tax amendment tomorrow, instead of today, which had been previously agreed upon.

Another amendment by Mr. Dolliver based the duty on wool on the percentage of its shrinkage. He did not believe this amendment would actually lower the duty, but thought it would have the opposite effect. The amendment was rejected, 31 to 37.

COPPER KING IN CLASH WITH FEDERAL COURT.

F. Augustus Heinze, the Montana and New York capitalist and head of the United Copper company, is in a spirited clash with the federal court in New York city. The court ordered the directors of the copper company to produce certain books in the government inquiry into Heinze's methods, but they found themselves unable to do so because Heinze had the books in his possession. The United Copper company case has attracted widespread attention because of the indictments resting against Heinze for his part in failures following the panic of 1907.
