Just how the fire spread to a quantity of clothing is a mystery, but the family was alarmed by smoke issuing from the room, and when they opened the door were astonished to find a blaze in the room. UTAH STAKE CONFERENCE.

Interesting Discourses by Prests. Joseph F. Smith and Francis M. Lyman and Others.

DESTINY OF THE CHURCH.

Not Hindered But Fulfilled by Reason Of Opposition—Young Men Should Be Taught Gospel at Home.

Special Correspondence.

Provo, Jan. 16.—The quarterly stake conference of the Utah stake commenced Saturday forenoon with an unusually large congregation for the first day of conference.

There were present Presidents John and Joseph F. Smith, and other stake officers and local authorities of the several wards.

Interesting and instructive discourses were delivered by Elders Joseph B. Keeler, J. H. Frisby and George H. Brimhall.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

At the afternoon session President David John reported the stake in a very gratifying condition, there being commensurate harmony in all departments thereof, and the bishops of the several wards were faithful and diligent. Few cases of difficulty were brought before the High Council. President John advised that difficult cases between individuals be settled quickly, and each try to excel in mercy and forbearance. The speaker felt that the Church was never in a better condition than at present.

Reports were given on the following wards and organizations: Springville First ward, by Counselor J. H. Manwaring.

Provo Fourth ward, by Bishop E. D. Partridge.

Y. M. I. A. Supt. J. E. Hickman.

Sunday School, Supt. L. E. Eggertsen.

Religious classes, Counselor A. F. Acord.

High Priests quorum, President J. E. Booth.

Elders quorums, Elder J. L. Brown, who reported the work of the committee recently appointed to aid the Elders in their work.

SUNDAY FORENOON.

There was a large congregation at the opening of the forenoon session of the stake conference, Sunday. The conference was opened by the president, President Joseph F. Smith and President F. M. Lyman and Elder John Henry Smith of the quorum of Apostles.

President Lyman was the first speaker. He spoke of the glory of the work of the Lord, and expressed the belief that the members of the Church, in their hearts, were moving through the experiences through which they had passed, and by the blessing of the testimony of the truth given by the Holy Ghost. This prevented the Saints from being seriously disturbed by the opposition of the evil one, and by evil designing men, and established them firmly in the faith of the Gospel. The head of the Church was Jesus Christ, and it was so organized that it could not be divided, notwithstanding all the opposition directed against it. The people had advanced so far that they could not be shaken if they did right individually.

President Lyman urged all to seek for and obtain a testimony of the Gospel, and a testimony that the Gospel had been restored through the Prophet Joseph Smith. This Gospel contained everything needed for the happiness and salvation of the human family here and hereafter. A testimony of its truth would be given to all who lived up to the requirements of the Gospel.

Elder John Henry Smith spoke also on testimony and said that by observing the laws of God, and through the blessings of the testimony of the Holy Ghost, men could become so established in the truth that no matter what happened, they would not fear for the safety and stability of the Church; they might fear for themselves or for men, but they would not fear for the stability of the Church. Oftentimes men, who set themselves up in opposition to the Church, claim the name of God, but some of their brethren are wrong. But no matter how well equipped they may have been in leadership they always failed. The promise given in the beginning, that every weapon raised against Zion should fail had been fulfilled, and nothing remained of the labors of those who left the Church in the days of Joseph, and had sought to advance some purpose in opposition to the organization of the Church. This had been true in the time of the leadership of President Brigham Young, and those who succeeded him, and would continue to be true, for the work had been established, never again to be taken from the earth. He said sometimes men are amazed at the claim of the believers in the Reorganized church, that the work of the Lord should rest for a child to grow to manhood, so that he could dedicate in the ordinance thereof. The progress of the work since the days of the organization of the Church by the Prophet Joseph Smith, which had been gradual and uninterrupted in the spread of the Gospel, the extending of borders of Zion and growth of the moral and spiritual life of the people, was earnestly prevented, and the declaration made that the work would remain and increase as had been decreed by the Almighty.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

At the afternoon services the general and stake authorities were sustained. The following are the officers of the Relief society stake presidency, as lately reorganized by reason of the death of the president, Mrs. Mary John Mart: A. F. Keeler, president; Angelina Holbrook, first counselor; Inez Knight Allen, second counselor; Aida-Marilla M. Daniels, Perrie Bunnell, Julia Maycoy, Elizabeth Brown, Della I. Booth, Maud Taylor, Jane Jones, secretary.

May Ashworth Booth (treasurer, Pauline Bean).

President Joseph F. Smith presented the names of Benjamin Cluff, Sr., to be sustained for ordination to the office of Patriarch. Elder Cluff was unanimously sustained.

President Smith told of the recent visit to the birthplace of the Prophet Joseph Smith, and the dedication of the monument raised in the Prophet's honor, giving a description of the monument, and the manner in which it had been erected. He said that it had been very difficult, on account of the size of the stones for the monument.

The people enjoyed by the company when they met on December 21 to commemorate the birthday anniversary of the Prophet and dedicate the monument, had been one of humble reverence, and gratitude to God. The people from the neighborhood who attended the services had been very kind and respectful, and the reports of the visit in the newspapers indicated that the company was considered a remarkable lot of men and women.

The account of the trip and the interesting incidents connected with it held the attention of the large congregation through its entire recital.

President Smith told of Mr. Frank P. Bennett's fine dairy of 150 cows, near Boston, where the animals were kept better than any animals President Smith had ever seen, and while the dairy venture of Mr. Bennett was only for his amusement, it was a profitable investment. The speaker referred to this for the encouragement of the farmers, and that they might cultivate a spirit of kindness to their animals.

The people everywhere along the trip had treated the company with the greatest courtesy, and the visits had been in every respect an enjoyable one. The different places, which had been the home of the Prophet and the Latter-day Saints from Vermont to New York, and had finally led to the top of the everlasting hills, were referred to by President Smith, and the opinion expressed that there was no other land than the Rocky Mountains suitable for the people of the Lord to work out the Lord's purposes. The forces which had compelled the people to move to the foot of the mountains were permitted for the fulfillment of the purposes of the Almighty, and His hand had been in it all, that the people might grow in intelligence and good will, and have an example to all the world. The people had never been driven but what they had been augmented and strengthened, and the Lord would bring good out of all opposition to His Church, and the defamers of the Church would be ashamed and the refuge of liars shrivel and shrink, while the work of the Lord would stand forth in increased stability and glory.

At the close President Smith stated that there were seven young men in the Brigham Young university attending the missionary department. He very much deprecated the need for this special work. The necessity for young men being acquainted with the principles of the Gospel, before they go to the world as missionaries was forcibly presented. This knowledge, however, he said should be so thoroughly implanted in their hearts, that there would be no necessity for giving special instruction to prospective missionaries.

At the close President Smith reverted to the folly of some men who held theories of the origin of God and the creation of the world, which they advocated and tried to impress upon their associates in quorums and elsewhere. They did not know anything about these things, and if they did refrain from advocating their cranky notions they should be dealt with. President Smith spoke the entire time of the afternoon session and delivered a most kindly, spirited and interesting discourse.

M. I. A. CONFERENCE.

The Tabernacle was again filled Sunday evening at the M. I. A. conference. The speakers were Mrs. Alice K. Smith, Elder George H. Brimhall, Mrs. Susan Young Gates, President Joseph F. Smith and President F. M. Lyman. Each of the speakers gave valuable counsel and instructions to the young people of the Church, and a powerful sermon on personal purity.
