DECEMBER 14.
 1563—The famous French prophet, De Nostradamus, born; died 1568.
 1793—Charles Wolfe, poet, born in Dublin; died 1823. Wolfe's best known production is his celebrated ode on the burial of Sir John Moore. He died at the age of 32. After graduating from cloud of uncertainty which hangs over South Africa just now like a blight may mean the return of activity to the yards of the master builders and the return of regular subscriptions to the coffers of trade unions.

 In the meantime the masters are in the slough and the men are clearing out. Every boat train that leaves here now takes with it a number of skilled artisans who have been earning a living here since the war. Some are returning home, more are seeking in New York and Buenos Ayres the prosperity which has temporarily taken leave of Johannesburg, and hundreds are tramping wearily the streets of Johannesburg and along the reef, exhausting their savings and their boot leather in the fruitless quest for work. Not fewer than 200 bricklayers are unemployed in Johannesburg, and about as many more have left the town during the last couple of months. It must be remembered that the influx, which was considerable at one time, has been non-existent for months.

"ALL NONSENSE" SAYS H. H. ROGERS.

The Standard Oil magnate, Henry H. Rogers, is not among those who think the country is bound for the "demonstration how wows." In a recent article he said:

Don't be a pessimist. Believe in yourself and your country. We are entering upon an era of development and prosperity unparalleled in the history of the world. The young man who realizes this fact is the young man who will succeed. This country is all right. There are a lot of fellows, scoundrels and incompetents, standing around the street-corners, trying to fight nature. But they can't keep this country back. The resources of this great land have only been scratched. The next fifty years will see wonders in the way of development that even we do not dream of. That's why I say to you young men, don't be pessimistic. Get into the fight and do a man's part. There never were so many opportunities as there are today. You hear a heap of fool talk about there being no chances for young men today. The "trusts" have invaded and preempted every field of endeavor—that is the cry on every hand. Nothing is further from the truth. The trusts, so-called have barely touched the resources that lie waiting for some one to develop. Better chances 40 years ago? Nonsense. Believe in yourself. Have something definite to do, and do it. That's all there is to success in life.

Too many young men want success before they have earned it. They become discouraged before they have half tried. That's why the shop of life is strewn with wreckage. It is my belief that business in this country will always be conducted along cooperative lines. The old days of dog eat dog are over. But why should that be? Just look at this vast country; think of the million upon million of acres that lie arid and waste in the West. The mining resources of this country are at present the richest in the world, but men who know tell us that the future will develop mineral wealth that will make the present look small and pitiful. Don't let the trust bugaboo scare you. I believe that a man should have decided his vocation in life and settled down to it in dead earnest by the time he is thirty years of age. The great trouble with our boys is that they don't like work. They like to sit on a high stool, wear a high collar, and oggle the girls. The way to get along is to go to work. And by that I mean go to work with your hands. No man ever learned a business in the office. What does the president of a railroad do with his son? Does he get him a job in the office? Not much. The boy goes into the shop and learns how to do things worth while. Then after he has shown that his hands will support his head—that is to feed him—he is given a chance to show that his head can support his hands.

And another thing; get married. There's nothing like a good wife to make a man hustle. Just look around you and you'll find that nine out of ten successful men of affairs have married early in life.

MONUMENT TO A VIVISECTED DOG.

The fountain herewith pictured has recently been erected at Battersea, England, as a memorial to a vivisectioned dog. The inscription tells how and when the animal died and also names his slayer. Before the town authorities would permit the fountain to be put up they required a bond for $2,000 from the Antivivisection society as protection against possible libel action.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

While the electric furnace cannot compete with other processes in the general production of iron and steel, Dr. R. S. Clutton, the British metallurgist, finds that it may be used to advantage where waterpower is cheap, and that it has a fairly clear field in the manufacture of iron alloys not easily made in the blast furnace. Many electric plants have been established in Savoy and Laere, in the south of France, the furnaces ranging from 20 to 2,000 horsepower. At Grenoble five furnaces of 1,200-horsepower and four of 2,000-horsepower are used to produce ferro-silicon, ferro-chromium, silicon-silica of varying composition, and ferro-silico-silica, and the output is between 4,000 and 8,000 tons a year. The Grand works, soon to be enlarged, have an output of about $7,000,000 per year from furnaces of 10,000-horsepower. The product is 5,000 tons of ferro-silicon of 50 per cent and 1,000 tons of 30 per cent, 2,000 tons of ferro-chromium, 900 tons of ferro-tungsten, 50 tons of ferro-molybdenum, and 10 tons of ferro-vanadium.

A new optical illusion, reported by Douglas Carnegie of Newcastle-on-Tyne, is produced by a thaumatrope card, with a cage pictured on one side and a bird on the other. This is viewed from a distance of five feet or more while it is rotating on a vertical median axis about two revolutions a second and when the observer closes one eye the card appears instantly to change its direction of rotation, becoming also tilted.

telephone, which was brought out a considerable time ago by the Hon. C. A. Parsons of steam turbine fame. The apparatus, designed to add to the effects of stringed instruments, includes a blower, which supplies air from the basement of the building, and a comb-like valve of aluminum, which is connected with the wood of the instrument near the bridge and vibrates with the tones produced by the player's bow. The valve controls the exit of air from a small box fed from the blower into a large spiral-shaped trumpet. The sound-waves emitted from the trumpet are identical in quality and intonation but richer in tone and larger in volume than those of the unaided instrument; and the device, being adapted not only to the double bass but to every instrument in the string band, seems to make possible a great economy in the number of instruments needed for many orchestral purposes, a quartet doing the work of the 15 first violins, 15 seconds, and so on.

The lions of East Africa are becoming greatly interested in railway operations. The Uganda railroad has 25 small stations in the 54 miles between the Indian ocean and Victoria Nyanza, and in the last year the animals have frequently visited these lonely places, especially the one at the station at Mbaraka, where, with a water-tank and a urinal. The curiosity of the creatures is decidedly evincing to the East Indian station agents. One lion passed several successive nights at the Simba station, walking about, scratching at the office door, and sleeping on the platform.

The so-called Oxford shorthand is claimed to be more rapid than the older stenography. To prove its speed the inventor has devised a little machine which pays out a graduated tape at the rate of a yard a second, and each yard having 4 divisions, this measures the time of writing to the sixtieth of a second, giving the duration of every detail.

Running animals show marked adaptive modifications. Mr. H. S. Gull points out that the greatest modifications are in the limbs, but there is also in the structure of the head and neck in long-legged types. In jumping forms there is increase in the length and weight of the tail, which has to act as a counterpoise. The feet often show a reduction of digits, culminating in the single toe of the horse and some extinct species.

Why Be Sick?

Ladies, do you suffer from headache, backache, sideache, waist-pains, irregular habit, weakness, nervousness, irritability, general miserableness and lack of ambition? If so, much of your pain and suffering is needless, for it is due to diseases peculiar to your sex, which can be cured by proper treatment. For over 50 years has been benefiting these diseases in the persons of over a million women, of whom Mrs. W. H. Gage, of 232 N. Clark St., Chicago, is one. She writes: 'I was taken sick three years ago and was in bed six months. Since then I have been troubled with headache, backache, leg-ache and awful bearing-down pains. I could get no relief until I began to take Wine of Cardui. I have now been taking it about six weeks and I feel like a new woman. My friends hardly know me.' Try it for your trouble.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY'S NEW HOME.

NEW YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY BUILDING, CENTRAL PARK WEST AND 77th ST.

The one hundred and second anniversary of the New York Historical society has just been celebrated in the society's magnificent new building in New York City. The building was presented to the society by Henry Dexter as a memorial to his son, Orlando, who was murdered three years ago while driving over his preserves in the Adirondack wilderness.

The new building is of granite, three stories high. The cornerstones were laid in 1902. The site and foundations cost about $500,000. The central structure, which was presented by Mr. Dexter, was designed originally to cost $250,000, but has cost nearly $300,000. It will not be completed for six months.

between United States and Spain signed at Paris. First American troops marched through the streets of Havana.

1894—Johannes von Suttner, of Austria, awarded the Nobel peace prize, valued at $100,000.

DECEMBER 11.
 1797—Hiram Paulding, rear admiral of the United States navy, who won laurels in the war of 1812, born; died 1878.

1840—John Gabriel Jamieson, noted French author and journalist, born at St. Etienne; died at Passy, 1874.

1871—Terrible fire broke out in Charleston, which was under rigid blockade by federal gunboats; loss $7,000,000 to $10,000,000. The fire broke out at 9 o'clock in the evening in a sash factory at the foot of Hazel street and, fanned by a stiff breeze, became very formidable, as there was a lack of water with which to combat the flames. Several churches and nearly all the public buildings, banks and insurance offices were burned. The greatest destruction was between Broad street and Hazel street, on Kings Church and Meeting streets.

1871—King Kamehameha V, grandson of the hero of Hawaii and last of the line, died at Honolulu; born 1830.

1871—Signor Mario, the greatest Italian singer of modern times, died at Rome; born in Sardinia 1810.

1871—Edward Atkinson, social and political economist, died in Boston; born 1827. Change of ministry in England.
