"MORMONS" IN ARIZONA.

ATTEMPTS are frequently made by unscrupulous "Liberals" in this city to disturb the relations existing between the "Mormons" and other settlers in the surrounding Territories. It is also reported frequently that the Arizona entertain hostile feelings towards the "Mormon" colonists in their vicinity. This is incorrect, and proofs of its falsity are frequently seen in the local papers in the neighborhood of the "Mormon" settlements. We notice in the Tucson Star the following paragraphs, which we clip as evidences of the feelings of our southern neighbors, a large majority of whom deprecate the attacks made upon the people of Utah by the scamps who are continually trying to stir up trouble and manufacture mischief:

"The Star was favored with a pleasant call yesterday from Mr. D. P. Kimball and Col. P. C. Merrill, of the San Pedro Valley, and Mr. C. Layton, of Salt Lake City. These gentlemen belong to the Mormon settlement which has done so much to stimulate the industrial development of that beautiful valley. They are enterprising, wide awake and cultivated gentlemen, and will prove valuable accessions to any community. They speak in the highest terms of the valley and are confident of a brilliant future for it. Col. Merrill and Mr. Layton visited Tucson thirty-six years ago, and laughingly contrast its present appearance with what it was then. They were then soldiers in the famous Mormon Battalion commanded by Col. St. George Cook. Since then many changes have occurred, not the least conspicuous of which is the growing settlement on the San Pedro, with its brilliant possibilities and splendid future."

"The Mormon settlement on the San Pedro is rapidly becoming one of the most prosperous and enterprising in the Territory. The people, like all Mormons, are industrious, frugal and adventurous, and they are not afraid of the means by which the wilderness is to be made to blossom as the rose. Such accessions to the wealth and development of the Territory are sure of a hearty appreciation and cordial welcome."

HELPED BY THE "MORMONS."

THERE is one Congressman who is willing to acknowledge that he is much indebted to the "Mormon" part of his constituency for his position in the House of Representatives. We refer to Hon. M. E. Post, Delegate-elect from Wyoming Territory. That gentleman received the Democratic "Mormon" vote at the recent election, and does not hesitate to announce the fact. He knows that the "Mormon" portion of his supporters are entitled to as much consideration on his part as any others, and in a letter to a friend of ours he frankly admits the good service which they rendered to him, and expresses his desire to assist them to all their rights. He says further that he is not afraid to meet the issue that may be raised by his acknowledgment, nor ashamed to admit that he was greatly aided in his success he has achieved by the vote of the "Mormons" of Wyoming. any man who

We do not see why gains office by the votes of the "Mormon" people should hesitate to acknowledge the fact, and return compliments by assisting in seeing them righted, unless he is a coward and a time server. Backbone, real grit, moral courage, or whatever other name may be given it, is a quality sadly lacking in public men. There is not a Republican or a Democrat running for office in this mountain region who would not be mighty glad of "Mormon" support at the polls. But the nerve to acknowledge it and to stand up for what is right in relation to this much abused people, is wanting when the popular voice is heard in ignorant condemnation of them.

We hope the Delegate from Wyoming will be true to his post, and manifest in public the same manly spirit which he has exhibited in private in relation to his "Mormon" constituents.

OIL ON THE TROUBLED WATERS.

THE practical application of the adage about "casting oil upon the troubled waters," which has already been noted once or twice in this paper, has been tested recently by Mr. Vincenzo Fondacaro, on a trip from Montevideo to Naples. He sailed on a three ton boat of his own building with a crew of only two men. The passage was an extraordinarily rough one and the violence of the waves was abated by the use of the oil which was inclosed in small bottle-shaped bags, each bag containing about half a gallon. In case of a gale of wind, when it became necessary to lay to, a large bag attached to the bow of the boat was thrown overboard. This the sailors call a floating anchor or a drag. This kept his boat's head to the wind. Two of the small bags of oil were then thrown overboard, one fore and one aft. Each bag had a small orifice through which the oil escaped slowly. It circled around the boat and prevented the sea from breaking over her and overwhelming her.

Mr. Fondacaro says a gallon of oil was sufficient to enable his boat to lay "hove to" in a gale of wind for twenty-four hours. The oil of course does not diminish the size or force of the waves, but it prevents them from breaking and thus renders them comparatively harmless. Experiments have been made with this process by the English and Italian governments and the virtues of the oil system ought to be known to all those who "go down to the sea in ships."

UTAH PRODUCTS.

THE Albany Press and Knickerbocker has the annexed paragraph:

Mr. John Neemes, formerly of this city, but now a resident of Chicago, while on a recent visit to Utah, obtained a quantity of potatoes raised there, a portion of which he sent to friends here. They are simply stupendous, some of them weighing over two pounds. If the potato family of Utah are polygamous, and these are specimens of their product on that account, there should be no objection to the "peculiar institution"—provided it is confined to potatoes and other agricultural crops.

The truth is, Utah beats the world in potatoes. They are not only large and numerous, but of most excellent quality. We assure the Albany paper, which makes the agricultural restrictions, that the "peculiar institution" bears equally good fruits in its own domain as intelligent agriculture in its special field. And we can say with confidence that they are no small potatoes either. They will bear comparison with monogamic products in any part of the country, and like the "apples of the earth" that gain the admiration of all beholders, "Utah's best crop" will yet astonish the natives of the East and compel their admiration.

CAN THE UNITED STATES BE SUED?

It is pretty well understood that the United States cannot be sued in its own courts by a citizen, unless by the authority of Congress, but the Lee case lately decided, shows that this may be done in an indirect manner. The property of the late General Lee, in Virginia, was sold for non-payment of taxes during the troubles that grew out of the war, and by the enforcement of a law which was used as a trap for the famous Confederate General. Suit for recovery was brought by one of his descendants. The property had been bought in by the Government, and the action was had against two Federal officers who were in possession.

In the trial of the cause the constitutional objection was raised that the United States could not be sued, but by a majority of only one the United States Court in Virginia ruled that while it was admitted that the United States cannot be sued in its own name, by a citizen in its own courts, without the consent of Congress, yet suits may be brought by private persons against officers or agents of the government for the recovery of property in the possession of the latter. The suit prevailed, and the property will return to the Lee family where it belongs, and a knotty point in law has been decided in a way to cause considerable wonderment in common minds as to the difference in effect of suing the United States and suing its Officers for property belonging to the Government. Evidently twaddled is not to be legally confounded with twaddledum.

THE FIRST CASE.

THE New York law against suicide, to which we made recent reference, received an opportunity for application just after it went into effect. On the 4th inst. Charles Fick a tinsmith, attempted to go off in smoke; in other words he lit a charcoal fire in a room he had hired for a lodging, barricaded the doors, plugged up every aperture with paper, and quietly lay down on his bed to await the final event. But a boy notified the police and the charcoal feat was spoiled by a patrolman, who broke open the door, caught Fick in the unlawful act, with assistance restored the tinner to consciousness and took him into custody. He was brought before the Essex Market Court, plead not guilty and was committed for trial under the new Penal Code, which makes such an attempt a felony, punishable by imprisonment in the State prison for two years and a fine of one thousand dollars as the maximum penalty. Fick is a poor German, 33 years of age, who has lost his wife and three children by death and has become despondent. His case will be watched with considerably attention as the first under the new code.

The tunnel under the Elbe, between Hamburg and the island of Steinwarder, now open, is 800 metres in length, and cost about $5,000,000.

The news reflected in the California press shows that scarcely any place in the central, northern and coast regions of this State is free from severe forms of fever, mainly of typhoid character.
