Queen Ethelyn, in her royal equipage came next, followed by Prime Minister Blair. After the prime minister came the Raymond coach, con. taining the pretty malds of honor, and followed by Councilmen Whittemore, Robertson and Davis in a carriage. Next in line were the pioneer car-riages, which attracted considerable attention. In the first were Mrs. J. E Malin, daughter of Isaac Laney, and one of the '47 ploneers; "Aunt" Jane Manning James, the colored woman, who came over with Brigham Young's company; Juliet Phelps Pratt, widow of Orson Pratt, and a pioneer of 51; and Mr. Geo. W. Muncy, one of Desert's first born, and the eldest daughter of Levi W. Hancock, Four of the original ploneers occupled the next carriage. They were L. N. Kendall of Springville, aged 79; Horace Drake of Centerville, aged 75. John P. Porter of Bountiful, and Mrs Crosby of Salt Lake. It was said that Mr. Drake and Mrs. Crosby came west. to Utah in the same company, but that they hadn't seen each other for twenty years, until, by a coincidence, they yesterday assigned to the same carriage. In the next carriage were E. F. Sheets of this city, Geo. N. Brown of Charles-ton, William Gardner of Pine Valley Washington county, and Joshua Terry of Draper. Following them were James Woodruff and A. M. Musser, of Salt Lake: Thomas Cloward of Payson, and Mosiah Hancock of Arizona, all '47 pioneers. The last carriage of veterans contained Henson Walker, of Pleasant Grove, A. B. Lambson of Salt Lake, A. F. Farr of Ogden, and William Jones of Salt Lake, all but Mr. Jones having arrived in '47. He was with one of the ompanies that came in '50. The Stake president, Angus M. Cannon and his two counselors, Joseph E. Taylor and C. W. PIONEER FLOAT.

The pioneer float came next in line, and was very altractive. It was deco-rated by the Seventeenth ward, and J. Jones, a ploneer, occupied the seat of honor. The flag which George A. Smith bore at the h 1d of the party which settled iron county, was used on this float, being wrapped around a monster beehive

About 500 members of the Young Men's Mutual Improvement association followed, each carrying an umbrella decorated with the national colors. ovington, an early settler, was at the head on a handsome gray mount.

YOUTH AND OLD AGE.

"Youth and Old Age" was the name of the second float. Two young girls rode on the top seat, at least 25 feet from the ground. Between them and the bottom seat were girls and boys of all ages, with Sarah W. Phelns years old and a pioneer of 1848, at the

After more M. I. A. members, carry ing uniform umbrellas,came the "Peace and Prosperity" float in the shape of a boat, occupied by half a dozen of Ctah's fairest daughters.

The pioneers were cheered all along the line of march, which was from the Knutsford north to Second South, west to East Temple, north to First South, east to State, north to South Temple, west to East Temple, south to First South, west to West Temple, south to Second South, cast to East Temple, south to Midway.

AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

When the long procession reached the fair grounds, it passed in review of the queen and her retinue, who occupied the seats at the top platform. The sun soon became too warm even for he najesty and the maids of honor, who looked delightfully cool with their white parasols, but who moved down to where the ploneers were sitting un-der the canvas on the first platform. Held's band occupied seats of vantage

After referring touchingly to faith and religious conscience of the ploneers, Judge King continued:

"When Nauvoo was burned and the martyr and his brother laid low; when there was persecution on every hand swords were unsheathed, houses burning overhead, starvation, poverty and woe were on every hand, they saw God in the clouds, and it made radiant their lives and sanctified their sorrow."

The judge then said that the people did not try to escape from this nation; they tried to extend its boundaries, They came like the Puritan fathers to obtain the right to worship according o their own conscien

Judge King concluded with an eloquent statement of the achievements of the past fifty-four years, saying that Utah is the queen of this mountain do-main—the mother of the other western states. The name Descret was rightly applied to her, for she had swarmed n the past, was swarming today would swarm in the future. Out of this copie would come men and women who would take up the battle of liberty and Utah would be called queen of the

ON THE MIDWAY.

Over on the midway all yesterday afternoon and last evening there was th ame big crowd of pleasure seekings who were willing to pay ten cents to see almost any kind of a show that the fakirs felt like giving them. They had implicit faith in the veracity of the man who said, "We burn her alive, we burn her alive." And when the original barker at the entrance of the midway asked with a foolish smile 'Have you seen George?" and the one Barnum spoke about said "No. spicler retorted, "Well, you've got to When all that took place the crowd simply fell over itself to see

The biggest crowd of the carnival was out in the evening, although there was no special attraction beyond the regular free show. The Landrum bal-let was run off more smoothly than on the opening night, and the Rainere rs carned considerable applause for their trapeze work. Arion, in wild electric ride, was again the feature, and he was cheered to the echo The Lunette show, which has been one of the most popular ones along barker's row, was compelled to pend for awhile last night, owing to an accident to Lunette. Some hoodlums made remarks out of place in a respectable show, and Manager Mosier started after them, leaving Lunette suspended in mid-air. Of a sudden she fell to the floor, and, striking her head, was stunned. The crowd said that the machinery broke, but Manager Mosier said there was no machinery, and that Lunette had fainted in fright when he went after the hoodlums
