

PREPARING FOR NEXT CAMPAIGN.

Grosvenor of Ohio and Minority
Leader Williams Maneuver
For Advantage.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF DEBATE.

Occupies Time of the House and Offers
The Occasion for Making Party Speeches.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The Philippine tariff debate in the house today consisted more of party maneuvering for advantageous campaign material than of discussion of the question at issue. The tariff was the text of a speech by Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, who began the debate, and of an extended reply by Mr. Williams, the minority leader.

The speech of Mr. Grosvenor was apocryphal with wit and witless and with interruptions from Champ Clark, at whom Mr. Grosvenor aimed most of his arguments. Mr. Williams outlined again the specific tariff doctrine of the Democratic party and held that the Republican tariff is not, as was so often claimed, responsible for the prosperity of the country. To prove this, he cited the prosperity of Canada, Mexico and other countries at the present time, and the business depression of these countries during the hard times of 1892.

Mr. Adams of Wisconsin opposed the bill, but advocated a readjustment of the tariff on business principles.

Mr. McKinley of California delivered his first speech in the house in favor of the pending measure, and pointed a finger of warning toward the growing industries of Japan.

The debate on the bill undoubtedly will close with the session of Saturday and the measure be put on its passage Monday.

That there may be no interruption of the general debate on the Philippine tariff bill until it is concluded, pension day, which occurs Friday, was displaced by unanimous consent until the day after the vote on the pending bill.

Mr. Payne gave notice that unless unanimous consent should later be given to close general debate Saturday he should demand a vote on a motion to close debate when the house meets Monday.

Mr. Grosvenor (Ohio) took the floor in favor of the bill. He reviewed the causes of the Spanish war and declared the American people could not then shirk their duty. No more can they shirk the consequences of that war. Placing a part of this responsibility on the Democratic party, Mr. Grosvenor recounted the influence of Mr. Bryan in securing the ratification of the treaty of peace.

"The spirit of Bryan," he said, "permeates the Democratic party as the spirit of no Democrat has permeated that party since the day of Andrew Jackson."

However, Mr. Grosvenor repudiated Democratic votes for the pending bill. He did not want such votes, especially when they were given on the ground that it was a step in the direction of free trade.

"Let them ride in the Jim-Crow car and not in the first class compartment with me," he said.

"What would be the chances of passing this bill without our votes?" queried Champ Clark.

"I think they would be very good," replied Mr. Grosvenor.

"If all Democrats voted against it," "I think so."

"Well, you had better get down to ciphering on that gang over there who are trying to defeat it," concluded Mr. Clark.

"Oh, I don't cipher," retorted Mr. Grosvenor, who explained that he believed that if his colleagues were to vote against the bill they would do so from an impelling force against their better judgment.

"Is not that impelling force the machinery of the organization of this house?" asked Mr. Clark.

"Oh no," declared Mr. Grosvenor, "I said those who were to vote against the bill. The gentleman has got his impelling force at the wrong end of the rope."

Philippine tobacco was characterized as "poor, miserable stuff" by Mr. Grosvenor, and although his state raised tobacco he did not fear competition from the Philippines which would not sell in the Cincinnati market for anything.

"Would the gentleman send a box of the average Manila cigar to a constituent whose vote he wanted?" asked Mr. Longworth of Ohio.

"Well, I don't smoke myself, but I would not send them to my interrogator," laughingly replied Mr. Grosvenor.

Reviewing some of the things which have been said against the Philippines in the debate, Mr. Grosvenor said none of them entitled the things said by Daniel Webster against the inhabitants of the 14 states and territories acquired by the Louisiana purchase.

"I believe," he said, "that the Philippine islands will become one of the greatest jewels in the crown of American achievement."

Mr. Grosvenor declared his intention of devoting the remainder of his remarks to the Democratic wall for tariff revision. Particularly did he want to reply to Mr. Clark regarding his quota.

In a recent speech from the book of James G. Blaine, which he said was a contradiction of the Republican platform of 1894, that a "Democratic tariff was always followed by business adversity; a Republican tariff by business prosperity."

Mr. Clark's quotation of Mr. Blaine, he contended, had not included the context, which was needed to make the statement complete. Mr. Grosvenor substantiated the remarks of Senator Doolittle that Mr. Dingley had yielded to the senate on the amount of differential on sugar, leaving it high so that it might be used in securing reciprocity treaties with Spain.

Massachusetts was the next subject of Mr. Grosvenor's remarks.

He went on to show that, notwithstanding the cry for free raw material, there was now in Massachusetts a "foot-note of prosperity."

Mr. Sullivan of Massachusetts interrupted to mention a number of iron and glass works which he said had gone out of business under the Dingley tariff.

"There were plenty of those works which had grown immensely wealthy under that tariff along the Monongahela river," replied Mr. Grosvenor.

Massachusetts, he said, should remember the adage, "Never go back on them that brought you up by hand."

"What hand?" interjected Minority Leader Williams.

"The hand of God and the Republican party," was the quick reply. When the laughter had quieted Mr. Williams said: "I want to recognize the unusual magnanimity of the gentleman in naming God just once as the senior member of the firm." (Laughter.)

In answering the reference of Mr. Clark to President Roosevelt's eulogy of Thomas H. Benton for his right to put salt on the free list, Mr. Grosvenor claimed that Benton was hitting only

When life's autumn comes, women, worn out by the burdens of motherhood, yet shrink from that second "change of life" which will banish these burdens forever. They fear a change in form, in feature, in the personal attractiveness which this change produces in many women. But no woman need feel these fears fret her. Those who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription do not suffer from the change of life either in form or feature, as do other women. This fact is due to the intimate connection of the general health with the health of the organs peculiarly feminine. By preserving the health of these organs, and relieving the system from the debilitating druggies, ulcers and inflammations which sap its health, "Favorite Prescription" paves the way for a natural change to come in Nature's way without the loss of capacity to please others or personal inability to enjoy life.

"Your Favorite Prescription brought me safely through that difficult period, called 'change of life,'" writes Mrs. Mary E. Ensign, of 344 E. Ankeny St., Portland, Oregon. "As you know, I was very much troubled by the change of life, and I had not only cold flashes, but headache, nervousness, irritability, and my appetite was ruined for days. I was unable to eat a fair meal. My husband and eight children so have the care of a large family but was able to attend to my household duties without any difficulty and passed the period without any more trouble. I can recommend your 'Favorite Prescription' as a grand medicine for women."

You may be willing that somebody else should say that their baby is "just as good as yours, but you don't want that baby substituted for yours. Let dealers say what they like about other medicines being 'just as good' but don't let them substitute anything for 'Favorite Prescription.' It is absolutely unequalled."

at all. A general colloquy followed in which Mr. Clark and other Democrats claimed that New England fishermen got a rebate on foreign salt with which they cure their fish, whereas the western meat packer has to use "protected" salt.

Mr. Williams, the minority leader, followed Mr. Grosvenor. Under the pending bill he believed that the Democratic party the Republican Orator. Mr. Payne its Ulysses, Mr. Dingley, discussing our presence in the Philippines, Mr. Williams exclaimed: "Curse the hypocrisy of the fellow who tells me that God put us in the Philippines. No body but a hypocrite would say it, and nobody but a fool would believe it."

"American greed, American cupidity for prestige and conquest and to become a world power went there," he added.

Mr. Williams asserted that it did not need a prophet to see that the Republican party was not going to revise the tariff.

"The Republican party in its present decadent condition has neither the brains nor the courage to remedy the tariff, and that is the reason why you are going to have a Democratic house of representatives at the next election," he said.

"Oh, you stand-batters," he continued, "with your absolute contempt for public sentiment and absolute trust in the committee on rules and the committee on ways and means and your little coteries here in Washington—you imagine that there is no outside world—but there is an outside world, even in Massachusetts, which the gentleman from Ohio said was brought up by hand on the tariff—there was a bottle of pap given her early and all that she had to do was to suck."

Asserting ironically that he would show that the Dingley tariff had produced record-breaking prosperity in Canada, Mexico and the Argentine republic as well as in the United States, Mr. Williams reviewed the greatly increased production and commerce of these countries.

The Democratic faith upon the tariff, Mr. Williams said, could be expressed in a few words: First, a tariff is a tax; second, it is a tax on the consumer; third, all taxes ought as nearly as possible to be equal in proportion to the burden-bearing capacity of the taxing power.

The genuinely ideal Democratic tariff would put all sorts of imports into about three general classes; necessities, comforts and luxuries. On necessities, a very low tariff would be levied; on comforts, a moderate tariff; on luxuries, a high tariff. It would be on the free list. On luxuries, diamonds, wines and the like, would be taxed to the smuggling point; upon comforts, an intermediate tariff would be levied.

"It is necessary first to find out how much money is necessary to run the government honestly and economically and levy the tax to meet that sum. Then you will have this question settled right and until it is settled right it will still be agitated."

Just before Mr. Williams concluded he "poured out a thunderstorm" as Mr. Grosvenor put it, in paralleling the point of 1892 in this country, when Republicans had laid to rest the trade, so similar conditions in Canada and the countries of Europe, all of which, he said, must be due to "anticipated Democratic victory in the election of Mr. Cleveland."

Scoring the Democratic tariff doctrine, all of which he said was old and worn out, Mr. Adams of Wisconsin followed Mr. Williams. He said the Republicans of his state, while protectionists, believed a revision and readjustment of existing tariff conditions should be made at this time.

As to the tariff, he declared it to be a business question and said he saw signs of its being treated as such by both parties.

Mr. McKinley, a new member from California, who was with the Taft expedition of the Philippines, favored the bill. The only criticism of American administration in the Philippines that could be made, he declared, was that we had gone ahead a little faster than the people of the islands were capable of going.

Mr. McKinley pictured Japan on the verge of a general industrial war and predicted that the victories in trade would be as astonishing as those on the battlefields of Manchuria. All of her manufactures, he said, were being equipped with the latest American and European machinery. However, only one machine of a kind is bought, the Japanese themselves making others from these models at much less cost than the original machine.

At 5 o'clock the house adjourned until tomorrow.

HEYBURN DEMONSTRATES WALL STREET METHODS.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Before going into executive session today the senate listened to a speech by Mr. Heyburn in support of his bill creating a national board of control of corporations.

This bill, which would give the board of control of corporations the right to investigate the affairs of the country, he said when the "street" could not dictate the financial course of the government it was ever ready to threaten disaster, and he pleaded for legislation that would rob it of such power for evil.

The remainder of the open session was devoted to a discussion of the practice by the senate of sending senate resolutions to the calendar after they have been under discussion. Mr. Bacon raised the point of order that there was no rule requiring such a course, and said his Moroccan resolution had been improperly placed on the calendar. He also contended that the resolution had not had a day's discussion.

The matter was not disposed of in session. The senate adjourned until Monday.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

Mr. Cleveland Indorses Views of Congressman Belmont on the Subject.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Congressman Perry Belmont today received the following letter from former President Cleveland:

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 9.—My Dear Sir—I am very late in acknowledging receipt of your article on the 'Publicity of Campaign Receipts and Expenditures,' published in the North American Review. I have read it with a great deal of interest. I am thoroughly convinced that the time has arrived when this subject should be treated thoroughly and vigorously and with an honest intention to arrive, through the means you suggest, at the point where the baleful influences of political corruption shall be removed from our national life. While I am so situated, I cannot give time or attention to the real work of this movement, I am entirely willing that my name should appear as one of those greatly interested in its success."

W. N. HERBERT'S BODY FOUND.

San Francisco, Jan. 11.—The mystery of the disappearance of Wallace Noble was solved today when his body was found in the bay.

Herbert in this city on Dec. 27, was found in a room at 341 Sixth street.

Herbert is said to be a son of the vice president of the First National bank at Niles, Ohio. He was 35 years of age and a draughtsman and an expert accountant. He was connected for six years with Hennessy & Co., mining men, in Butte, Mont. From Butte he went to Los Angeles, where for a year he was employed as auditor for the great railway company. Later he came to this city.

THE PROSPECTS FOR FREEDOM IN RUSSIA.

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 11.—Speaking on "The Prospects for Freedom in Russia," at the Founders' Day celebration at Cornell today, Andrew D. White, former ambassador to Russia, made an appeal to all university students to fight for democracy and to make the American republic a model government for all the world.

"Our own country," said Dr. White, "is not without great and grievous faults. The corruption that has been engendered by widespread devotion to money is known to the whole world. Fortunately we have free institutions which allow you to undermine and attack it is not held up and shielded as corruption in Russia has been."

"Mr. White," continued Dr. White, "in my opinion, is the only man who could stand any chance of carrying through a reasonable plan for a new order of things in Russia; of saving off bankruptcy and of checking civil war. On him rests the main, indeed the only chance, for rational liberty."
