

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

YESTERDAY'S MEETINGS.—In the morning Elder David Candland discoursed upon the Redeemer's "sermon on the Mount." In the afternoon Elder Orson Pratt occupied the time. His discourse was reported and will be published in full.

THEATRICAL.—On Saturday night there was a tolerably large assembly to witness the second presentation of "Foul Play," and they certainly had their money's worth of foul play. The various performers acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner. Joe Wylie was well characterized by Mr. Hove, the triple character of Reva. Robert Penfold and John Hazel, and James Seaton, a ticket-of-leave man, was well played by Mr. Lindsay. Miss Rouse, a first-class washerwoman, was personated in capital style by Miss Lockhart, and the remainder of the characters, represented by Messrs. Graham, Hardie, Margates, Thorne and others, were played with considerable ability. But the "sensation" on Saturday evening was the playing of "the talented young American artist" Lucille Western; but the less said about her performance the better.

To-night "Lady Audley's Secret" and "A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing" will be presented. Miss Annie Lockhart appears in both pieces; her personation of Lady Audley is acknowledged to be one of the very best ever presented on the American stage. Fanny Morgan Phelps has arrived, and will appear to-morrow evening.

"WHEELER'S" CORRESPONDENCE.—Our correspondent "Wheeler," whose communication appears in to-day's paper, speaks plainly and to the point. He is evidently out of temper at somebody, and we do not wonder, for it is enough to make a fellow grumble and ill-tempered, when he does not receive the News regularly.

All we can say on the subject is, that our papers are mailed with the utmost regularity, for all the settlements, and after that, we have no control over them. We hope the parties at fault in this matter, whether country postmasters or others, will read "Wheeler's" note, and will do their best to remove all cause of complaint in this respect in future.

CALLED.—W. R. Thomas, Esq., associate editor Rocky Mountain News called at our office this morning. Mr. Thomas has been visiting different portions of the Rocky mountains, acting as correspondent of the News for something like a year; but he has never before been so far west as Salt Lake. We wish him a pleasant sojourn in our beautiful mountain home.

HITCHING POSTS.—We were amused the other day to see a well-fed farmer, with his fiery steeds, drive to the front of one of our principal stores and offer to one of our most prominent lawyers a pound of butter if he would hold his horses for a few minutes, as he had business in the store. The employment was accepted and the "limb of the law" declared it was the most satisfactory job he had had for months.

It is amusing to see our lawyers of talent pleased with this kind of employment rather than to go without butter. It is rather than mortifying to see our farmers when visiting this city, reduced to the necessity of endangering the safety of their teams or the lives of pedestrians through hitching the former to rotten posts, or leaving them to stand without being hitched.

INDIAN FIGHT IN MONTANA.—We learn, through the Montana Post, that early on Tuesday 6th inst., ten Indians, supposed to be Blackfeet, entered the Gallatin Valley, on foot, at a point about twelve miles northwest of Fort Ellis, known as Flat Head Pass, and proceeded to a ranch located on Dry Creek, stealing therefrom seven head of cattle and one horse, belonging to Mr. Marsh, the surveyor. As soon as this became known at Fort Ellis, forty mounted soldiers, accompanied by fifteen or twenty citizens, made a combined and successful attempt to capture the savages. After following on the trail for some 75 miles from the East Gallatin, over a difficult road, the Indians having selected the roughest country for their route of retreat in order to avoid pursuit, the relieving band was discovered ascending a steep and somewhat isolated mountain, upon which they doubtless hoped to make a stand against the whites. The latter, however, bringing their strategy to bear, outflanked them, hurrying around the mountain and coming upon the Indians from the rear. So rapid were the movements of the whites that they reached the top of the mountain in the rear of the savages before the latter had time to gain the summit, and from this position they were enabled to pour down their shots with telling effect. The Indians had hurriedly thrown up slight breastworks on the lower side of their position, but these were of small avail, unless considered as forming one side of the pen in which they were slaughtered. Upon the issue of the battle depended the question of life and death with the Indians, and they fought desperately, with one exception, this exception being in the case of a noble red man who bore the solitary horse of Mr. Marsh and escaped. The other nine were almost instantly killed. One soldier named Corby was killed, and two others wounded; two of the citizens were also wounded. It is rumored that the Crows have burned their treaty, and propose going on the war path.

TELEGRAPH STATIONS.—For the information of our readers we publish the following list of telegraph offices on the Deseret Telegraph Line, open for the receipt and dispatch of messages: American Fork, Brigham City, Beaver, Cove Creek, Cedar City, Ephraim, Farmington, Fountain Green, Fairview, Fillmore, Gunnison, Kaysville, Logan, Monticello, Mount Pleasant, Manti, Nephi, Ogden, Provo, Payson, Parowan, Salt Lake City, Springville, Spanish Fork, Springtown, Scipio, St. George, Tokereville, Wellsville, Willard City and Washington.

BITTER CREEK.—Try the water on East Temple street anywhere near Second or Third South streets. It is the diluted extract of fish heads, old iron, maiting, sawdust, gunnybags and old boots. The only things that leave the waters pure are sucking cures, wheelbarrows, and broken bottles, whilst wash tubs and oyster cans may even help to improve the flavor.

There are other ways of fouling the waters, practiced on this same street, which we shall shortly refer to, if those who are guilty of such outrages against decency and health, do not quit their disgusting habits.

A GOOD RULE.—The New York Mercury is responsible for the following: "No one knows better than Mr. Booth himself the evil effects of intemperance, and it is his determination to allow no member of his company to play who is addicted to the ardent. An actor of prominence has been the first to violate the golden rule, and he was relieved of the role of 'Tybalt' by Mr. Frank Taylor, who gives a very acceptable personation."

Mr. Booth's example in this respect could be copied with advantage by all holding the "managerial reins."
