Why will such a law constitute a bad precedent? Here are some reasons

1. It abolishes the equality of citizens.

2. It virtually deprives the cititens of much of the right of suffrage platform, and is well made and ap-propriately fitted for the purpose. by substituting federal appointment for local legislative or popular election.

3. It substitutes the anti-republilican policy of federal officers disbursing the local taxes.

4. It re-affirms and extends the old hateful colonial policy of "taxation without representation," as it "imposes taxes on us without our consent," and spends them without the approbation or consent of the people who pay them, but in direct opposition to their wishes.
