The enclosed article, (see last page of NEWS) from the pen of Babcock gave him to understand that of encouraging the breeding and proappeared in last Saturday's Tribune, and its arguments seem reasonable.

I think that if a united effort were made in our country, to protect the birds now in our midst, by legislation if necessary, and a few thousand dollars spent in their importation and in facilitating the increase of the best known and most hardy of the insect destroying varieties, it might, in time, prove of incalculable benefit, in destroying the grasshopper eggs, and the young hoppers early in the Spring. Judging from appearances these pests are likely to trouble us year after year, and to keep increasing, and it seems to me that some big effort should be made to destroy them, or counteract their ravages. The more general breeding of poultry, all over the country, particularly turkeys and chickens, would have a tendency to destroy great numbers of these insects, besides affording very desirable articles of food. Without claiming to be particularly posted on this subject, the interest I feel in the Shipton Mallet, LONDON PALE preservation of our crops, induces me
