ROUTE FROM LIVERPOOL Great Salt Lake Valley: ILLUSTRATED,

By a Series of spiendid STERI. ENGRAVINGS and WOOD CUTS, from Sketches made on the spot from Life, a 1853, expressly for this Work, by

FREDERICK PIERCY, EDITED BY JAMES LINFORTH.

This highly interesting and beautiful Work will form a narrative of the Journey from Liverpool to Great Salt Lake Valley, and will give Historical, Descriptive, and statistical information reporting the places, and the Indian Tribes on the route, and in Utah Territory.

The mode in which the Latter Day Saints' emigration is conducted; a review of it from the commencement; and incidental instructions to emigrants, will constitute an early part of the Work.

The Statistical information will be drawn from the most authentic sources, and consequently may be relied upon. That portion of it which relates to the Latter Day Saints, will be particularly valuable, owing to the difficulty hitherto experienced by all classes in obtaining anything accurate, from the conflicting statements which have appeared from time to time, in a great portion of the press purpose of Dress making. Mantles, and Children's Dresses:—all of which will be made up in the newest Paris and London styles.
