EVENING NEWS.

Tuesday • Nov. 23, 1886

A BRAVE WIFE.

A ROMANTIC TALE OF THE GREEN MOUNTAINS OF VERMONT AND THE CATTLE RANGES OF THE WEST.

On this morning's east bound train were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kirk.

The lady was still in the days of her youth, and on her lovely features the light of happiness was evidently chasing away the traces of sorrow once deep and abiding. The gentleman was in the prime of manhood, handsome and debonair, but showing too the marks of suffering, and of a resent life of exposure and privation. This couple have a singular history, and Mr. and Mrs. Kirk can boast of being hero and heroine of a romance in actual life.

Seven years ago, in one of the lovely and still secluded valleys of the Green mountain state, Albert Kirk and Hettie Reynolds were youth and maiden. Knowing each other from babyhood, playing together as children over the old homesteads which adjoined each other, and entering together the magic domain of man and maidenhood, they early plighted their troth, and were married.

Six months of happiness followed, and them came trouble swift and terrible. A former suitor for the hand of Mrs. Kirk one day visited the happy home under the influence of liquor, and insulted the young wife in the presence of the husband. The indignant husband struck his wife's insulter to the earth, and the blow thus given resulted in death. Kirk was arrested, tried and convicted of murder in the first degree. He was, however, recommended to the mercy of the court, and received a life sentence.

Six months afterwards he effected his escape from the penitentiary, through the instrumentality of his devoted wife, and became a wanderer upon the earth, marked with the brand of Cain.

Under an assumed name he sought the far west, and became a cowboy of the ranges. Only at long intervals did he dare to communicate with his young wife, who still clung to the old Green mountain home, where she had known such perfect but fleeting happiness, and he had been a father for two years before he learned that fact, so full of joy and sorrow.

During all of this time the wife's efforts to obtain a pardon for her fugitive husband hhd been unwearied and unceasing. At last, one year ago, her efforts were crowned with success, and wild with delight she held in her hand a full and unconditional pardon under the great seal of the Governor of Vermont for Albert Kirk.

And now the question was to find the husband, who had become a criminal and a fugitive for her dear sake, and whom she loved with such an intensity of devotion. She had not heard from him for a year prior to the issuance of the pardon, and knew not positively whether he was alive or dead. But the unselfish and deep love she bore him to buoy and sustain her, she began the search which was to restore the long and cruelly separated husband and wife to each other's arms.

For a year's time she wandered through the great territories of the northwest, with only the knowledge to guide her that her husband had been a cowboy on their ranges. At last, two weeks ago, her search was crowned with success, and she found her husband as one of a Montana cattle outfit.

It were vain to attempt a description of the rapturous joy of that meeting. It will be sufficient to say that, loving and reunited, the happy couple are now speeding toward the old Vermont home, where the father will clasp to his heart the child he has never seen, and the husband will endeavor by a lifetime of the truest devotion to repay in some measure the great debt she owes to his brave and charming wife. —Boomerang.

He Fairly Analyzed Her.

"An old negro came into my office the other day," said a New Orleans lawyer who is visiting Chicago, "and asked me: 'Kin yo gin me de right for to leave Cindy?' 'Well,' said I, 'who is Cindy, and why do you want to leave her?' 'Why, Cindy, she's my woman, and I doan wan to run her no mo.' 'Oh, you want a divorce, do you?' 'Dat's jist what I does.' 'Well, what is the trouble?' 'Yer see, sah, dat yaller gal's runnin' roun' wif new niggers too much.'

"Here the old man's voice grew thick and a big tear rolled down his black and withered cheek.

"'It seems to me,' said I, 'you love this woman very much.'

"The old man looked up at me a moment, and rising slowly from his chair, came and stood in front of me. 'Lubs her! Why, I done lubbed dat gal ebber sence she wur so high, measuring about a foot from the floor. 'I done more dun lubbed her, Squire; I fa'rly analyzed dat Cindy.

"Here the old man's emotion overpowered him, and he wept. I made some inquiry into the matter and had a talk with 'Cindy,' which resulted in her going back to the old man, and they now live peacefully together. 'Cindy' is no longer the queen among the 'new niggers.'"—Chicago News.

The Pictured Rocks of Virginia.

The famous pictured rocks on the Evansville pike have been a source of wonder and speculation for more than a century, and have attracted much attention among the learned men of this country and Europe. The cliff upon which these drawings exist is of considerable size, and within a short distance of the highway above mentioned. The rock is a white sandstone which wears little from exposure to the weather, and upon its smooth surface are delineated the outlines of at least 50 species of animals, birds, reptiles and fish, embracing in the number panthers, deer, buffalo, otters, beavers, wildcats, wolves, raccoons, opossums, bears, elk, crows, eagles, turkeys, eels, various sorts of fish, large and small snakes, etc. In the midst of this silent managerie of specimens of the animal kingdom is the full length of a female form, beautiful and perfect in every respect. Interspersed among the drawings of animals, etc., are imitations of the footprints of each sort, the whole space occupied being 150 long by 50 wide. To what race the artist belonged, or what his purpose was in making these rude portraits must ever remain a mystery, but the work was evidently done ages ago. —Ex.

The "Left" Candidate.

"The "left" candidate had just got the figures footed up when he was approached by an old friend who extended his hand and said:

"'Sorry—very sorry. I know I got on 200 slips for you.'

The first old friend had only gone when the second came up and remarked:

"Well, that beats me. I worked hard all day, and I know got on 250 of your slips."

He went away and the third, fourth and fifth old friends showed up with about the same speech and the same figures. The "left" appeared to be nettled with the last, for he turned on him with:

"Now, then, while I ran even with my ticket, my friends got me about 1,400 extra votes, and yet I am defeated by over 400 majority. I can't figure it out."

"Oh, you can't," sneered the old friend. "Well, if the party makes a mistake in putting up an unpopular man, I refuse to be held responsible for the blunder."

A Singular Device.

In China there is a curious device to make record of earth tremors. One of the instruments is thus described: "It is of copper and is shaped like a wine bottle. Inside is a little pillar so placed as to move in eight directions. On the outside of the bottle are eight dragon heads, each of which contains a ball. Underneath these heads are eight frogs, so placed that they appear to watch the dragon's face, so that they are ready to receive the ball if it should be dropped. All the arrangements which cause the pillar when it moves to knock the ball out of the dragon's mouth are well hidden in the bottle. When shaken, the dragon instantly drops the ball, and the frog which receives it vibrates vigorously. Any one watching this instrument can easily observe earthquakes. Once upon a time a dragon dropped its ball without any earthquake, and the people therefore thought this instrument was of no use, but after two or three days a notice came, that an earthquake had taken place in Rocel.

FROM THE FOUR WINDS.

Visitor—"You look very much like your pa."

Johnny—Do you think so?"

"You take after him very much. You have got his hair."

"Tain't me what takes after pa and gets his hair. It's ma who does that when he comes home tight."

A little boy was watching his mother make sandwiches to carry to the picnic last Thursday, and asked what she was putting between the biscuits. She replied, "Deviled ham." He thought for a moment and then said: "Well, you needen't give me any of that bad man's ham, for I belong to the Star of Promise."

Uncle Jake (to his chums as an illustration of the simplicity of a stageload of city folks recently under his charge): "Es we turned Clagget's Bluff, about 7 o'clock, the hull crowd busted out in 'Ohs!' an' 'Ahs!' an' what d'ye s'pose 'twas all about? Why, of them common red an' yaller sunsets!"

An Englishman attributes his freedom from gout to the fact that he sleeps on a bedstead which is insulated by the bottoms of glass bottles broken off for the purpose. A newspaper, mentioning the fact, remarks that many a fellow could cure his gout if he would break off the bottoms of glass bottles soon enough.

At one of the recent school examinations says the Boston Record, the scholars of the intermediate grade were required in physiology to locate the liver. Evidently they knew, for the answer of one girl was this: "The liver is situated south of the stomach and a little to the right of it."

"Wasn't Herod an old man before he learned to dance?" a little girl asked of her mother.

"Why, my child, what on earth put that in your head?"

"Nothing much, only I was reading in my Sunday school lesson that the daughter of Herodias danced before Herod."

The little girl had to dance off to bed.

A patent-right suit was brought before Judge Nelson. Mr. Wm. H. Steward was counsel on one side. In summing up he occupied a whole day. The counsel on the other side made a long speech, and the Judge charged the jury. After the jury had been absent about two hours, they came into court, and the foreman said, "Your honor, the jury would like to ask a question."

"You can proceed." "Well, your honor, we should like to know what this suit is about."

An Eastern man who was traveling in Arkansas entered a bank in a certain village and asked for a draft on New York.

"Don't keep 'em," was the prompt reply.

"Don't you do any business with New York?"

"No, sir."

"Isn't that a little singular?"

"I don't see it. When a bank has got a mortgage on every farm in the county, a lien on every mule which comes into town, and a first claim on every stalk of corn and cotton for miles around, what does it want to fool with New York for?"

They tell a good story of a South Georgian statesman, who went to Charleston in the old days and stopped at a hotel. A waiter brought out some shrimps, which the Georgian stowed away as best he could. In a moment the waiter reappeared with a stand of celery. "No," said the Georgian, shaking his head solemnly; "I have tried your bugs and don't like them, and you can bet yer life I don't want none of your grass!"

"Aw, I say, Miss Ethel, I heard the other day there's a dog in Rhode Island that plays the piano. Do you believe it?" asked a simpering swell of a young lady who cordially bated him because he was always pounding the piano whenever he got a chance.

"Certainly I believe it," she replied. "I've often heard puppies play that instrument."

With a growl the dude went out so savagely that he barked his shins.

An Austin man who has been living in a rented house notified the landlord that he was going to move. "I hope," said the landlord, "that I will find the house in the same condition as when you took it." "No, I do not expect to leave it in the same condition that I found it." "Well you will have to do it." "All right, then. I'll drop a cat in the cistern and advertise for bed bugs."

"What is the matter Johnny?" asked a Texas widower of his little son.

"You are not acting right father. You are not acting as a father should. You have secrets."

"What have I done, Johnny?"

"You have engaged youself to Miss Jones, without consulting me. I had already picked out a wife for you, but as you make your bed so you must lie in it. All I can say is that a wayward father is apt to make a bad husband."

Lieutenant George Monroe had a day off and went to Nantasket. On the boat, with several friends, there was a talk about personal resemblances.

"Vohl I have been taken for Bismarck, in Berlin," said a German gentleman.

"Ausi, of a time in Paris, I was, as the Count de Paris saluted, so like him I resembled," said a teacher of French.

"That's nothing," said George, "a fellow came up and slapped me on the back, right on Tremont Street, the ether day, and cried out, "Great Cæsar! is that you?"

Mrs. Storeaway (inspecting the preserves)—Why, Bridget, I told you to label all the crocks.

Bridget (nonplussed)—Fhwat you mane, missus? Shure Oi put a labil in ivery crock.

Mrs. Storeaway (looking again)—I can't see any, Bridget.

Bridget (recovering herself)—To be sure ye can't ma'am! Oi put them insolde, an' whenivir yez wants inny, all yez hav to do is to take the paice of paper aff the top an' read the labil.

A schoolma'am at the Chase House has the following juvenile composition among her school-house manuscript: "A codfish is the only annymal that ain't got no neck. There ain't but one kind of a fish in the World that lives on the land and Flys round in the air, and that is a fish-hawk. A codfish has a large mouth, and my sunday school Teechers got a large mouth too. Two kids got nteing in the vestry one day, and one of them pulled quitea lot of hair out of the other kids Hed and the Superintending pounded one of his Ears with a book and so they quit. A fish would look funny if they had legs and could run."

"That's what I call a good dinner," remarked Bobby as he leaned back in his chair with an air of repletion.

"Bobby," said his mother. "I'm ashamed of you."

The minister who was dining with the family laughed heartily.

"Bobby appreciates the good things of life," he said, "like all all the rest of us."

"Don't you think it was a good dinner?" Bobby asked of the minister.

"Yes, indeed, I enjoyed it very much."

"Ma said she thaught you would, because she didn't suppose you got very much at home."

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R'Y

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest—is the only true middle-link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented, and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodations is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

ALL EXPRESS TRAINS between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of comfortable DAY COACHES, magnificent PULLMAN PALACE HOTEL CAR and SLEEPING CARS, elegant DINING CARS providing excellent meals, and —between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown.

A short desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points.

All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly attention.
