BRAIDWOOD, Ill., 1.—The Diamond Mine was a scene of excitement to-day. The fact that the bodies discovered were to be brought out to-day drew a large crowd. About 8 o'clock when news was brought up that the party who had gone down after the bodies had been imprisoned in the roadway while putting the bodies in the coffin, the excitement on top became intense. The wives and relatives of the men in the mines were wild with grief over the prospective death of their friends. A party was at once sent to search. When the second party nearly reached the point where the bodies were discovered, they found that a large pile of stone had caved in and blocked the narrow passage. They were dug out and liberated, but one of the men was prostrated. It is thought no further search will be made, as no man can be found who is willing to go down. Six of the bodies were taken out about 4 o'clock and placed in the morgue where the crowd passed through and viewed them.

Little more than a week ago Arfwedson began inviting his wife's employees to champagne suppers, and indulging in faro and poker with the receipts of his wife's performances. Finding himself short of money he telegraphed to John Stetson of Booth's Theatre in this city for $250 in advance, on his wife's engagement. The most interesting evidence given during the examination was that of expert scientific witnesses, who testified that the explosive material in question, known as "lique dynamite," is an article that could not by any possibility be connected with commercial or business transactions, and which is not made for any legitimate purposes. Jos. F. SMITH,

W. WOODRUFF,

Superintendents.

Salt Lake City, March 21, 1883.

Sister Dunbar's Funeral.

The obsequies of Sister Harriet H. Dunbar took place this afternoon in the 20th Ward School House. Present, Jos. E. Taylor, Bishop Sharp, Elders Karl G. Maeser, T. B. Lewis and Henry C. Fowler and other prominent brethren were present. The services began by singing by the choir.

Unveil thy bosom faithful tomb.

After which prayer was offered by Elder Henry C. Fowler. The choir then sang.

IO my Father, Thou that dwellest, etc.

The casket was covered with flowers.

President Jos. E. Taylor, then addressed the vast congregation, which filled the building. He touched on the sacredness of such occasions, and showed that no other power than that of God and no words of consolation except those imparted through His kindness could bring peace to the bereaved. Refering in eulogistic terms to the life of the deceased; sentiments of sorrow, feelings of sympathy, and the reading of the death of Sister Dunbar, throughout the Territory. This was due to her faithfulness and the cheerful spirit always manifested by her under the most trying circumstances. Her life had been worthy one, and her future secured; she would partake of a First Resurrection and rejoice in glory and exaltation of the faithful. He closed with a blessing on all the family and relations of the deceased.

Elder T. B. Lewis followed with a few brief and sympathetic remarks appropriate to the occasion. That while the lives of some who had been written upon the pages, Sister Dunbar's had been living her history in the hearts of people. He related incidents in the life of the deceased which were characteristic of her loving nature, hopeful spirit, when battling with the ravages of disease. She had bounded faith in the Gospel. Impressions concerning her death were strong, and she had more than three weeks ago expressed herself as having made her last visit, her work was done. Before death she stated to one of her friends, "I am satisfied with my religion and the congregation knew my religion that was. She was satisfied with her husband, and everything pertaining to the great law of celestial marriage, which she had obtained in its fulness. She was a wife, and had accepted the Gospel and all its principles in the entirety. And she desired to see her family grow up in the principles and become mighty in the truth she had embraced."

Bishop Sharp testified in an affecting manner to the goodness of Sister Dunbar. He said that his language was not adequate to express his feelings concerning her life of love. Comparing this meeting with the much more glorious meeting among those who received her on the shining shores of eternity. As the desire was to prolong these exercises, would now be closed. Choir sang

Go to thy resting place.

The services then ended with benediction by Elder Henry C. Fowler. A large number of vehicles followed the remains to the cemetery.
