

JOHN HUGHES WRITES "THIRTY"

Owner and Editor of "Truth"
Succumbs to Pneumonia
After Short Illness.

OLD-TIME NEWSPAPERMAN.

First Worked for Omaha Bee Then Came to Salt Lake and Joined
Staff of the Tribune.

John Hughes, owner and editor of Truth, died at 5 o'clock this morning, from pneumonia. The announcement of his death came as a surprise and shock, for while it was known that he had been falling in health for a month, few were aware that he was critically ill. On Saturday his condition became serious and the patient gradually grew worse until the end came.

Mr. Hughes had been a resident of Salt Lake about 17 years, during all of which time he had been engaged in newspaper work, first as a reporter on the Tribune and Herald, successively, later launching out in the publishing business for himself by establishing Truth, a weekly paper. As a writer he was fair and forceful, his diction being terse and bearing the stamp of sincerity. Mr. Hughes was wont to sell Right with a capital R, hewing the line irrespective of where the chips might fall.

The deceased was a native of Belfast, Ireland, where he was born April 27, 1854. He inherited considerable wealth from his father, but lost it through the "booms" and "busts" of the American market, and afterwards came to America to seek to retrieve his fortune. His first newspaper work was done on the Omaha Bee, and later he engaged in similar work in this city, as stated. The immediate family of the deceased consists of his wife, formerly Miss Nellie Peterson, and two children, Clara, aged 13, and Samuel, 11 years old. A brother, Dr. Samuel Hughes, was formerly a practicing physician in this city, but is now a resident of Southampton, England. Two married sisters and one unmarried are also living in England. Another brother, Edward Hughes, holds a prominent railroad position in Rockvale, Va.

D. O. RIDEOUTS' APPEAL

Draper Man Addresses Communication Relative to Closing Smelters.

Another appeal has been made to the farmers' committee that the ranch owners take no steps to urge the enforcement of the injunction against the smelters of Salt Lake county. A communication to John C. Mackey, chairman of the committee, has been addressed to that official by State Senator D. O. Rideout of Draper. It is as follows:

"I trust you will pardon me for again addressing you on the subject of closing the smelters in this county. Under present depressed conditions, when so many are seeking employment in vain, the question becomes one of vital importance. Your committee should consider well before closing the door of opportunity to hundreds of men at a time like the present. If the country were still on the crest of prosperity, then the effect of the closing would not be felt so intensely as it will if done at present. Without stating the arguments urged in favor of closing, I will content myself by offering a few reasons, which, in my opinion, should be sufficient to permit the smelters to run the proposed fourteen months."

"The closing of the smelters means the closing of mines, a depreciation in the value of mining stocks, the discharge of an army of miners and other workmen, a stoppage of the great stream of money paid for labor and material by them, and a consequent reduction in the value of farm products. In fact, the result is so far-reaching that I have no space to describe the disaster which would act the closing down, would bring upon our state. The Highland Boy smelter, if permitted to resume operations, for fourteen months, offers to pay to the farmers all damages which may be assessed against it by a board of arbitration, said board to be appointed by the parties interested, and in addition pay the farmers a bonus of $125,000. What more can you ask and be true to yourself and others? This sum together with the damages assessed, would be ample, undoubtedly, to pay all losses sustained by the farmers during the run of fourteen months. The matter does not end with the smelter and the farmer, there are thousands of others whose losses will never be told if you push this matter to a permanent

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS

Candidates from Utah Schools to be Examined January 21 and 22.

The examination of candidates for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford will be held Jan. 21 and 22 at the University of Utah. The scholarship provides the selected candidate with an equivalent to $1,500 for three years' study in one of the colleges at Oxford. Two candidates are sent from each of the states of the Union every three years as well as a few from Canada and other parts of the world. The conditions of the scholarship provide that the candidate shall be at least of sophomore college rank and are required to pass examinations in Greek, Latin, and mathematics.

Only three have signified their intention to take the examination this year, one senior, one junior and one sophomore at the U. of U., respectively: Frank Holman, Ralph Hartley and Wendell Phillips. In his great speech in behalf of starving Ireland said: "Go home to your children and look upon them smiling in rosy health and then think of the children of Ireland, and I know that you will give even as a bounteous Providence has given you, not grudgingly but with an open palm. He who will not give in such a cause is not worthy of the name of man. He should be sent back to nature's mint and be recoined, a counterfeit upon humanity."

"The laboring classes of this county ask you and your committee and the farmers who have endured much to endure a little longer, to rise to the position of benefactors at a time when strong, honest men with tears ask for an opportunity to earn their daily bread, and your loss, if any, will become a joy unto you, for in your hearts will abide the knowledge that your sacrifice was made for the good of your fellow men. He who gave all, even life itself, said: 'There is more joy in giving than in receiving.'"

"I close with the beautiful sentiment of Henry George: 'All that a man hath he will give for his life, if it is self interest, but in obedience to a higher duty he will give even life itself.' To your and to your committee a higher duty calls. Do not turn a deaf ear to those in distress."

Lloyd, Riverton; Harry L. Bowden, Grantsville; Peter Larsen, Hunter; Heber Bennion, Taylorsville; John P. Sorenson, Salt Lake; Ben R. EX-GOVERNOR WEST HERE.

Was Twice Executive of Utah Under Territorial Regime.

Caleb W. West, twice governor of Utah, is a guest at the Wilson hotel, on one of his periodical visits to Salt Lake. He is now a resident of San Francisco, where he occupies the position of special agent of the treasury department, a position tendered him by Grover Cleveland, then occupying the presidential chair. The second time the appointment came immediately succeeding Utah's advent to statehood, which terminated the territorial regime.

It was early in 1886 that Mr. West assumed the duties of the gubernatorial chair, and at that time the territory was in considerable turmoil. About that time Frank H. Dyer became United States marshal, and so the war was said that that pair at the helm the Mormons would "have to Dyer go West."

Ex-Governor West says that he has always taken much interest in the affairs of Utah, and although no longer a resident here, he takes delight in paying the state and city a visit.

It is in the power of anybody to make good bread. The secret is

THE LAMBERT ACCIDENT.

Claimed That Car Employees Did Not Assist Unfortunate Women.

The following version is given of the accident that happened to Mrs. M. C. Lambert and her aged mother, when the buggy in which they were riding was run into by a street car, Monday afternoon.

"Mrs. Lambert was driving north on Second West street, and had her mother, who is 74 years old, in the buggy with her. At First South she saw a car coming from the west, and crossed the track behind it. There is a double track at that point, and as the buggy was almost across the second track, the hind wheels were struck by a car coming from the east, which was going at a rapid speed and unseen by the occupants of the buggy. The back part of the vehicle was thrown off the track, throwing Mrs. Lambert to the ground, cutting her face and bruising her body. The horse ran away, dragging Mrs. Lambert some distance, when she was forced to release the lines. The animal was stopped some distance from where Mrs. Lambert fell. Her mother was thrown upon the sidewalk, receiving a bad cut over the right eye and suffering a nervous shock. The street car men offered no assistance, not even stopping to ascertain if any one was hurt."

WOOD GOES AFTER RALEIGH.

Councilman from Second Wants Street Supervisor's Scalp.

Councilman L. J. Wood is after Jake Raleigh's official scalp. It is said that the member from the Second ward has prepared affidavits charging Raleigh with all sorts of offenses. It is said that the larceny of paving blocks, city dirt and other little matters will be charged to the illustrious member of the well known family of Raleighs. Inasmuch as Mayor Bransford has named no one to take Raleigh's place, the action that will be taken is not definitely outlined. The Second ward chairman of the "American" party are against Raleigh and at a recent meeting drafted a petition asking that James Phillips be appointed as Jake's successor. Both Wood and Phillips were once employees of the street department.

PATHETIC DEATH.

Mary Hodgson Passes Away Soon After Demise of Twin Sister.

A death pathetic in the circumstances surrounding it was that of Miss Mary Hodgson, which occurred at the family residence, 1615 First avenue, yesterday afternoon. The deceased was a twin sister of Hortense Hodgson, who died Oct. 9 last. Hortense passed away at Ripon, Wis., where the family has a summer residence. Her death was a severe blow to the remaining twin, and the latter, who was in poor health, gradually sank until the end came. The sisters were born in Brooklyn, Wis., Sept. 24, 1884, and came to Salt Lake in 1897. For a time they attended the public schools, and later entered the Columbus School of Expression at Chicago. They were musicians of unusual ability, and the girl who died yesterday was an elocutionist.

PRESIDENT'S NEW HARMONY IDEA

Plan of Nation's Executive to Get Governors To-gether.

IEWS OF NATIONAL ILLS.

Mr. Roosevelt Wants State Executives To Confer on Subject—Question of Delegates to Convention.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, Jan. 11.—President Roosevelt has treated the country to so many surprises that politicians and legislators never know what he is going to do next. He had not been long in the White House before he heard well founded rumors that the Maryland Republicans were in a party in that state. Immediately he sent for the late ex-Gov. Lloyd Lowndes to come to Washington, take lunch with him and discuss the situation. Then he summoned the late United States Senator McComas, who trained with Lowndes. After hearing their story the president in turn had republican Congressmen Mudd, Watcher, Jackson and other leaders who ruled one of the factions to unfold their grievances. Subsequently, Col. Bonaparte was taken into the Roosevelt cabinet as attorney-general, and for several years at least Mr. Roosevelt managed to prevent the Maryland factions from fighting each other in public.

NEW METHOD OF CONFERENCE.

The president is apparently determined upon another new departure so managed to prevent the Maryland race concerned. He proposes that in the near future both Democratic and Republican governors shall meet in the big east room and try to reach bottom facts as to what ails the country and causes so many people in high places to declare that perhaps the Roosevelt administration is responsible for the financial troubles of the past 19 months. Some governors have replied that they will be only too happy to respond to the call, others are looking off, and probably some will not attend if the program is carried out on the ground that they have enough state matters to absorb their time and attention without dipping into national matters.

NEW MEN FOR DELEGATES.

According to the talk heard here at present, a smaller number of congressmen will be delegates to the Chicago convention than at past gatherings of that sort. This is due in a measure to the number of lawmakers who are avowed candidates for the Republican nomination for the presidency. Foraker, Knox and La Follette are the senators who will try to win conclusions with Secy. Taft, Vice President Fairbanks and Gov. Hughes. Speaker Cannon is the lone Republican candidate in the house. The boomers of the latter have an idea that it is good policy for members of the house not to try to go as delegates to the Chicago convention. They can do better work for Uncle Joe from the outside. Over 30 Republican senators were delegates to the Philadelphia convention in 1900 which nominated McKinley and Roosevelt. It will be queer at the Chicago convention in June to see the delegation with Senators Platt and Dewey not among the big four from the Empire state. New leaders will also be in the front line from many other states.

SPEND HOLIDAYS IN WASHINGTON.

"Did you have an enjoyable Christmas at home?" asked a Pennsylvania member of the house of Representatives, Smith of the El Paso district of Texas. "At home?" answered Smith. "Why, man, it costs nearly a hundred dollars in railroad fare for me to go home, and as I can live for more than two weeks on that sum I stayed right here in Washington."

Railroad passes having gone out of fashion, mighty few of the state members residing in the tariff states made the holiday trip to their homes.

native of Limerick county, Ireland, when here the other day mentioned a lively Jersey City convention that was held when he resided in that bustling place. A city ticket was to be nominated. An Irishman contended that as the sons of Erin polled more votes for the Democracy than any other nationality the best office on the ticket should be given to an Irishman. Carried with a whoop. Then a German arose and moved that the second best office be accorded to a prominent Teuton. Carried amid loud applause. Then another Irishman was picked out and still another German. More Irish and more German Democrats were being pressed when a long, lank, lean, hungry looking American with a weak, consumptive voice got the floor and in squeaky tones said, "Mr. Chairman, if there is anything left on the ticket I most respectfully move that at least one American be nominated."

"Put him out, the Know Nothing!" yelled a husky Irishman in the rear of the hall, amid the cheers and laughter of the delegates.

MANY INTRODUCED BUT FEW PASSED.

Before the holiday recess 2,981 bills had been introduced in the senate and 11,700 in the house. This did not include joint and concurrent resolutions. A very small percentage of these measures will become laws. Some of the bills are old timers. They bob up in every Congress and were introduced by men who have long since died.

STORY BY TAFT.

It is an infrequent cabinet meeting that Secy. Taft does not contribute a good story for the president and his official family as a sort of appetizer for the more serious work of the session. One day last spring the secretary of war came into the room a few minutes late and to the surprise of all uttered a "good-morning" came in a whisper. He was suffering from a severe cold. "What are you doing here with a cold like that?" asked the president, reproachfully.
