

WOOL MEN SELECT THEIR COMMITTEE

President Gooding Names Six Prominent Sheepmen to Act For Growers.

SECURING CENTRAL MARKET

City Named by This Body Is Due to Become Headquarters for Buyers, Flockmasters and Factories.

The committee of six western men who are to select a central wool market for western wool, and organize the corporation which is to handle its wool through that market is to be composed of Edward H. Callister, of the Utah Wool Growers' association; W. Scott Anderson, of Boise; Thomas Austin, of Salt Lake; J. E. Cosgriff, of Rawlins, Wyo.; W. B. Sleeper, of Metcete, Wyo., and President Gooding of the National association.

"I selected these men," said President Gooding last night before leaving for the north, "because I knew they would do the work and stay with the cause. I don't for a minute expect this movement to go through without great opposition, and much friction. For a year or two other cities may be wooed by high bidding, but the city committee names will through all necessity become the wool market of the country in time, and also the manufacturing center. Buyers we expect will fight, but in the end a campaign is bound to win."

Nearly all of those on the committee, including President Gooding, are known to favor Chicago, from the presentation of facts. Mr. Sleeper, who has personally investigated the whole field, is enthusiastically in favor of Chicago.

The committee will set out upon its tour of the cities requesting to be designated as the wool center about Oct. 1, and it is expected will be ready to report its choice before Oct. 15.

WESTERN MARKET LETTER.

Kansas City Stockyards, Aug. 21, 1908.—The supply of cattle here last week was 10,000 head, including 10,000 calves, which was a large number in recent weeks, but still below the normal number for this season of the year. Owners are holding back their cattle, making a lower price, but native territory, as pastures are good, and cattle doing well. This fact leads to the opinion that receipts will be heavy later on in the season, which may affect the market adversely, but others hold to the opinion that the market in the fall will be best. The run today here is 2,000 head, including 2,000 calves, market steady, but lower, lower, but other kinds, including stockers and feeders strong. A train of Hughes and Sherrard stock steers from Colorado sold here today at 3.50, with small out at 3.00. A shipment from Thompsons, Utah, is here today, including 1,500 pound killers at 4.35, 950 pound steers at 4.00, and a few tail-ends at 3.50. New Mexico and panhandle cows are coming pretty freely, selling today at 2.50 to 3.00, canners 2.25 to 2.50, calves 4.00 to 6.00, a few fancy veal at 2.50. Good prospects for fall, and fine pastures have stimulated the country demand, stockers selling at 3.40 to 4.25, and feeders 2.75 to 4.50, although choice steers, both in the stocker and in feeder class have brought 5.00 recently.

Sheep receipts are running ahead of last year ago so far this month, and there is little prospect of change in the market fluctuates continually. Range sheep and lambs form a good part of the receipts, but some main movement from Utah and the northwest not yet started. The run is 5,000 head here today, market steady on sheep, weak on lambs. Medium class lambs brought 5.50 today, which was not a full lot of the market. Yearlings 4.50, weathers 1.15, ewes 4.00. Some reservation lambs sold last week at 6.25 and 6.35, first season here, weighing 71 pounds.

ALLEGED LAWYER LEAVES IN HASTE

J. W. Wooten Admits He Has No Right to Practise in Utah Courts.

WHITAKER TAKES ACTION

Judge Stops Short the Boisterous Conduct of Police Court "Attorney" in Reyes Case.

J. W. Wooten, who says he is an attorney at law, was almost dazed this morning by Judge J. J. Whitaker of the civil division of the city court, now sitting for Judge Diehl in the criminal division.

For more than a year Wooten has been "practising" law in the police court and has managed to act as counsel in several cases. In each case that his name was mentioned on the records as counsel he committed, under the statutes, Sec. 112, contempt of court and laid himself liable to a fine for each offense, according to Judge Whitaker.

Wooten is not a member of the bar of the State of Utah. He made the admission this morning in answer to a question from Judge Whitaker. The man has gained considerable notoriety about police headquarters since his arrival here from Colorado more than a year ago by his offensive conduct and boisterous and noisy handling cases in the criminal division of the city court, and not long ago he was reprimanded by Judge Diehl for using insulting language toward a witness on the stand.

It had not occurred to any one to ask whether or not Wooten had a right to practise law in this state and he was tolerated by the courts until his blustering became unbearable.

GETS ORDER FOR MONEY.

Last night the man called at the city jail and demanded to see Louis Reyes, a Mexican arrested yesterday morning by Patrolman Carlson, for stealing a silk skirt from Hamilton's store on Main street, and he also wanted to see Frank Lopez, the Mexican crook arrested by Patrolman Beck and carried out in Ogden for the robbery of the residence of J. H. Corbin. Wooten brought an interpreter with him and succeeded in getting an order from Lopez for $7.50 credited to Lopez on the register of arrests. When Wooten presented the order the desk sergeant was not in, and the policeman in charge refused to give him the money. When Wooten returned he was informed that an order had been issued by Chief Pitt to hold the money for evidence.

JUDGE ASKS A QUESTION.

In court this morning, when the case of Louis Reyes, charged with the larceny of the skirt was called, Wooten arose in his usual bombastic style and said: "If the court please, Ah, um, I have been asked to represent the defendant."

"Mr. Wooten, are you a member of the bar?" quietly asked Judge Whitaker.

"Not of this state," replied Wooten. "Then you can not practise in this court," said the judge. Wooten looked dazed for a moment and then, leaning toward a newspaper, he begged that nothing be said about the matter. Wooten also offered to do the newspaper man "a great favor" if he would keep the affair out of the papers. He said he would do anything for a newspaper man with the supreme court and lost no time in leaving the court room.

NOT A MEMBER OF BAR.

"I was informed that Wooten was not a member of the bar and I decided to find out. Under the law any person who is not a member of the bar and practises law is guilty of contempt of court but I did not care to do any more than I did."

Some time ago the man, who has gained the title about police headquarters as "Mt. Pelee" Wooten, got in the midnight through the John Hempel. Hempel discovered that two members of the painters' union were going about various saloons taking subscriptions for a man in the county jail being held for the charge of larceny. It was alleged that the prisoners was a member of the painters' union and Hempel claimed that Wooten hatched the scheme of getting money by sending the case and abetted the collection for the prisoner. Their work was stopped by Hempel just as soon as he found who was behind it and the further fact that the prisoner was not a member of the union.

BEATEN BY CLIENT.

Wooten also figured in a sensational case on Second South and Main street a few months ago when an aged man knocked him down and gave him a severe beating for alleged misappropriation of money. It was claimed by the old man, who had been a prisoner for some time, that Wooten had collected for him to turn over some money and other property for safe keeping and did not return it, as he had promised. When the latter got out of jail he in the Wooten and demanded a return of the money and, getting no satisfaction, blackened Wooten's eye and otherwise pummeled him.

Reyes, the man charged with the larceny of the skirt, pleaded guilty to petit larceny and was sentenced to 60 days in the city jail in default of a fine of $60.

FIREMEN TAKE EXERCISE.

Firemen about police headquarters have had but little to do of late, so when they got through cleaning up every day, attending to the horses and inspecting apparatus, etc., they still feel in need of a little exercise. Nine of them started this morning to timber up a bit with bat and ball.

They are getting ready for a great struggle on the diamond on Sept. 2, when the line up against the trolley holders and controller pushers employed on the Salt Lake street cars. The game is expected to be a hammer in every sense of the word and with a capital H. The same is for the benefit fund of the two organizations.

INSURANCE MEN ARE HERE TODAY

Utah Association of Life Underwriters Entertaining Eastern Men of Wealth.

MANY SEEKING INVESTMENT

The Opportunities Afforded in This City Are Being Brought to the Attention of the Visitors.

Thirty-five eastern business men, many of them wealthy and looking for favorable opportunities for investment, are in the city today, the guests of the Utah Association of Life Underwriters. Among the number are some of the richest insurance men of the eastern home office cities of the great companies. They are being shown the city today and will leave for their homes tonight. In the meantime "boosters" are telling the visitors of the advantages of Salt Lake City and the state in general, in addition to entertaining them during their short stop in the city.

These men were delegates to the annual convention of the national underwriters' association, which has just adjourned in Los Angeles. The Salt Lake delegation, headed by Will Farrell, president of the local association, took the eastern men in hand while in the city, and they are now showing them with stories of Utah and Salt Lake. So bright and rosy did the opportunities of the city loom up in the light of these delegates that the Salt Lake delegates convinced the eastern men that a trip to this city would be the best way in the world to prove all they said. They agreed to come and they are here. The Utah association is now busy pointing out the truth of their stories to the complete satisfaction of the easterners.

THEY MAY COME BACK.

Among the prominent insurance men of the east who are here today are Col. Will A. Waite, secretary of the national association, and William Toman, third vice president of the organization. These men are from Detroit and Bridgeport, respectively. They are among the capitalists who are looking for fields for investment and Mr. Farrell and his associates are doing their best to show them all Salt Lake's advantages. The best that Mr. Farrell can do is quite a little bit, and considering the fact that he is aided and abetted by John D. Spencer and R. S. Waite, and a whole host of other insurance underwriters, is assurance sufficient that the eastern men will leave the city with a strong inclination to return. The program arranged for today includes a trip to Saltair, where bathing, dancing and luncheon will provide the entertainment. Upon the return of the delegates from Saltair, an organ recital will be given at the

Richer Blues in Inland Sea Than in Famed Bay of Naples

A beautiful new automobile course has just been prospected by Secy. Jennings of the Automobile club, and it is designed to carry the Salt Lake touring man into the rich districts of Tooele county.

"I tell you," he said last night, speaking with enthusiasm of the scenery encountered, "that the bay of Naples itself has no richer and deeper blues than our own Great Salt Lake. To skirt along the southern shore in an automobile and catch the glint of sunset upon those waters is an opportunity the people here appreciate only in the slightest measure. One such drive that is sprinkled, to the Redwood road, over Jordan, then south to the first turn west, and take that through Grainger, following the main travel, and through several short turns to the point of the mountain. Here the new smelter roadway has caused the old road to be abandoned. A ride over the new grade is easily made, and the view from the point of the mountain, where the difficulties are encountered. This mountain point is often used by herdsmen in trailing cattle and sheep. They roll rocks down from the side hills, and these rocks are never removed. An effort is now being made with the Tooele county commissioners to have them look into this bad strip of country, and have it repaired. If only this one place were fixed up, the road would be all that could be desired. From Lake point the main road is to be followed towards Tooele and when on top of the low ridge near that place, a grist mill and lake will be seen, at which point the road to the right should be taken into Grantsville, a splendid point at which to end the tour.

The discovering of new pathways for automobiles is one of the pleasant diversions of this summer. One such lies along the Wasatch base from Twelfth South to a point above Murray, from which any one of a number of lanes can be found through which to drive westward to the smelter town and home via the Redwood road over the Jordan or along State street.

The intra-city tours to Ogden and Provo have been practically abandoned until something is done to repair the roads. To be jolted as if in a railroad train, off the track, and bounced at full speed along the ties, is not pleasant enough to recompense for any of the other pleasures the night might afford. Automobileing is coming into vogue in the place of the family carriage, and the evening spin is now considered so certain a necessity by a great proportion of the people, that the repairing of the highways has become a generally recognized necessity. Mr. Jennings is being urged for the legislature purely as a good roads candidate.
