

DISCOURSE

BY

ELDER LORENZO SNOW,

DELIVERED

At Logan, on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 4th, 1882.

REPORTED BY G. F. GIBBS.

The speaker commenced by reading the 19th, 20th and 21st verses of the 17th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John, and then said:

It is a question in my mind when reflecting upon the subject herein contained whether we take into proper consideration the great purposes that God has in view with regard to the human family, and the manner in which He proceeds to accomplish them. When the Lord calls an individual or a class of individuals out from the world, it is not always with an object to benefit that particular individual or individuals. The Lord has not in view merely the salvation of a few people called Latter-day Saints who have been or who may be gathered into these valleys, but the salvation of all men, the living and the dead. When the Lord called Abraham He made him certain promises concerning the glory that should come upon him and his posterity, and in these promises we find this remarkable saying: that in him and in his seed all the nations of the earth should be blessed. Paul in offering an explanation to this, says, in speaking of seed, it did not have reference "to seeds as of many, but one which was Christ Jesus;" that is, in Abraham and in Christ Jesus, his seed, all the families of the earth should be blessed; showing that in calling Abraham and in making this promise, the design of the Lord was to bless not only him and his posterity, but all the families of the earth.

In the dealings of God with man, we find that He often called upon the heathen nations with a view to the accomplishment of certain purposes. The Ninevites, for instance, received a communication from the Lord through the Prophet Jonah, telling them that in forty days their city should be destroyed. This people was worthy to receive warning by a revelation from God, as they manifested afterward in their repentance. And Jonah fled from the presence of the Lord, for He knew that the Almighty had respect for not only one nation and people, but for all nations and peoples that feared Him and lived according to the light which they possessed; and he believed that the Lord would forgive that people; and therefore that he, as a Prophet, would fail in his prediction, and would suffer in his character as a Prophet. However, we find that Jonah turned up at last in Nineveh, a wiser, if not a better man. And he went to work in earnest performing the mission to which he had been called, and delivered the message to the people. The king heard of it, and he had that faith in and that knowledge of the character of the Almighty that he believed and humbled himself, and used his influence with his nobles and people that they should do likewise, that the wrath of God might be turned and he had his people preserved. So he came down off his throne and called upon his nobles to put on sackcloth, and commanded that the beasts of the field should be covered with sackcloth, and the people repented and humbled themselves before God in the hope that He would turn away His wrath from them. And they so fully complied with the requirements that His judgment was reversed, and the great city preserved.

And when the Lord called upon the Prophet Jeremiah He told him that His purposes were not confined to the people of Israel, but that He was interested in the welfare and salvation of all nations. On a certain occasion he was commanded to make yokes and to place them upon his neck; and when the messengers from the various nations should come to visit Israel, he was to send those yokes to their masters, their kings, and tell them what His mind and will were concerning them. The yokes were sent to six different nations, with a message requiring of those several kings certain duties. Those nations did not profess to believe in God; they worshipped idols, but God had respect to them notwithstanding. And it would not be a matter of astonishment to know that those people stood upon a far higher plane of morality and faith in God than the people of our boasted 19th century. Now, the Lord told them that it was His intention to make a certain person king over all the nations including theirs, and He required them to submit to this change in their governmental affairs, as he had appointed Nebuchadnezzar to hold dominion over all nations and peoples, and over the beasts of the field. "All these things are mine (says the Lord) and have I not the right to do with them as I please? Now you nations, if you do not wish to be uprooted, listen to the voice of my servant Jeremiah, and bow your necks to the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar." Even His own people Israel whom He had called and proposed to lift up in the eyes of the nations, Jeremiah was commanded to tell them to submit to Nebuchadnezzar, and thus permit themselves to go into captivity; which if they did not they should be overthrown, and Jerusalem destroyed. But they would not listen. They worshipped false gods, and they obeyed not the voice of the Almighty; but were guilty of all kinds of abominations, and were so full of wickedness that the anger of the Lord was kindled against them; and He permitted him, whom He called His servant, Nebuchadnezzar, to destroy their Temple, break down their altars, and scatter them throughout his kingdom. On a certain occasion the Lord inspired King Nebuchadnezzar to issue an edict in which His people Israel were much interested, as they were in captivity. Nebuchadnezzar had discovered the true and living God, and he felt to honor Him; and in order to fully satisfy his feelings in this respect he passed an edict to the effect that whosoever would not respect the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego should be cut to pieces and a dunghill be made of their houses. In this way the people in Jerusalem and in the country round about while in captivity were compelled to have regard to the true God, according to the edict of the heathen king. This is the way God worked in those days.

Finally when Jesus came, He came as a sacrifice not simply in the interest of Israel, or the posterity of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, but in the interest of the whole human family, that in Him all men might be blessed, that in Him all men might be saved; and His mission was to make provision by which the whole human family might receive the benefits of the everlasting Gospel, not, as I say, Israel alone, but the whole human race; and not alone those dwelling upon the earth, but those also in the spirit world. The Apostles at first did not comprehend the universality of the purpose of the Lord, and it took the Lord some time to convince them. There was Peter, he had the idea that the Gospel was to be confined to the Jews; and in order to show him to the contrary the Lord sent a special manifestation, in the form of a sheet let down from heaven containing all manner of beasts, and then commanded him to arise, slay and eat. But Peter demurred, giving as a reason, that nothing unclean had entered his mouth. But he was told that what the Lord had made clean no man should call unclean. And after he had received this heavenly vision, he was waited on by messengers sent by a distinguished personage. It appears that the Lord had found a Gentile who honored Him, who gave much alms to the poor, and who prayed honestly and fervently unto Him. When Peter was conducted by the messenger to the place he learned that it was Cornelius, a Gentile, who had sent for him; who had assembled with his friends to hear what the Lord had to communicate. When Peter discovered himself in the company of Gentiles he considered it highly improper for one who was a Jew to be seen associating with that class of people. And then Cornelius explained how that an angel had appeared to him instructing him to send to Joppa to the house of one Simon, a tanner, etc. On hearing this Peter commenced preaching to him and his Gentile friends. And while he was speaking the Holy Ghost fell upon them, and they spake in tongues and prophesied. His eyes were now opened, and his views became changed from those narrow conceptions that he had entertained in regard to the dispensation of the blessings of the Lord being confined to a few. But when he saw that the Holy Ghost was upon them as it had fallen upon his own people, he asked, Who can forbid water that they should not be baptized? And he commanded that they be baptized. Peter learned that the Gospel of the kingdom was to go to all nations, that all might receive the benefits of the same, according to the promise made to Abraham, that in him and in Christ, his seed, all the nations of the earth should be blessed.

It was equally difficult to convince the other Apostles in regard to this matter, for when they found what Peter had done they chided him for so doing; so he explained to them how this departure occurred; how that the Lord had convinced him as to the propriety of allowing the Gentiles to be baptized.

I have thought sometimes that we take too narrow a view of the character and purposes of God. When the Lord introduces a dispensation to His servants, as a general thing it becomes necessary for them to operate in the interests of many. There is one thing, however, that should not escape our notice. From the verses which I have read the importance and the necessity of the Apostles being united, was shown, in order that the purposes of the Lord might be effective in the world. For unless the Apostles and those that believe on them were united, the world could not believe in the mission and purposes of the Savior. Therefore Jesus prayed to the Father that all those whom the Father had given Him might be one as He and the Father were one, that the world might believe that the Father had sent Him. In fact this is what the Lord designed to effect through Israel in bringing them out from Egyptian bondage; He wished to make of them a united people, a peculiar nation, a nation of people whom God could honor and respect in order that the world might believe, and that they might receive the blessings which He wished to bestow upon them, inasmuch as the human race are all the offspring of God; and if Israel had carried out His requirements, the world, no doubt would have been greatly benefited thereby, and the purposes of God more fully effected. The Lord wished to show His character, and the character of the heavens, and wished to extend His love and blessings through Israel to the whole human family; but Israel was disobedient and would not hearken to His voice. And as to the Apostles, so far as their fulfilling the wishes of the Savior concerning their being one, we are told by the revelations of the Lord through the Prophet Joseph that His disciples in days of old had feelings one against another, and forgave not one another in their hearts, and for this reason they were chastened, yes, they were sorely chastened. The Apostles were persecuted, and with one exception perhaps, were finally martyred. And the churches they established never came to that union which the Savior prayed for, and consequently they failed to stand the tide of opposition. The Latter-day Saints are trying to do the work that Israel failed to do; and that the former Saints did not accomplish, and we can only do it by becoming one even as the Father and the Son are one, and this in order that the world may believe that we are sent of God. We have got to be perfect, and come to the measure of the stature of Christ Jesus in order that the world may know that Jesus has sent and commissioned His Apostles, and restored the holy Priesthood. If we have division in our midst; if we be divided either spiritually or temporally, we never can be the people that God designs us to become, nor can we ever become instruments in His hands of making the world believe that the holy Priesthood has been restored, and that we have the everlasting Gospel. In order for us to effect the purposes of God we shall have to do as Jesus did—conform our individual will to the will of God, not only in one thing, but in all things, and to live so that the will of God shall be in us. We have the same Priesthood that Jesus had, and we have got to do as He did, to make sacrifices of our own desires and feelings as He did, perhaps not to die martyrs as He did, but we have got to make sacrifices in order to carry out the purposes of God, or we shall not be worthy of this holy Priesthood, and be saviors of the world. God intends to make us saviors not only of many that now dwell on the earth, but of many in the spirit world; He will not only place us in a position to save ourselves, but He will make us competent to assist in the redemption of many of the offspring of the Almighty. And that we may assist in the salvation of other people we are building this Temple, on yonder beautiful plateau; and all Latter-day Saints in this Temple district are called upon to aid in accomplishing this work.

I have come now to what I wish to say about the business of this Temple, in reference to which I desire to speak a few minutes. I suspect that many of the Saints are anticipating the completion of this Temple next spring. As to when it will be finished I am not able to say; I think, however, it will depend upon the efforts we make to that end.

The speaker then went on to speak of the work that was necessary to be done, and proposed a way to accomplish the same; and then said:

I would not be afraid to prophesy, if I were in the habit of prophesying, that the people of this Temple district will be found ready and willing to do all that may be required by way of completing this building. And I have not the least doubt in the world—I believe it full, that angels will minister to the people, and the power of the Almighty will be made manifest to a greater extent than at any other time, or in any other house, since the days of Jesus. You know how it was in that Kirtland Temple, Jesus the Son of God appeared in His glory standing upon the breast-work of the pulpit, His eyes like a flaming fire, and His hair as white as the driven snow, while His countenance shone like the sun in his brightness. And those who saw Him testify to this fact, and they describe His voice as the sound of rushing waters, as He said: I am He that was slain; I am he that lives; I am your advocate with the Father. Your sins are forgiven you. And He then blessed those who had assisted in building the Temple to His name, and He accepted it at their hands. And this people will be entitled to those blessings that Jesus in His glory pronounced upon those who aided in building the Kirtland Temple, inasmuch as they contribute in the future as liberally as they have in the past. Amen.

PAROWAN, Iron Co., Utah,
January 17, 1883.

Editor Deseret News:

We are now fairly in the embrace of winter. Plenty of snow in the mountains and in the valley. The sleighs are flying around day after day and evenings; the laughter of the youthful and happy occupants with the jingle of the merry bells on the horses may be heard any afternoon or evening. The prospect of plenty of water next summer is very gratifying to farmers and indeed everybody.

Our co-operative stock herd, and also our Mercantile and Manufacturing Institution, declared handsome dividends in November last. The institutions named are in excellent condition. Our mercantile houses deal exclusively with the parent house (Z. C. M. I.) Salt Lake City. We have found this course to be the most profitable.

The election in November last for officers of the Co-op. herd resulted as follows: For President, S. S. Barton; Vice-President, John Topham; Directors, Wm. H. Holyoak, Wm. Dalley and Simon Topham; for the mercantile and manufacturing institution, President, Wm. C. McGregor; Vice-President, John E. Dalley; Directors, Charles Adams, Edward Dalton, M. Richards, Jr., John Topham and Hugh L. Adams.

One of the most pleasant and enjoyable social gatherings, so far, was held here on the 13th inst., pioneer day, Parowan being 32 years old on that day. This was a High Priests' party, gotten up at the instigation of Patriarch Henry Lunt, of Cedar City, President of the High Priests of the Parowan Stake of Zion. The party was interspersed with songs, speeches, etc. Pres. Lunt made two short speeches during the evening in his honest and humorous way, recounting the experience of the early pioneers of Iron County, himself being one of them; of his going to meeting barefoot in those early days, because he could find no shoes to wear. His remarks were of the serio-comic order, leaving everybody feeling happy, and they were greeted with smiles and applause. A very interesting history of Iron County, written by Brother John Urle, of Cedar City; at the request of the late Apostle Orson Pratt, was read by Brother Urle, (this history was furnished the Brancrofts, of San Francisco).

Brother Lunt sang "Old Adam

was a gentleman," in his happiest style.

The choir sang fine pieces. Bro. John Chatterley, of Cedar City, sang two comic songs in grand style. The Matheson sisters sang "Gathering Shells on the Sea Shore" very beautifully. The committee, Bros. H. D. Bayles, Thos. Durham and Bishop Wm. C. Mitchell, prepared a repast which was partaken of by the company at 10 p. m.; All seemed to vie with each other in doing the agreeable and making each other happy. The party commenced at 2 p. m. and dissolved at midnight. On retiring numbers expressed themselves as never having enjoyed themselves better, and it is believed all retired with a feeling of renewed faith and fellowship for each other, and love for the general cause.

Measles is now and for some time past has been quite prevalent here among the children, but they seem to be of a mild type, and generally they soon get over them. Therwise the general health of the people is excellent, though business is rather dull at present and money rather tight, but all have something to eat and wear, for which we feel grateful to the Giver of every good.

Respectfully,
Wm. C. MCGREGOR.

Hadley D. Johnson.

SKETCHES OF THE EARLY HISTORY OF IOWA, NEBRASKA, AND THE RAILROADS.

From the Omaha Herald.

The name of Hadley D. Johnson is a still familiar one to the early residents of this border. For some years he was a citizen of Omaha, and for several years before that time he held the same relation to Iowa and the neighboring town of Council Bluffs. Mr. Johnson has lived in Utah and Salt Lake for a considerable length of time, and has now gone to the remoter West, and as far away as Washington Territory, where he will cast his fortunes with the Puget's Sound region at New Tacoma. When we say that Mr. Johnson has passed the allotted age of three score and ten years, his friends here will be the more surprised that he has gone so far from his old home to find a new one. Mr. Johnson was an important man in the earlier life of Iowa and Nebraska, and it may not be out of the way to remind the people of the fact by giving a short sketch of his ways and work here. He came to Iowa in 1850, and to Kanawha (C. B.) in 1851. Strongly imbued with the idea of the future Pacific railroad, he was among the active men who sought the location of the initial point of the railway where it now is. In 1852 he was elected by the democrats to the Iowa state senate, and made the journey to Iowa City, the scene of his legislative labors, from Council Bluffs on horseback and alone in the winter season, finding very few stopping places between the Missouri river and Winteret. The senatorial district was composed of forty-four counties, but the people mostly lived in Pottawattamie and two or three others. The Iowa railroad policy was fixed during that session so far as land grants could do it. Memorials to congress were adopted asking for donations of lands for the main lines of railway that now terminate near us, Mr. Johnson being the only representative from the Council Bluffs district, and he holds, as we do, that but for this the Pacific railroad would never have been built from Omaha. In 1853 the people of Missouri revived the agitation of the organization of the Territory of Nebraska which they hoped and intended should be bounded on the north by the Platte River, pushing the Indians out of it to the northward. In some memoranda which Mr. Johnson has furnished for this article he gives his own account of this intensely interesting chapter of our history in the following:

Arrangements were made for holding an election for a delegate, among other places, at Sarpy's trading house, whereupon a number of the citizens of Council Bluffs moved over, camped on the rock-bound shore at the old Trader's Point ferry, held an election and unanimously decided that I should go to Washington, which I did at my own expense. Going to Washington, again traveling in company with B. R. Ingram, overland to the Mississippi, we took a steamer bound for St. Louis, thence I went by other steamers to Cincinnati, thence by rail to Washington. My plan was to organize two territories, which, being submitted to Gen. A. C. Dodge, then senator from Iowa, and to Hon. C. A. Douglas, was by them approved, and you know the rest except this you do not know; that my resistance to the Missouri plan of making the Platte river the boundary between the territories was so persistent, and so
