Route for Another Transcontinental Road Tied up Along the Banks of the Clearwater.

SOUGHT CONTROL FOR YEARS.

Agreement Entered Into Between Northern Pacific and Union Pacific Runs Cut.

That the vigilance of Harriman interests never relaxes, is illustrated in a great many instances, but in none more forcibly than in a little stroke by which the railroad king ties up for himself another outlet for a transcontinental line in the northwest, which was for years the bone of contention between the competing lines of the Northern Pacific and Union Pacific. The news of this latest coup follows fast on the heels of the action of the system taking advantage of the water level route between Huntington, Oregon, and Ballard's Landing, in Idaho, thus securing a river level route for its heavy freight trains practically for the whole distance between Pocatello and Portland, It was necessary to build through a hard cut in the to build through a hard cut in the mountains just west of Huntington, and perhaps a great deal of tunneling will be necessary to get through, but the expense saved eventually and in the light of centuries of traffic yet ahead of the railroads of the north-west, makes the outlay seem like a bagatelle considered from the broader standpoint, and the roads can afford to undertake it for the ultimate advan-tage which this low route will give. The latest proposition has to do with a project still in Idako, but two or three hundred miles further north, and notice of the action securing the coun-

This right of way fol-lows the south bank of the Clearwater river and would give, if constructed, the shortest line between the Missis-sippi river, Portland and the Pacific ocean. Nine years ago the great cost of construction in the Clearwater coun-try is understood to have induced the of construction in the Clearwater coun-try is understood to have induced the Northern Pacific and the Union Pacific, then just entrenching themselves in the northwest, to enter an informal agreement, whereby neither road was to touch this field, both of them rec-ognizing its immense importance sira-getically and the ultimate fact that they would have to use it some time. bill placing the maximum rate of passenger fares in Pennsylvania at 2 cents per mile, recently passed by the legislature of that state, was signed by legislature of that state, was signed by the governor on April 5, says the Rail-way Review. The new law goes into effect on Sept. 30, and applies to all steam railways. It prescribes a penal-ty of $1,000 for any corporation which volates its provisions, and also pro-vides that a single fare need not be less than five cents. A bill exempting lines less than 40 miles in length from the provisions of this act is pending in the house railroad committee. It will probably be amended so as to apply to roads less than 50 miles in length, and

SECOND MUSICALE.

Excellent Program by Local Talent at Ladies' Literary Club.

The second monthly musicale of the music section of the Ladies' Literary club was given last night. It proved of such excellence as to lead to justly of such excellence as to lead to justy expressed regrot that the auditorium was not crowded to the doors. How-ever, there was a good attendance, and the enjoyment of the program was such as to lead to reasonable ex-pectation of a large and equally ap-preciative house at the May function. These musicales are under the direc-tion of Mrs. W. A. Wetzell who is se-curing for their acceptable perform-ance the best of local talent, with the ance the best of local talent, with the idea of not only giving pleasure, but also to encourage home study and love of the divine art. A small fee is charged to defray expenses. Last evening's performance was on a high order of merit, a credit to the club and city. The plano soloist was Miss Mattie Read. Her playing was of a high character that gave was Miss Matitie Read. Her playing was of a high character that gave unmistakable evidence of years of painstaking, unremitting study in Ber-lin under noted instructors. She has a fine mastery of technique, so that the difficult passages of the Grieg tone pictures and the Moszkowski con-cert study were given with brilliancy and without apparent conscious effort. She declined an encore. The vocal soloist was Miss Alice Wolfgang, whose public appearances are now of special interest in view of her ap-proaching departure for the east to study. Miss Wolfgang sang with ex-cellent tact and taste, her rich, heavy ellent tact and taste, her rich, heavy ontraito being heard to advantage Brahms' "Spring Song," and Nor-is' "Three Roses Red."

The selec-tions chosen were bright, vivacious and interesting, and the efforts of the singers were very creditable. Their volces blended well, their interpreta-tion was good, and their singing much enjoyed. Mrs. Wetzell directed. The stringed quintat under the direction atringed quint under the direction of Miss Esther Allen was a valuable addition to the piano accompaniment of Mrs. A. H. Peabody for the chorus. The other accompanists were Miss Maude Thorne for Miss Wolfgang, and Mrs. George Skelton for Mr, Andrews.

Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Salt Lake have equaled in brilliancy, enjoyment and the expressions of whole souled sentiments of friendship the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Royle. The event occurred last night at the studio of their daughter, Mrs. Martha Royle King in the Commercial Club bullding, and from $ o'clock until midnight the spacious rooms were thronged with friends who assembled to congratulate Judge and Mrs. Royle on the notable occasion. They were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Lee Sharp, of Butte, an old friend of Mrs. Royle's, who was also present at her silver wedding; Mrs. Carroll, also of Butte; Mrs. Simon Bamberger and Mrs. William D. Simon Bamberger and Mrs. William D. Loomis. The room was a perfect bow-er of flowers, plants and decorations. A perfect load of telegrams and letters from absent friends was received, among the most highly prized being greetings from Bishop Tuttle, Rev. G. D. B. Miller, Mrs. Fidelia Hamilton, and the absent sons of Mr. and Mrs. Royle, Dr. Sinclair K. Royle, New York; Jack Royle, now in Wonder, Ne-vada, and Edwin Milton Royle, the well-known play-wright. A telegram from the latter bore the cheering intel-ligence that his new play, "Clio," proligence that his new play, "Clio," pro-duced under his direction by Nance O'Niel in Boston last night, had had a most successful opening. There were a large number of beautiful, interesting

The guests of the evening included several hundred of the leading people of the city, friends, neighbors, and as-sociates of Mr. and Mrs. Royle, for years past. Bishop L. Scanlan was among the early callers who offered their congratulations, a visit especially appreciated by the hosts. After the theater Annie Russel and ber hus-band, Mr. Yorke, and Mr. Harry Leighton called. All are friends of Mr. E. M. Royle, and Annie Russel, es-pecially was associated with him on the

Miss Edith Godbe sang "Scenes That are Brightest," and Miss Hallie Foster rendered the very appropriate song "Darby and Joan." A number of interesting relies were also displayed, among them being rart of the trousseau the bride wore when she married Judge Royle at the Presbyterian church Lexington, Mo.. April 22, 1857, and some of the charming pictures of Mrs. Royle as a stirl were hung on the walls. The beautiful feature of the evening was the reading by Mrs. Richards of two poems, one "A Golden Wedding Greeting" by Chara Treadway Weir, the other the following poem by Judge Royle himself. Both were greatly applauded. During the evening several charm-
