

Maeser, superintendent; Jacob F. Gates and Joseph Jensen, assistants; Jos. Horne, chorister; Inez Gee, secretary; Mary Boyden, treasurer; John Meldrum, librarian and Lulu Gates, organist. Elder George Reynolds of the general Sunday school board and Elder A. L. Booth of the Stake superintendency were in attendance, and addressed the large audience of children and others interested in Sunday School work who were present. The school will be conducted in the Parker school house. A Sunday school was also organized in the Academy, with the following officers: B. Cluff, Jr., superintendent; George H. Brimhall and E. S. Hinkley, assistants; Sarah Lyman and Vernessa Harrie, secretaries; Jennie Brimhall, treasurer. The following departments were organized with head teachers over each: Normal, theological, second intermediate, first intermediate and primary. Elder J. M. Tanner of the general Sunday school board was in attendance, and gave an excellent discourse on honesty and earnestness in Sunday school work.

It is of much importance that families who do work for their deceased kindred in the Temple should keep private records of that work. The reasons for this should be apparent to every intelligent member of the Church.

The printed instructions in the blank record, which are on sale at the DESERET NEWS office, enable many of the Saints to keep an accurate and intelligible account of their Temple work, but there are others to whom the task is difficult, or who cannot devote the necessary time to it, and would prefer having it attended to by some competent person familiar with that kind of clerical labor.

The Genealogical Society of Utah proposes to do that kind of work, for all those who desire its services, at moderate charges. It will undertake to enter up, in blank records, systematically in the order of family groups, genealogical information for those who are about to begin temple work. When this is done the sacred labor can be recorded by simply making the entries in the spaces under the appropriate headings opposite the respective names.

The society will also straighten out and put in shape, as well as can be, records which have become confused by irregular methods of entry.

All those who desire the services of the Genealogical Society in putting their family and individual records in systematic form are invited to communicate with the secretary, John Jaques, Historian's Office, Salt Lake City. FRANKLIN D. RICHARDS,

President Utah Genealogical Society.

There are eighty-eight registration agents in this county and all but six have called upon the county clerk and received their instructions and supplies. The list is as follows:

Precinct No. 1, J. W. Miner; 2, A. L. Hamlin; 3, Lewis Lewison; 4, Miss Alice Hicks; 5, Eli B. Kelsey; 6, H. M. Willard; 7, B. F. Stewart; 8, C. G. Wilkinson; 9, Eber Case; 10, Battie Proctor; 11, J. M. Hayes; 12, J. N. Eldredge Jr.; 13, L. G. Hougland; 14, W. H. Ingham; 15, J. N. Courtney; 16, George Cottrell; 17, W. N. Anderson; 18, S. B. Woods; 20, L. C. Camp; 22, J. M. Campbell; 23, Jesse M. Fox; 24, L. C. Johnson; 25, R. W.

Lewis; 26, T. E. Vissing; 27, Franklin Merrill; 28, E. L. Sloan; 29, Thomas Slight; 30, A. E. Edwards; 31, R. H. Haslam; 32, E. E. Rich Jr.; 34, O. R. Grow; 35, B. A. Ridd; 36, Hugh B. Folsom; 37, Reginald W. Anderson; 38, S. B. Clawson; 39, John T. Lynch; 40, John T. Axton Jr.; 41, J. G. Robinson; 42, John S. Higham; 43, J. A. DeValley; 45, Theodore Brough; 46, T. H. Hills; 47, B. H. Young Jr.; 48, H. E. Cottle; 49, F. B. Shelley; 50, C. O. Farnsworth; 51, John M. Hansen; 52, M. A. Brouse; 53, T. E. Harris; 54, A. W. Stevenson; 56, T. B. Jackson; 57, Alex. McFarland; 58, Peter Gordon; 59, J. H. Sheppard; 60, Charles Hohn; 61, S. B. Wright; 62, W. J. Sutherland; 63, J. P. Olson; 65, Andrew Jensen; 66, J. A. Walker; 67, W. W. Wilson; 68, J. R. Drinkwater; 69, Alex. Brand; 71, N. A. Nelson; 72, B. M. Crossgrove; 73, George J. Merrill; 74, S. H. Crump; 75, Edward Orgill; 76, Joseph Holt; 77, J. J. Williams; 78, B. L. Culler; 79, G. M. Spencer; 80, O. F. Lunnberg; 81, John Butler; 82, R. McLaughlin; 83, Edward Lambert; 84, James N. Ridd; 85, David Mackay; 86, J. F. Schoenfeld; 87, Thomas Henderson; 88, Christopher Alston.

The absentees were: No. 17, J. A. Buttle; 21, C. M. Hammond; 44, L. Roy Mansfield; 55, Horace Cummings; 64, John Wells; 70, William Ulfid.

The house-to-house canvass begins September 15th and closes September 25th.

The Chamber of Commerce Sept. 5, after appropriate remarks on the part of its members, unanimously adopted the following sentiments regarding the death of Mr. Auerbach, and ordered them spread upon the record:

For the second time during the current year death has served his dread summons upon this Directory, and again its members are called upon to review the life and virtues of a distinguished citizen.

In the midst of a busy life—in the full enjoyment of perfect physical health, with his mental faculties developed to the highest mark, Frederick H. Auerbach, president of this chamber, has been removed from the scene of his earthly labors. His demise, while it concerns the members of the family circle first, is a loss to the people of this city and of this State so deplorable and so far reaching in its effects as to be beyond expression in words.

Simple and unostentatious, he blended in his nature all the traits of heart and mind which make men beloved in life and causes their memories to be revered after death. So keen was his intellect that he was enabled to grasp the most incoherent question and decide upon them in a trice and so modest was he, that about his numerous gifts for charity and public purposes he never had a tongue. It was his pleasure to assume that every application to him for a donation was in furtherance of a just and noble cause. Like the rays of a pure, and flawless crystal which without a shadow reflects and scintillates, his character shone with undiminished luster and was an example of all that is best and truest to emulate in life.

With an open purse to those in need of aid, he was a tower of strength to the faltering and the weak.

His life was an open book which will be read with profit by thousands of the young men growing to manhood in our midst.

First among all his fellow citizens in action, in charity and in everything else which tends to develop all that is best in human life, he passed one by one the milestones of the years and stayed not his progress until God's finger touched him and summoned him to his rest.

Mourning sincerely his departure—we are consoled with the reflection that he was not called away until he had attained to the fullest measure of success, and until his virtues were widely known. With these consolations we accept the inevitable and bow to the will of the Creator.

About 1:30 Wednesday morning, Police Officer Peter L. Johnson, while in the line of his duty, was shot by a burglar near the corner of First South and West Temple streets.

Just before the shooting, Officers Johnson and William Hilton were engaged in "ringing in" to police headquarters. At that time they heard someone yelling lustily for the police, and as Johnson looked around he beheld a man dashing up the west side of West Temple street. The officer jumped at the retreating individual and got within five or six yards of him when the latter quickly whirled around and taking deliberate aim sent a bullet into the patrolman's body.

During the time officer Hilton was at the phone, but as soon as he heard the patrol report, he made after the fleeing fugitive, hearing Johnson utter the words, "I'm shot," as he passed. The murderous assailant turned west on First South street with officer Hilton directly after him, firing three shots as he went. When the man reached the corner of First West street he disappeared in the darkness and was seen no more.

The wounded officer was afterwards escorted to Smith's drug store walking the whole distance. Dr. Dalby was summoned and upon his arrival made an examination of Johnson's wounds. The bullet had entered the body about three inches above the left hip, and ranged downward, coming out at the small of the back, about eight inches from the point of entrance. The wound was dressed and the officer sent home at once. Dr. Dalby is of the opinion that nothing serious will result provided that proper care is taken. Johnson says the man was quite tall and the fact that the bullet ranged downward bears out his assertion. He could not see his face as he had his hat down over his eyes and his coat collar turned up.

It appears that the fugitive had attempted to rob the Conway house, a part of the old Continental hotel, and while Mrs. McEwan, the proprietress, was sitting up last night with a sick child, she heard someone moving about up-stairs, but paid no attention at the time to the noise. A few minutes later she heard footsteps coming lightly down the hall, and turning she caught a glimpse of a man looking into her darkened room through the half-opened door. She walked to the door and saw him disappear down the hall and into a kitchen. Then she aroused her son-in-law, D. B. McBride, and while explaining the incident to him she saw the shadow of someone leaving the front door. McBride turned as she started and ran down the hall and out on the street shouting for assistance.

Jerry Murphy met with a painful accident in the Beck mine, Eureka, last week. Jerry was working on the 700-level when a fall of rock caught him, spraining his ankle and inflicting several severe bruises.