permitted to go to the same.

PRESIDENT ANTHON H. LUND.

President Anthon H. Lund made some comments upon the parable of the prodigal son. He said that many people in the world believed that this people in the world believed that this part of Christ's teachings was intend-ed to show that in the sight of God the repentant sinner is entitled to a greater reward than the man who throughout his whole life refrains from evil. This is an incorrect doctrine. In the parable, though a feast was pre-pared for him who had spent his all paren for him who had spent his all in riotous living, the dutiful son re-ceived his father's entire inheritance. So will it be in the hereafter. God will rejoice at the return of the wayward son, but he who was obedience will receive the far greater reward. ≁Elder John Henry Smith was the last speaker. He showed how the apos-tacy of children from the Church may be traced to criticisms made by par-ents, in which they condemn the bishop of the ward, the president of the stake. or the general authorities of the Church, giving to their children the impression that these authorities are very wicked men.

Afternoon Session in Tabernacle. The second session of the conference convented in the Tabernacle at 2 o'clock. In addition to the authorities present at the morning meeting, Pres-ident Joseph F. Smith was in attend-ance, and delivered the principal ad-dress of the afternoon, the other speaker being Elder John Henry Smith. The selections rendered by the choir were "Behold, the Great Redeemer Died." "In Our Redeemer's Name," and "Our God We Raise to Thee." Elder Joseph E. Taylor offered the opening prayer and Elder Seymour B. Young pronounced the benediction. ELDER JOHN HENRY SMITH.

ELDER JOHN HENRY SMITH.

ELDER JOHN HENRY SMITH. Elder John Henry Smith continued the address which he began at the morning meeting. He read from the ninety-third section of the Book of Doctrine & Covenants, beginning at the fortieth verse, in which some of the leading officials in the Church, in the days of the Prophet Joseph Smith. were censured by God for having neg-lected to give proper teachings to their children. Frederick G. Williams, Sid-ney Rigdon, and even the Prophet himself were rebuked by the Lord for thus neglecting their family duties. Every father should ask himself whether he is guiding his children along the path of righteousness, so over their heads, they were driven hither and thither by mobs,their lead-ers were murdered, and they were forced to flee from the confines of civi-lization. If they had surrendered their religious beliefs they would have been received into the society of their per-secutors, but they stood for God and not for the favors of men. The spirit of persecution which then raged is in the earth yet, but he who has a firm testimony that this work called Mor-monism is God's plan of salvation will not be moved by the opposition of the not he moved by the opposition of the adversary.

Wells. -A chorus of Primary association chil-dren from Center ward sang the song, "Love one another." Dr. George H. Brimhall of the Brig-ham Young university at Provo, spoke, by invitation, upon the subject of "The Child and the Parent." He said in part: "Lot us first imagine that a little babe has come to our home. Let us ask what that little thing is. First of all that little creature is something that always was. There is in it an entity co-existent with the universe-the ego, the intelligence. That never was created, it always existed. It was a child before it eame to our house. It was a youth, a man or woman, "In my first primeval childhood, was I nurtured near Thy side." "The child is also a little body, the scientist would say, a little animal, a tiny bundle of pub. At first it can-not see. The senses seem to be all mixed. He begins to investigate the world. He gradually finds out the uses of the different parts of his body. God has placed that spirit in its little body in order that it might become ac-quainted with a substance more crude than spirit matter. It is to gain an

It is to gain an earthly experience. It is commanded to go forth and subdue the earth. "The helplessness of a child is greater than that of any other crea-ture. In this fact lies a grand truth. There is a relationship between the period of helplessness and the degree of intelligence to be attained. The mosquito and the calf have a biref du-ration of helplessness and a low order of intelligence. The many years dur-ing which the child is dependent upon others find a compensation in the limit-less field of knowledge which the hu-man mind can explore when it has reached the adult state. "The plastic nature of the child im-plies a great responsibility for the pa-rents. They may mould it into a great and good character or warp it into the embodiment of crime and suf-fering."

"Many a great lesson can be learned from one's parents, but even greater lessons are taught by one's children. It requires greater training to be a durited successful parent than to be a dutiful
