CHICAGO, 19.—The Detroit Post and Tribune has a letter from a prominent business man, formerly of that city, now of Aiken, South Carolina, enclosing a copy of the Aiken Journal, which publishes an editorial regarding the Garfield and Arthur club just formed there. The point of it is that though the republicans claim that they do not intend to meddle with State and local politics, they had better beware. It says: "Some of the radicals have once more dared to show a front; we must again go into the fight under the leadership of Hancock and English, and utterly annihilate them, for the people of Aiken county will pledge the democracy of South Carolina that when November comes there will not be left enough of the radical party in Aiken county to act as pall bearers to their dead ticket. We will bury it out of sight under a 5,000 majority, and there will not be a mourner left. Two statements in this article have shocking significance; First, The declaration that 'the radicals' have once more dared to show a front; Second, The pledge that Aiken county should give 5,000 majority for the democracy. That county cast 5,013 votes in 1878, and 5,119 in 1870. Evidently the Journal's pledge means that not a radical vote shall get into the ballot box in that county this fall."

NEW LONDON, 19.—In the Narragansett investigation, Capt. Nye, of the Stonington, which collided with the Narragansett, attributed the collision to a mistake as to the Narragansett's whistle. He took her blowing whistle as an answer to his whistle and as a signal to turn to the right. Helotte, helmsman of the Stonington, testified that the boat was hard to steer, and he could not turn her course alone. The lookout of the Narragansett testified that he heard only one solitary fog whistle from the Stonington and that after he saw her red light. A minute and a half later she struck.

Stephen A. Mowry, mate of the Narragansett, testified that after the collision there was a good deal of excitement among the passengers. Some were without life preservers and asked where they could get them, and I told them that each berth and each stateroom was supplied with one. I have been restricted by the management as to the number of deck hands. Adjourned until Tuesday.

LOS PINOS, 19.—At an informal meeting yesterday Ouray informed the Commissioner that 100 lodges of the White River Utes were on the way and would arrive Tuesday night. Accordingly, at the request of Ouray and the Uncompaghe Utes, the first grand council, appointed for Monday, was postponed until Wednesday. Colonel Money-penny, president of the commission, is quite hopeful that all matters will be amicably adjusted. A majority of the Uncompaghres are favorable to the change and will sign the treaty without much delay. This is due in a great measure to Ouray, who has worked hard since his return from Washington. The only opposition, if any, will come from the White River Utes.

The Department regards the confederation between Bolivia and Peru as the result of an effort on the part of the former to postpone her surrender and enable her when it comes, to secure better terms than she otherwise would.

DENVER, 19.—The Republican's Leadville special says: Policeman John Carbelle died yesterday from wounds inflicted on Saturday by Bakewell. The chief of the police and a committee of citizens waited

The reported engagement between two companies of the Seventh Cavalry and hostile Sioux is disbelieved by the military authorities. The rumor must have originated from the fact that a Crow hunting party recently encountered a band of Sioux 100 miles north of Fort Sarpy, the latter being victorious. Two companies of the Seventh Cavalry are out camping for the summer, hence the connection of the troops with the reported fight.

He denied the report that he had complained of Conkling and Logan having deceived him. He had no letter from either of them either before or after the convention since his return to America. INDIANAPOLIS, 20.—Secy. Schurz in his speech said he intended to appeal to the reason and not the passions of his auditors, and then, in a masterly way, proceeded to set forth the reasons why the republican party under Garfield would do vastly better work for the country than the democracy under Hancock. The chances of the greenbackers were not visible ones. He alluded with some personal pride to the record of the administration now about to surrender its duties into other hands. While not free from blemish, it was in every way creditable. He reviewed at length the unsavory record of the democratic party on the question of secession, slavery and finances. It was not a question of honoring a worthy General, but of giving the country the kind of President it needs. He pointed out that an army officer who had no previous training as a statesman was at a sad disadvantage in handling the affairs of Statecraft in which he was partially or wholly unskilled; that he became frequently bewildered, often did wrongly, got discouraged or reckless and did incomparable injury to the government, no matter how pure, able or steady he was.
