FRAGMENTS.

Attorney Orlando H. Smith has been commissioned a notary public by Governor West.

The Young ladies' class did not finish on Saturday afternoon, in the Probate court, Mrs. Clayton's cross-examination lasted the entire day, and upon its conclusion the Probate hearing went over till next Friday.

Northwestern Calendar dinners and examples of laughter as a sore throat at the rear of the Zoudlo-Jolson drug store about 5 o'clock this morning. The robbers were preparing to depart with their plunder when Calahan appeared on the scene and they made a bold for liberty and succeeded in making good their escape. Tuesday, the 5th, is fixed as the day instead of having they only ran the latter.

SERIOUS CHARGES.

Mrs. Van Patten, of this City, Accused of Poisoning Her Uncle.

Deputy Sheriff Nuttall, of Provo, arrives from that city on Saturday evening, and arrested, at her residence on east Second South street, Mrs. Emma Van Patten, whose husband was for some years foreman of the Brooklyn mine at Bingham. Something said to a reporter was the result of this action on the part of the authorities, which was a thing altogether unexpected by the lady's friends and acquaintances.

The charge against Mrs. Patten is a very serious one. So far as can be learned it would appear that in October of the present year she was visiting an uncle, one Nelson Nielsen, at Ephraim. On the evening of the 12th of that month, Mr. Nielsen, after eating a light supper of mush and milk, was taken very sick. He remained so all night and died early the next day. The symptoms were those of poisoning and a rat and a number of chickens which ate some of the mush also died. Owing to the suddenness of the demise and the suspicious circumstances surrounding, an inquest was held when it was developed that "Rough on rats" had been put into the food and it also appeared that on the morning of the day on which he died, Mrs. Van Patten had bought a bottle of laudanum at the drug store and the empty bottle was afterwards found in the house. Dr. Olsen, who made a post-mortem examination, testified at the inquest that Nielsen had died from the joint effects of some corrosive poison such as that known as "Rough on rats," and from opium or laudanum poisoning. The accused was also a witness at the inquest and upon explosions of her guilt were then entertained, but not sufficient to cause her arrest. The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death by poison administered by some person or persons unknown and there the matter rested until Saturday evening when Mrs. Van Patten was arrested.

It is said that Nielsen was quite wealthy, having been worth between $40,000 and $50,000.

The grand jury is now in session at Provo, whence the accused has been taken, and will have the matter before them forthwith.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Addresses by Elder Heber J. Grant and President George Q. Cannon.

At the Tabernacle services yesterday afternoon, Elder Heber J. Grant, of the quorum of the Twelve Apostles, was the first speaker. He said he did not then have in his mind any particular subject upon which to speak, but desired to know the mind and will of the Lord. He believed that the more earnestly we desired to do His will, and the more humble we were before Him, the more we felt the need of his assistance. Many of the duties were assigned in the temporal affairs of life, and were, therefore, often unable to express themselves in regard to the Gospel as fully as they desired. The speaker could say this concerning himself.

In his childhood he had pronounced upon him a patriarchal blessing in which it was declared that he would be called to the ministry when young. In his youth he often regretted the fulfillment of that promise by being called on a mission. He often felt disappointed, however, that this was not being realized. He wondered at times whether or not the patriarch had made a mistake, but he could find in his own mind that he would not feel discouraged, for he had sufficient reason to believe that the work of God was true, and it was for him to do his duty, and that was sufficient reason. However, the patriarchal promises are realized, for an early age he was called to the presidency of the Young Stake. Many other promises had been made concerning him and they were literally fulfilled.

Our faith would not become weak in the work of the Lord, because we do not see the way open for the fulfillment of God's promises. We often have our faith tried, but it was for us to continue in the performance of duty, and the Lord would open up the way for the accomplishment of those things which had been promised to us.

We should not deliberately expose ourselves to sin. Servants of God had been known to tread upon forbidden ground, and in the midst of the adversity, taking advantage of their weakness, had dragged them into iniquity. Where we had great power we were to exercise it over our guard, and ask the assistance of our Heavenly Father to help us to overcome them.

Every requirement made of us by the Lord was for our own good, and by fulfilling the requirements made of us, we would find that extent strengthen ourselves against evil. We should endeavor to guard ourselves against giving way to weaknesses and fortify ourselves against the attacks of the evil one.

The speaker impressed upon his hearers the need of attending to the apparently small duties of life. Some individuals, for instance, were willing to labor around in the missionary field, but thought it beneath them to instruct little children in the Sabbath school. Such a spirit was not pleasing in the sight of the Lord. Any man who thought he was fitted for the office of a bishop or any other position in the Church, but was unwilling to listen to the counsels given him, too often failed in honoring his Priesthood.

President George Q. Cannon next spoke, and dwelt prominently upon the subject of unity, without which we need not expect to accomplish God's purposes on the earth; that was upon the necessity for faith and hope. The Saints, he said, should also be charitable. In being so they practiced one of the greatest gifts of the Gospel.

Church University Theology Class.

About one thousand and fifty students had assembled at the appointed time and place on Sunday, when Instructor James E. Talmage asked all who were prepared to take an active part in occupy seats in front. Opening prayer was offered by Elder H. P. Richards. It was stated that answers to written questions of which a large number had been received would be postponed because of lack of time, while others had been answered privately.

In the review which followed, "faith as a gift of God" and "repentance" were topics of consideration.

The instructor, in further consideration of the "Fourth Article of Faith," then introduced the subject of baptism, lecturing on: (1)—Its special purposes; (2)—Fit candidates for this ordinance.

Baptism, the third principle and first essential ordinance of the Gospel, was appointed of God as a means of obtaining remission of sins. It is but reasonable that the Lord should ask for some outward sign of the reformation experienced by an earnest repentant sinner.

And would he more typical of sin than filth, which so appropriately is represented to be washed away with water. No symbolizing that we are acquainted with is so perfect. The practice is also time-honored for we read in the writings of Moses, Pearl of Great Price, of the baptism of father Adam. Baptism is not merely an outward sign of an inward grace, but a deep eternal meaning underlies the ordinance. Is it was only an outward form, the Lord, in his grace, might have dispensed with it in special cases; but we find none such. Not even His own Son was exempt from this "fulfilling all righteousness." History of early days of Christianity, scriptural and otherwise records that remission of sins was more generally regarded as the object of baptism. This is declared the special purpose of this ordinance by Book of Mormon and modern Prophets, but not to release men from the effects of the fall.

Candidates for baptism must be capable of exercising faith and of repenting, because baptism is of no avail unless preceded by faith and repentance. Infant baptism is preposterous not only of no avail, but an abomination in the sight of God, see Doc. and Cov., section 20. The age of eight years has been established by revelation as the time for the baptism of children, who must be properly instructed or their sins will be upon the head of their parents.

Hence an adjournment was taken, the members of the class were allowed to instruction from the presidency of the Stake, and to neglect attending the Sacrament meeting at the Tabernacle because of the Theology class, but to remember their duty to meet together often to renew their covenants before the Lord. Benediction by Elder Reuben Clark.

In fact there is hardly any possible evil effect is done and pressure."

It is reported that Governor Deville, will be retained as minister of foreign affairs in the French cabinet. It is a matter of general information that he is a very clever good-natured gentleman and it is barely possible that he is a receiver of an invisible political stock with a similar issue who has been persistently active in scrutinizing with the politics of the First and Third precincts, but who, it is popularly believed, lives in a hotter climate than either of those districts.

Second—Under Clute's hall, Market street.

Third—Old Sixteenth ward school house.

Fourth—Burlington school house.

Fifth—Under Richelieu hotel, Third East and Second South.

The judges of election will be three men selected from all each of the municipal wards in the recent election.

The Sullivan Damage Suit.

The hearing of the $25,000 damage suit brought by Timothy J. Sullivan against the Anchor Mining company of Park City concluded in the Third district court, before Judge Miner, late on Saturday afternoon. After ten minutes' deliberation they returned in favor of the defendant, nine jurors concurring. A sixty days' stay was granted pending a motion for a new trial.
