NEW YORK.

Ashbury's challenge accepted.

NEW YORK, 5.—Amsterdam dispatches say that the Prince Imperial was captured with the Emperor and a hundred and twenty thousand men.

A telegram, direct from Paris, says there was great popular excitement over the announcement of the capitulation and capture of the Emperor. Stormy scenes in the Corps Legislatif are reported. A directorship will be pronounced by the Corps at a secret meeting. Crowds are anxiously waiting the news. There is no violence.

The crowds have separated; the boulevards are densely thronged, but orderly.

Frank Osgood, of the yacht Magie, the winner of the race of America's cup, publishes a letter accepting the challenge recently issued by James Ashbury, to any schooner of the New York yacht club; Osgood accepts for a race of twenty miles to windward, and back from Sandy Hook, which was refused.

The Western Union Telegraph company has offered to loan its wires to the war department on liberal terms, for the purpose of carrying out an extended system of reporting observations of storms along the seaboard on the north western lakes.

A dispatch says that Gen. Trochu will at once be made temporary dictator, and that Paris will be defended to the last.

A dispatch, dated Brussels Sept. 3rd received in this city this morning, says that twelve thousand French troops with cannon, eagles and 1200 horses crossed the Belgian frontier and laid down their arms.

A demand has been made upon Montigny for the surrender of that town and the garrison, which was refused. Another dispatch dated Carlsruhe, Sept. 3d, states that on the previous day the cells at Strasbourg had been inundated by the rising of the Rhine, causing great suffering and destruction of property. The magnificent cathedral, so much admired by the world, is certainly partially destroyed.

WASHINGTON.

Will Continue

The following official dispatch has just been received at the legation of the North German Union. The Emperor Napoleon having declared that his captivity prevents him from negotiating peace, the French government being at Paris, the war will be continued.

ILLINOIS.

The Great Fire.

CHICAGO, 5.—The losses by the fire last night are now figured up, and aggregate $2,750,000; this however is only an estimate, and others place the amount at over three millions. Whatever the loss is, the insurance probably covers two thirds of it. The number of lives lost is still unknown, but there seems to be a sad certainty that at least twelve to fifteen men and boys perished in the flames. One of the employees on Farwell & Co.'s store, who was coming down stairs with a package of valuable shawls on his shoulders, was struck by bricks from the falling walls; there are reports that from fifteen to fifty men and boys were behind him and were unable to escape. The excitement was so great, however, that many exaggerated statements in regard to the loss of life were made, and this must be taken as at least doubtful. The morning papers give a list of fifteen persons injured, and six persons missing, who were known to have been engaged in removing goods from the burning buildings. Never, perhaps, in the history of Chicago has there been so much public excitement over a fire. The block burned was, in point of architectural beauty, perhaps the first in the city, and its total destruction is a cause of universal regret. As stated last night, the fire is supposed to have originated in the spontaneous combustion of oil of rags in the upper story of Laidin, Butler & Co.'s paper warehouse; but this is not yet certain. The high Mansard roof, forming the sixth story of the building, is held responsible for the extraordinarily rapid spread of the fire, which, throughout, baffled every effort of the fire department. The intense heat damaged the stores and stocks of goods on the opposite side of Wabash Avenue to the extent of about ten thousand dollars. The anxiety of the people to have a detailed account of the fire, coupled with the eagerness for further war news, caused an unprecedented run on the newspaper offices, and by 8.30 a. m., not a copy of the Times or Tribune could be had on the streets, in the news depots, or at the offices of the papers themselves. No extra editions however were issued.

Later.—Up to the hour of 9.30 a. m., no bodies have been recovered from the ruins. There is a painful rumor about Charles B. Farwell, a young son of Charles B. Farwell, was seen to enter his father's store, and was never seen again. John V. Farwell, the senior member of this firm, is absent on the plains, attending to his duties as an Indian commissioner.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FRANCE.

Tremendous Excitement—The Provisional Government in Session—Revolution Imminent—McMahon Dead.

PARIS, 5.—It is now impossible to reach the Corps Legislatif, owing to the enormous crowds surrounding the building. It is reported that the vote of Dechance was carried by yeas 185, nays none. The people, wild with excitement, are rushing through the streets, displaying placards with the vote of the Corps Legislatif inscribed thereon, and shouts of "Vive la Republique" are heard on all sides. Regiments passing into the city are received by the populace with deafening shouts of "Vive la Ligne," "Vive la Republique." The national guards reversed their arms as the regular troops passed, as a sign of amity. The troops are singing mourir pour la patrie. The scene is one of indescribable excitement. Rumors of all kinds are in circulation, but it is impossible to ascertain their foundation, but one sentiment seems to be paramount—resistance to invasion. "All the nation to the rescue," shout the people, and the troops join enthusiastically. The garde nationale says order must be preserved. The people evince but little desire to create trouble. All seem overjoyed at the vote of Dechance.

Later.—The crowds are beginning to clear down the Imperial arms from the fronts of shops, and there are fears that this may lead to serious trouble, as the national garde is not inclined to permit any disorder.

1.30 p.m.—The city now presents one of the most imposing popular displays ever witnessed. One hundred thousand armed citizens are marching to the Corps Legislatif, surrounding the building. Phrenzied hurrahs are uttered by the countless masses which are filling every avenue leading to the hall. There are no symptoms of disorder yet, only a unanimous expression of the popular will before the residence of Gen. Trochu in the Louvre, where is a compact mass of people, awaiting the return of the Governor. Around the Tuilleries there is a strong military force, guarding against every possible display of popular indignation. Hundreds of thousands of citizens are still passing towards the Corps Legislatif, and the Place de la Concorde is one mass of human beings.

Later, 4.30 p.m.—At the departure of the deputies from the Corps Legislatif scenes of enthusiasm took place around the building. The national guard fraternized with the troops and people. Thousands of the guards rushed into the hall, but were persuaded to retire by M. Gambetta, who seems to have great influence over the people. The crowds outside are singing the Marseillaise and shouting "vive la republique." There is intense excitement and a constant noise of voices that drowns all other sounds. There were no dangerous elements visible until the crowd reached the Rue Castillon, where they began tearing down the Imperial arms and tearing from the flags of the national guard the golden eagles of France and from walls and signs the medallions bearing the Imperial effigy. The soldiers have also joined in these demonstrations. The national garde have beat to arms to repress disorders, and if it takes a more serious turn quiet citizens are becoming impressed with the idea that there may be danger, as the mob is becoming more and more excited.

An interview has taken place between Napoleon and the King of Prussia, for the purpose of deciding upon the future residence of the Emperor. One of the German fortresses was fixed on, probably Mayence. There is much confusion in the city, and such immense crowds are about the Corps Legislatif that it is impossible to get, at present, a faithful account of the business transacted by the deputies. It is now reported, and on good authority, that after the vote of Dechance, the majority retired. The members of the Gauche and the Centre Gauche remained, consulting on a provisional government, and naming the following persons: Jules Favre, Gambetta, Jules Simon, Keratry, Picard Pittan and Jules Terry.

PARIS, 5 a.m.—Manifestations have been kept up during the entire night. Crowds demanded Dechance. Trochu was shouted for, and appeared, and spoke to the crowd, saying he had taken his oath as an honest man, and he could not break it, the Chambers must answer them. At midnight the crowds assembled around the Corps Legislatif building and shouted that the Emperor having fallen into the hands of the enemy, it was now time for the people to rise and chase out the invaders. The Corps, however, adjourned till to-day, assurances having been given that the day should not pass without some demonstration worthy of France. Later in the evening a large crowd assembled in the boulevards of Berni Nouvelle, parading and shouting Dechance, and vive the French. They were charged by the police who used fire arms, and it is reported that some persons were mortally wounded. At this early hour in the morning great crowds are in the streets, and the journals are sought for with extreme avidity. Popular agitation is very great, and the feeling against the invaders is singularly unanimous.

Noon.—There is an enormous crowd about the Corps Legislatif building, where the deputies are to meet at one o'clock. Military precautions to preserve order have been taken on a large scale, though the people do not seem inclined to rioting, they are, however, much excited. Among these are members of the national garde who, without arms, join in shouting and urge all they meet to go to the legislative building. It is hoped that the measures taken will secure quiet. It is reported that McMahon is dead. Early this afternoon the crowds met a squad of police. They shouted vive la republique, and those of the police who did not respond were immediately disarmed and their swords broken. The Boulevards, at this hour, are nearly impassable. The national garde have succeeded in preserving order so far.

The members of the provisional government, who were cited to appear and deliberate, are now assembled at the Hotel de Ville. Henri Rochefort has been liberated and is assisting at this meeting. M. Harcel has been appointed Prefect of police, vice Pietrie, and Etienne Arago, mayor of Paris. The people outside the building are in a state of extraordinary excitement. From time to time Gambetta addresses them, exhorting them to preserve order. It is remarked that the soldiers of all the regiments mix among the people unarmed, and shouting "vive Republic." From the entrances and windows of all the barracks the soldiers salute the people. At four o'clock in the afternoon the flag was lowered on the Tuilleries. Placards have been posted in various places on which is inscribed "death to Thiers."

The mobs continue to tear down the signs containing the Imperial arms and medallions; in some cases the people have climbed up the highest stories to tear down the word "Imperial."—Extra. Care is evinced to respect the arms of all other nations.

BELGIUM.
