

Indians Attack Utah Pioneer Mail Carriers.

Settlers Pass Through City to Found New Town in Weber County—A Big Snow Storm, a Large Calf, Bad Row at a Dance, a New State, Brutal Assault By a Soldier, and a Municipal Election.

(From the Deseret News Files of 1899.)

THE California mail arrived on Sunday, March 18, about noon. Mr. Dodge, Indian agent for the western part of this territory, came in as a passenger. The carriers reported that the men who were with the mail, which left this city on the 20th ult., were met by a party of hostile Indians between Steptoe and Ruby valleys, and were compelled to fall back to the mail station this way, where they obtained a sufficient reinforcement to enable them to proceed onward with the mail. Three and a half days were lost in consequence of this unexpected attack. The Indians in that part of the territory have for a long time been inclined to be unfriendly to the whites.

A New Settlement—For several weeks past, emigrants in small companies with their families, stock and other effects having the appearance of being in transit to some other region, have been seen almost daily passing through the city, going north. On inquiry where they were bound, as it was too early in the season for them to be starting for California, and the movement attracted no attention, it was ascertained that they were going to a new settlement that was being made in the north part of Weber county, between Ogden and North Willow Creek.

Snow Storm—On Saturday morning last (March 19) quite early, it commenced snowing briskly and continued without intermission till nearly sunset, with the wind blowing a good breeze from the northwest, piling it up in drifts where it lay. A carrier's check on its onward course. Several severe storms of snow have visited this and the northern country since the first of February, but none equal to this; we had no means of ascertaining the exact depth of the snow which fell, as it was badly drifted, but it must have been over one foot. It was a melancholy time, especially to those who were short of fuel, and of feed for their animals.

A Large Calf—We are informed by Bishop Nichols of Brigham City, Box Elder county, that a few days since a cow belonging to Mr. John H. Bankhead of that county had a calf which at 10 hours old weighed 89 pounds. Can Alderman—Elijah F. Sheets, First ward; Nathaniel V. Jones, Second ward; Alonso H. Raleigh, Third ward; John Clinton, Fourth ward; Nathan Davis, Fifth ward.

Councillors—Samuel W. Richards, Harrison Burgess, James W. Cummings, Robert T. Burton, Leonard W. Hardy, William H. Hooper, Isaac Gray, William C. Staines, Samuel Mullin.

Leaving—We suggest to a few of our young friends that a more appropriate compliment than that of "having the street corners wide open" to us, is that of "being a 'shining star'"; but, however, we recommend that those who wish to make their "eternal fortunes" in "less than no time" to shoulder their bags, march into the baryons and make a clearing among the press, editors, maples and small oaks of the mountain—or if you prefer it, take your spades and go digging for gold in the hills of opportunity. The offer struck Spencer with his usual frankness the skull a little above the bridge of his nose, from what we have learned, that the difficulties occurred about the occupation of a house and caravans in the north part of Bush Valley, near the line of the military reserve, and which the proprietors, Spencer, Little & Co., had previously been emphatically ordered by the detachment to vacate. We have not yet ascertained the particulars sufficiently satisfactory to publish, but shall give the full facts when we learn them. Through the prompt and kind assistance of a person whose name we regret not saying (received), the fractured portion of the skull was carefully and skilfully replaced, and we hope Mr. Spencer is beyond danger. He is, however, very feeble and as yet unable to relate the circumstances concerning the unfortunate affair.

City Election—The municipal election on Monday, April 4, resulted in the election of the following named gentlemen by nearly a unanimous vote: Mayor—Abraham O. Snoot.

XIX.

"T IS certain that I gave that man Wellington a terrible quarter of an hour," said Napoleon at St. Helena, recalling some of the incidents of Waterloo. "This usually constitutes a claim on noble minds. His was incapable of feeling it," he added bitterly, believing that his conqueror was responsible for the impris- onment at St. Helena.

The year before Waterloo the French troops surprised the allied camp at Brienne, and Marshal Blucher narrowly escaped capture. Napoleon sup-

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

Munyon Points the Way to Beauty as Well as Comfort

This is the season when a good soap is not only a necessity, but a luxury. For little ones and people of delicate skins, or anyone who is subject to liver, rash, pimples or any skin eruptions, I most earnestly recommend my Witch Hazel Soap. It not only thoroughly cleanses the skin, but puts every care into health action. It removes all dead colors and gives the skin life and glow. It is the finest and purest toilet soap made.

As a shampoo, it is superior to any silica and has been offered.

After the bath use my Witch Hazel Talcum Powder, which is the purest and most satisfactory talcum powder ever produced. The perfume is delicate and delightful.

I have also prepared a witch hazel face and skin cream for those who desire a skin food and complexion balm.

For sale wherever the best toilet preparations are in demand.

Where the Lincoln Memorial is out of reach the blood is insure, I most earnestly advise the use of my Paw-Paw Liver Pills. They will soon clear up the complexion, driving out impurities of the blood. They do not sicken, they do not weaken.

Try them. If you are not satisfied, I will refund your money.

MUNYON,

NAPOLEON, As Seen by His Associates

HIS NOTABLE OFFHAND SAYINGS

XIX.

The necessity of placing restrictions upon power by absorbing the executive in the senate. "That shall not be," cried Napoleon in a rare stamping fit. "We will rather be driven to our knees in blood."

Napoleon on one occasion imperiously adjourned the legislative body of the empire for acting adversely to his rule. On dismissing the members he said: "What! Who are you? Nothing! All authority is in the throne, and what is the throne? This wooden frame covered with velvet?" No; I sit the throne! Go! France stands more in need of me than I do of France."

"The Bourbons offer me a statue," he said to Marquis de Lafayette, "but I must look to the pedestal. They may make it my prison."

"I have created princes and dukes out of nobodies and given them large estates, but I could not make real noblemen of them."

"Those who have wrought great changes in the world will not be buried by gaining over chiefs, but always by exciting the multitude. The first is the resource of intrigue and produces only secondary results; the second is the resort of genius and transforms the face of the universe."

"Let foot on an abyss concealed by a bed of flowers."

"The best troops were the Carthaginians under Hannibal, the Romans under the Scipios, the Macedonians under Alexander and the Prussians under Frederick."

"It is necessary to have much silver in order to draw gold out of genius."

"Imagination, like the turbulent Danube, may be curbed at its source."

Asked by Mme. de Staél who was the greatest woman in the world, Napoleon, smiling, responded: "She who has borne the most children."

In a casual discussion at St. Helena some one observed that in China the emperor was worshipped as a god. "That is as it should be," said Napoleon quickly.

"People are more attached to those to whom they have accorded benefits than to those from whom they have received benefits."

During the retreat from Waterloo, Napoleon accompanied by a single ad-de-camp, chanced upon a bivouac fire where the soldiers were boiling potatoes. He asked for one, and while eating it said meditatively: "After all, it is endurable. Man may live in any place and in any way."

Discussing the conduct of Gen. Moreau, who he declared was governed by his wife, he added: "This is always a great misfortune, because a man in rebutting babbler, he would exclaim, "I want more head and less tail than those who are in the wrong in a quarrel are apt to be in a hurry."

"Men are not truly great unless they leave great institutions after them."

"For a retreating enemy it is necessary to make a bridge of gold or oppose a wall of brass."

At Borkino one of Napoleon's generals reported that he had not taken any prisoners because the Russian soldiers preferred death to surrender. "Let the artillery be brought forward," he exclaimed. Cannon would do the work of extermination with less trouble and expense than muskets.

Contingent—That is the question of the day."

At the battle of Montereau, Napoleon pointed the pieces of artillery himself, technically exposed himself to the enemy's fire and sold to his soldiers, who were much charmed by his daring and attempted to remove him: "Let me alone my friends. The bullet which is to kill me has not yet been molded."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

The Duke of Wellington, he added, "was a general who had never been beaten." "He was a general who had never been beaten."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."

Speaking of his generals who had been killed in battle, Napoleon often remarked, "Such a one is happy in having died on the field of honor, while I should perhaps be so unfortunate as to die in my bed."