THE LADDER TRIMMING,

The escalier mode, as they refer in Paris to those little ladders fashioned of velvet ribbons which can be put to such a multitude of dainty uses, is shown on this waist of white washable taffeta. The ribbons are in the new shades of empire green and the fancy braid lace has the pattern touched up with embroidery stitches in the same tones. The shoulder yoke, the cuff, the feathered bodice and the front plait are of the laced ribbon, and the silk blouse with its full bishop sleeve, sits but slightly into the belt.
