Denver Stockman: The horsemen of Salt Lake City are discussing the subject of forming a Gentlemen's Driving club. There is considerable money invested in good horses and fine vehicles in the city of Salt Lake, and the climate of Utah is nicely adapted to successfully breeding fine riding and driving horses. But these lovers of equine elegance, of a drive or a canter, are confronted with the same drawback as their neighbors in Colorado—badly kept roads. A good road agitation is in order in the mountain states, and it is hoped that it will be relinquished until the end is attained.

The Utah Republican club, which now occupies the whole of the second floor of the Daft building, will probably give a reception in the nature of a house warming in the near future.

Regarding the candidacy of Admiral Dewey for the presidency of the United States, Adams, the Denver Post post, sings:

The people hail the admiral, heroic honors pay to him.
Their great vocabularies search for pretty things to say to him.
With glad appreciative hands they've placed the hero's crown on him.
And floods of generous applause have gratefully rained down on him.
The honor due his gallant deeds they've never failed to give to him.
The blessings of the loyal hosts will never cease to flow to him.
But if his wild political hallucinations cling to him
And he should ask the people's votes, they'd never do a thing to him.

FRAUD IS CHARGED.

P. W. Ober Sues P. T. Farnsworth and D. H. Schenck for Recovery of Lease.

P. W. Ober has filed a suit in the Third district court against Philo T. Farnsworth and D. H. Schenck to recover the sum of $5,000, as well as for the reinstatement of a lease to a mining claim at Bingham. The complaint sets forth that on December 13, 1898, plaintiff leased to defendants for six months the 200 feet of the Leach mining claim at Bingham. A clause in the lease, plaintiff alleges, provided that in case of a sale of the property within the six months the lease was to become void and the property surrendered. Ober says he went to work on the mine and was extracting ore which netted him $10 a day. On January 12, he says, the defendants conspired to defraud him by failing to surrender the property had been sold to Farnsworth, whereas, plaintiff says, no such sale was made; but plaintiff, fully believing the representations made by defendants, yielded up the property. He now asks for a reinstatement of the lease and for $5,000 damages.
