Will Our Sister Republics Combine Together to Fight Us?

The Argentine Minister Says They Will Not—A Representative of the Argentine Republic, who has just returned from a visit to the United States, says that he has found the Argentine Republic, which is now a free and independent nation, is not inclined to combine with the United States in any way.

Copyright, 1899, by Frank G. Carpenter, Washington, D. C. Oct. 30.—One of the Argentine ministers of the Argentine Republic, who has just returned from a visit to the United States, says that he has found the Argentine Republic, which is now a free and independent nation, is not inclined to combine with the United States in any way.
