THE Building Society stockholders' meeting will be held at the City Hall at 8 o'clock this evening.

MR. THOMAS HARRIS, the gentlemanly doorkeeper at the Theatre, engages his time during the day as a general collector and poster of accounts, and has an office at Calder's music store.

THOMAS HARRIS, the well known Theatre door-keeper, and who has also been engaged as janitor of the Deseret University, has resigned the latter position and taken up the business of general collector. He makes a specialty of posting accounts. His office is at Calder's music store, No. 45 w., First South Street. He still retains his old post at the Theatre.

LAST Thursday evening a son of Mr. Planz, named Freddie, aged five years, was struck above the right eye with a rock. He was playing on the lawn in front of his father's residence and attending to sprinkling the lawn. A twelve-year-old boy, whose name is known, passed the place, and picking up a rock threw it at Freddie with the above result. A half-inch gash was cut, which bled profusely, and he was knocked senseless. Dr. Powers dressed the wound.

THE case of Peter Polaski, who was fined $5 the other day for being drunk, has caused considerable comment from the fact that some of his friends deny that he was under the influence of liquor and assert that he was demented. Whatever his mental condition may have been, he certainly had been drinking. He was brought to the City Hall by parties other than policemen, and next morning he pleaded guilty to having been drunk, paid his fine and departed.

WE are requested to make the following announcement of services to be held in the Methodist Church tomorrow and next week: National sermon by Dr. Iliff at 11 a.m.; sermon by the pastor in the evening. The annual meeting of the Utah mission of the Methodist church will be held during the week in the Scandinavian Methodist church.—Opening sermon Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Services each day during the balance of the week, Bishop J. W. Joyce of Chattanooga, Tenn., presiding.

A MINER by the name of J. D. Wilson, while working in No. 4 mine at Almy, suddenly dropped to the ground dead at about 2:30 Monday afternoon. The deceased, with his brother Eli, was shoveling coal into a car down in the mine, and being in a great hurry they were working very hard. Suddenly Eli heard his brother exclaim, "Oh dear!" and looking around saw him throw up his hands and fall to the ground, dead. It is thought he breathed twice after falling. Heart trouble was the cause of the death.—Evanston (Wyo.) Chieftain.

Marriage Annulled.

There was a peculiar case before Judge Zane this morning. Some time ago Mrs. Emma Bryson and her husband became separated. She received information that he was dead, and supposing herself free, she was married six weeks ago to David Lovendale. A few days since she learned that her former husband was still living, and the second husband instituted proceedings in the Third District Court to have the last marriage annulled. The matter was heard before Judge Zane today, and he granted the decree asked for.

Third District Court.

Proceedings before Judge Zane today:

George A. Curtis et al. vs. Sarah G. Bowen et al.; order and decree approving sale and ordering distribution of proceeds of sale.

David Lovendale vs. Emma Bryson; decree allowed annulling the marriage.

The accounts of United States Commissioner Frank Pierce and United States Attorney George S. Peters were approved and allowed.

Josephine Fisher vs. John Fisher, of Bountiful, Davis County; decree of divorce granted to plaintiff on the ground of cruelty of the defendant; the plaintiff is allowed $25 per month alimony and costs of suit.

Wm. Strong vs. Elijah Sells et al.; on order to show cause, the court restrained the defendants from taking more water from the cemetery than they did three years ago.

MT. OLIVET CEMETERY

Restrained From Taking More Than its Share of Water.

The application for a preliminary injunction in the suit of Wm. Strong vs. Elijah Sells et al. came up before Judge Zane today. The circumstances which led up to the litigation are briefly as follows: In 1849 the settlers of the tract of land now embraced in the First, Second and Tenth wards took out a portion of the waters of Emigration Creek for irrigation and other purposes. In 1877 Mt. Olivet cemeteries was set apart by the Secretary of War, and shortly after its board of directors, by their agents, began taking water from the Tenth Ward ditch. The people objected, but by an understanding that the city would see their rights protected, the matter was kept out of the courts, though there has been a continuous dispute about the water being taken from the original owners.

Two or three years ago the cemetery people began taking out a much larger quantity than before, and as the city last fall informed the inhabitants of the wards named that the corporation could do nothing in their behalf, they authorized Mr. Strong to bring the present suit. As long as the people had anything like a fair supply of water, the application for an order restraining the cemetery from using that belonging to others was not pressed, but now that the streams have been greatly dimished, further action has become necessary. As an evidence of how those entitled to primary rights in the stream are treated, it may be said that now they get about one-third enough water to supply their lots for one day in the week, while the cemetery appropriates sufficient for its needs seven days in the week.

The complaint sets up the allegation that the plaintiff and those whom he represents are entitled to the ownership of the whole stream, and asks that it be given to them. It is likely, however, by the neglect to have the matter adjudicated by the courts, in consequence of the understanding referred to, the cemetery has acquired a right to a portion of the water. The arrogance of the claim that is made in their behalf can be understood from the assertion in their answer to the effect that because the government granted to them the cemetery grounds, they have a right to take so much of the stream "as they may deem necessary" for their own use. It is this claim that has led the plaintiffs in this action to be more persistent that they perhaps otherwise would have been.

The matter was argued pro and con before Judge Zane, who granted a temporary injunction restraining the cemetery folks from using any more water from the ditch than they did three years ago, at the same season of the year. There were some delicate questions connected with the subject, as to have granted an order covering the whole water supply, would probably have resulted in destroying the shrubbery in the cemetery. To avoid such an unfortunate result, the court framed its order so that by a judicious use of the portion of the stream allowed, the trees and shrubbery will have sufficient moisture to keep them in good condition, while at the same time the inhabitants represented by the plaintiff will receive more of that to which they hold vested rights.

An Ogden Fight.

The Standard of this morning gives an account of a fight which took place in an Ogden saloon last evening. It is not unlikely that the Philip Bond engaged in the fracas is the same one who was indicted with Jack Taylor for murder in the first degree, committed at Bingham in 1887, and who was acquitted, while Taylor was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to five years. Bond is a Cornishman about 28 years of age. The Standard says:

Last evening a general row took place at the Shamrock and Thistle Saloon on the corner of Franklin and Fifth streets. A stranger by the name of Philip Bond was in the saloon drinking, and quarreling with another man. Si Minter, the bartender, stepped out to separate them. This was the signal for a general melee. Bond struck at Minter and hit him in the face. Mr. Chaplow, the proprietor of the saloon, who was sitting outside when the row began, stepped in. Bond then struck him, knocked him down, and began to beat him. Minter, so it is alleged, then struck the stranger with a beer glass which broke. A spirit level was also used in the fight. Officer Chambers, passing by, was attracted by the crowd. Someone seeing him bade him hurry as "a fellow was killing Chaplow." He at once rushed in and found Chaplow and Hunter covered with blood. He asked where the bully had gone to, and was shown to the back room, where the officer found him. He was very stubborn and refused to go to jail, but finally concluded that it was the best thing he could do, and he was soon safely ensconsed behind the bars at the City Hall. It was found that he had three severe cuts on the upper part of his head. His face was covered with blood making his features unrecognizable until washed. On being placed in jail he began crying and in so doing woke up a fellow prisoner, Pat McCarthy, who asked him what he was doing and told him to go to sleep. "I'll not do it," was the response. "Well if you stay here you will have to," and with these words he knocked Bond down. They were separated, and Bond placed in a separate cell. Chaplow had several scratches on his face and his back was hurt. His coat and shirt were stained with blood and his five-dollar hat was mashed. Minter was severely bruised and had his collar, tie, and shirt literally torn off him.

"Forget Ne Not."

"Forget Me Not," the drama which the popular Home Dramatic Club have secured for the Fourth of July promises to be as notable a production as any which this company has yet undertaken. The play has a fame of its own, from the fact that the noted Genevieve Ward has starred in it exclusively for over seven years in Europe, America and Australia. It is of the high class, dressy order, and will be put on the stage by the Home Club with new costuming and all the usual attention to detail which always marks the performances by this company. Edith Clawson will essay the leading rôle, and the other parts will be in the hands of such well known people as Mr. Spencer, Mr. Young, Mr. White, Birdie Cummings, Lottie Claridge, Ivy Clawson and others. The vocal music incidental to the piece will be rendered by Messrs. Easton, Whitney, Goddard and Crawford. The sale for the matinee and night performances will commence on Tuesday morning.

Sunday School Union.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday schools of this Stake will meet in the Social Hall on Monday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. The Fourteenth Ward school will furnish part of the programme and the opening and closing singing exercises.

Artificial Limbs.

The Artificial Limb Manufacturing Company of Pittsburg, Pa., know exactly the requirements of those who have been so unfortunate as to lose a leg, as every member of the company wears an artificial leg of their own manufacture. Every detail for comfort and ease of motion is carefully watched by these experienced gentlemen; they therefore possess superior advantages over other manufacturers of these goods.

No anatomist or surgeon can so well understand and suggest the actual requirements of an artificial limb as the thoughtful, intelligent mechanic who is constantly wearing and feeling the article, and cudgeling his brain to overcome every imperfection in its mechanism or comfort.

As an old soldier recently remarked who had lost a leg in the early part of the war, I never could get a limb properly made unless constructed by those who had lost limbs themselves.
