UNDERTAKER WATSON IS DEAD

Man Shot by Clyde H. Ellison Saturday Night Gives Up the Struggle for Life Made No Deslaration, as He Did Not Think He Would Die.

Into the body of Undertaker A. S. Watson Saturday afternoon has accomplished its deadly mission. Mr. Watson died at the Holy Cross hospital at seven minutes past 1 o'clock this afternoon, in the presence of his wife, who arrived here from the east shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, his physician, Assistant County Attorney Irvine and Capt. J. B. Burbldge of the police department.

Death came, strangely as it may seem, unexpectedly to himself, but not to his sorrowing wife and friends. They thought he was about to pass away, but Mr. Watson believed he would live almost to the last moment.

Just before noon, word was received at police headquarters and at the county attorney's office that Watson's condition had changed for the worse. Deputy County Attorney Irvine and Capt. Burbidge at once went to the hospital for the purpose of ob-taining a dying declaration. When they arrived Watson was in as cheerful a mood as one could expect under the circumstances. The officials informed him of their purpose in calling. but the wounded man replied that he did not believe he was about to die. "My physician says I have an even break and I believe I will pull through.

d+ad Owing to his statement the officials could not obtain the declaration they came for. Mr. Watson talked very little about the case. He said:

Mrs. Watson was overcome with grief over the terrible turn of affairs as she had been led to believe that her husbands condition was not such as to cause alarm. This morning Mr. Watson made out his will and it is understood he leaves all his worldly possessions to his wife.
