Under pressure from the people, the commissioners ordered the rate reduced to $1 per car. It was proven that the actual cost to the company was $1.14 per car, and of course the company resisted the order, claiming that no lawful power could compel them to perform service for less than actual cost. The commissioners took the lofty ground that under judicial rulings the powers granted them by the legislature in these matters was unlimited and that the railroad company had nothing to do but submit.

The commissioners had, as they sapposed, not only the public sentiment against railroad corporations at their back, but the judicial power, which seems to have been generally used very much in the direction of the popular wilk But, to their surprise, Judge Brewer declared such authority as they claimed was unconstitutional and that no

CHINA BELLIGERENT.

INTELLIGENCE, of some interest comes from Dunedia, New Zealand. It appears that the merchants of that city have been informed by letter from Pekin that China does not propose to longer stand the constant snubbing and kicking to which it has been sublected by "perfidious Albion." The late legislation against Chinese imnigration to the British colonies is looked at as the "last consequently the oplesis looked at as the "last straw." Consequently the ocles-tial empire has resolved to give John Bull the soundest thrashing he has ever had administered to him. Three years are to be devoted to getting ready for the fray. Daring that time the Chinese army of 15,000,000 is to be put in trim, by being equipped with modern arms and implements of war, and new ships are to be built. Before the terrible day shall be precipitated upon the Britons the Chinese now in the colonies are to return home. The power of prayer is being recog-nized today by the leading minds of the world. Many prominent men say they disbelieve in the God that is taught by Christendom, who does not 8 answer prayer. Says Prof. Tyndall, "There is some mysterious power con nected with prayer." He then tells of cases where the sick were beyond the power of medical skill, and where the father, mether or near relative would pray to some Power the professor could not see and did not understand, and the disease would be checked and P Rucker, his old and steadfast friend. It is but a story; but it teaches that sincere prayers are a joy to the Lord. The effects of the power of prayer have been recognized in all ages. Once, when Peter the Apostle was under sentence of death, and in the morning he was to be led out by the Roman rulers to martyrdom, a few Saints met in a house and prayed that if it was the will of God he might be delivered. That prayer was answered, and an angel came to Peter; the cell where he was confined was field with light; the prison doors were opened, and the angel and Peter walked out; the latter when free, was alone, and hastened to the house where the Saints were wont to gather. One of the sisters met him, and was so overjoyed that she forgot to unlock the door to let him in, so anxious was she to tell the saints that their prayers were answered. The arm of the Lord is not shortened seemed as if life had become extinct but by the adoption of radical meas-ures, the action of the heart was stim-ulated and he was brought around again.
