

HINES' ANSWER ON WATER METERS.

Superintendent of Water Works
Replies to Protest of Real Estate Men.

STATEMENT TO COMMITTEE.

Submit Arguments to Members of the City Council for Their Perusal
Pending Investigation.

In answer to the protest of the Salt Lake Real Estate association against placing water meters in the residence portions of the city as proposed by Supt. of Waterworks Hines, that official has submitted to the waterworks committee of the council the following statement:

Referring to the protest of the Salt Lake Real Estate association against the proposed adoption of water meters for the resident district of Salt Lake, I would respectfully make answer as follows. The protest states:

"First: The adoption of the meter system will in no wise solve the problem of increasing the city's water supply."

We do not claim that the use of meters will solve the problem of increasing the city's water supply, but we do claim that the detection of defective plumbing, leaky faucets and wanton waste of water will decrease the per capita consumption so that we will be able to supply a larger number of consumers with the present supply.

"Second: The cost of purchasing, installing and maintaining meters for the residence district will be a short space of time to purchase all the water rights tributary to Salt Lake."

The cost of metering the whole city would be about $100,000 and the installation of meters could be done gradually, say at the rate of $20,000 per year for five years. The life of a meter is reckoned at 26 years. The consumers could be charged for the cost of installation which would be a small amount, together with a nominal rental of say 25c per quarter.

"Third: The meter system is entirely unreliable. The association will produce for your honorably body statistics showing that many buildings in the city in which meters are in use have the readings of the same vary from 200 and 800 per cent per month, while the amount of water consumed is virtually unchanged."

The readings of meters certainly vary, but not while the amount of water consumed is virtually the same. Careful consumers will not watch their meters that leak and defects are quickly detected and remedied so that variations are small, while one who pays no attention to the meter may have a leak for two or three weeks not detected until our meter reader visits the premises about the last of the month.

The water meter has passed the experimental stage and is established as a reliable and durable automatic register. No running of water at night is permitted by the user, and a leak that formerly was given no attention, is promptly attended to by the user as the meter will register all water that passes through it.

"Fourth: Where the water is not brought into the house the installation of a meter in an outdoor or curb hydrant can only be accomplished by excessive expense."

The expense of installing a meter at the curb or out doors will average about $4.50. Is this excessive expense? "Fifth: If meters are installed in the residence district and citizens become imbued with the idea that every gallon of water they use is to be measured, gardens, trees and lawns will be in many cases, permitted to perish for the want of water and the natural beauty of the city and the consequent value of property will be greatly impaired."

If citizens wish to preserve their gardens, trees and lawns they can do so with a reasonable amount of water for which all good citizens will be willing to pay. Trees, gardens and lawns do not require flooding or an excessive amount of water to keep them in a good and beautiful condition, but many people think so to the detriment of their more reasonable neighbors. It is not likely that any one would forego the proper and necessary use of water when the cost to him is one cent per hundred gallons, and by the water meter system the community would be free from the otherwise inevitable and more or less odious house-to-house inspection.

"Sixth: As the cost of meters must in the long run be borne by the water users the adoption of the proposed system will ultimately be a great additional burden upon the tax payers."

The decrease in cost of water actually used will be found to be so great that the tax payers will find it not a "great additional burden."

"Seventh: As agents and owners the members of the real estate association control at least one-half of the property within Salt Lake City, therefore members held by them are entitled to some voice in the decision of this very important question."

While admitting that every citizen is entitled to "some voice in this matter," the real estate association claims that the real estate association is the owner or controls one-half of the property within Salt Lake City or anywhere near that amount.

In my report of 1902 I recommended the meter system. I am fully aware of the unpopularity of such a recommendation in Salt Lake City as it has been in 1,500 other cities where the meter system has been established, but I will find anything but satisfaction with the meter system where it has been introduced.

BUSINESS IN EAST.

Jashier E. W. Wilson of Commercial National Bank Tells of Conditions.

Jashier E. W. Wilson of the Commercial National Bank returned yesterday from his New York and Boston trip, after attending the bankers' association meeting in New York. Mr. Wilson found the east in utter apathy as regards politics. No one seemed to care enough about politics to talk about them, and Mr. Wilson had to initiate such conversations himself. He also found the stock and security market very dull, from the fact that people seem to have lost faith in such investments because of the times unfavorable that they have been through. The investing public appears to be looking in other directions for placing capital, and the New York banks have now more money on hand awaiting opportunities for investment than the management there. The market is easy, less than 1 per cent, and no one seems to be looking for a reason why it should be. Mr. Wilson was told that there is less call than ever from the west for money with which to move the crops, the reason being that the west has of late years been accumulating capital of its own and western crops without the growers being forced to resort to eastern financial centers for help. This is something of a fact already in making railroads and other enterprises and is likely to have a further quieting effect on the activity of that noted money center.

The crops of the country were reported in a satisfactory condition, and in general Mr. Wilson found little to complain of, beyond the baleful effects of labor strikes, but the heavy frost of fall is slowly but surely learning, a sad and important lesson that it does not pay to strike on an imaginary grievance, and the enormous failure of the butchers' strike in Chicago and Omaha and Kansas City is having its effect on unions elsewhere.

INTERESTING LECTURES.

Auspicious Beginning of Annual Session of University Sunday School.

The University Sunday school entered yesterday under most promising conditions, upon the fourth year of its work. Supt. Milton Bennion was in charge and the program was enriched by a couple of duets by Messrs. Pratt and Stephens.

The work planned for the year comprises two courses of lectures one for the more advanced students to be given by Dr. J. E. Talmage, entitled "Jesus, the Christ," the other on the Book of Mormon by Prof. John M. Mills. Each of these was started yesterday, and will be continued by lectures from week to week.

"Jesus, the Christ," course, as announced in his introduction, is to be a study of the Redeemer's work, before and after, as well as during His life in the flesh. The lecturer discussed at length name and titles of the Savior, and characterized the life and works of the Christ as a subject in which every human being is certainly interested and with which scientist and philosopher, as well as theologian and Millitary believer have to deal. He quoted from the writings of many non-churchmen of different ages, extolling the precepts and examples of the Great Teacher.

The second lecture in this course to be given on Sunday next will be devoted to the study of the earliest scriptural records of Jehovah, the Christ. It is expected that a printed outline or synopsis of each lecture will be furnished.

"The Book of Mormon" subject was introduced to the class by a preliminary consideration of the record as a whole. Prof. Mills discussed the authorship of the work together with the sources of the record. The various periods of Nephi's history were briefly considered, and some of the apparent difficulties caused by parallel accounts written by different authors were explained. Attention was then directed to the relative importance of the Jaredites, the Mulekites and the descendants of Lehi.

MURDER AT BLACKFOOT.

Desperate Holdup Shoots Ex-Marshall Sweet—Citizens Give Battle.

Special Correspondence.
Blackfoot, Ida., Sept. 25.—This evening about 6 o'clock ex-Marshall E. P. Sweet was fatally shot, the bullet entering the forehead and lodging in the back part of the brain; the section foreman, a Mr. Fitzgerald, was somewhat bruised up, and an unknown man, who did the shooting, was also wounded, but his wounds did not appear to be very serious.

It appears that the would-be robber, a young man, attempted to hold up the section foreman at the section house, which is close to the courthouse in Blackfoot, and word was sent over to Sheriff Sheriff Rogers and Deputy Sheriff Keith. They were away but ex-Marshall E. P. Sweet was there and was soon on the ground, followed by others. Mr. Sweet went into the courthouse and a crowd gathered and the holdup met another of the party at the door and chased him around the house. By that time others were on the ground and firing became quite general from several sources until the holdup fled, wounded. The holdup fell on his face, and it was thought that he was dying, but when the undertaker removed him to the court house they found that he was not so badly wounded as was at first supposed. Marshall Sweet died late tonight.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.

It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into Consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." Mrs. K. T. Snyder, Troy, Ohio.

"I was troubled with scrofula and came near losing my eyesight. For four months I could not see to do anything. After taking two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I could see to walk around the house and when I had taken eight bottles I could see as well as I ever could." SUSIE A. HAINES, Withers, N. C.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills Will rid you of Scrofula, radically and permanently, as they have rid thousands.

Amusements

The Salt Lake Symphony orchestra had a enthusiastic meeting yesterday and heard the music for Miss Gayer concert Oct. 10. Miss Sallie Fisher, who played in Denver last week, was interviewed by the Deseret. She was reported to have heard that she was a Salt Lake girl, and who obtained the following from the young singer:
"I began my musical career in Salt Lake City. I was a member of a local opera company. In fact, I was the prima donna, and was the only Gypsy in the company, all the rest being Mormons. I thought I was the real thing until I came east and was forced to become a member of the chorus of the 'Burgomaster' company. No one seemed to realize that I had been a prima donna on the shores of the saline sea of the plains. My experience with the company proved invaluable, however, and I soon advanced to a good position with 'The Billions,' and only left that organization after the sad death last winter of Jerome Sykes, when Mr. Daniels selected me for my present position. I have nothing but good to say. I knew them personally, and have found them to be most delightful people."
