Early in the morning Lord Dunraven, who is sumultaneously presiding at a private meeting of the landlords' com-mittee, sent word to John Fiedmond, the Irish leader, suggesting that the land conference, re-convence Saturday after the opinion of the national convention of the land bill is known, so that both landlords and tenants may then discuss their mutual objections. mond will be unable to decide on the proposition until after today's proceed-ings for which lengthy agonda had been provided. These consisted of many pro-posed amendments to the details of Seey, Wyndham's proposals. The chief movers were William, O'Brien and Michael Davitt. The former, while congratulating irelated on the fact that the British minister had been been he British ministry had introduced a bill accepting in principle after ceatur-tes of struggle, that the land should be restored to the people, urged the delegates to press amendments enlarging the financial scope of the bill: Mr. O'Brien, however, asked the convention to entrust to the parliamentary party the power and responsibility of eventually dealing in committee stage with the While begging the delegates to let their parliamentary representatives set-tic the matter, Mr. O'Brien attacked the landlords, Irish judges and British rule with the same virulence that has always marked his speches; to the in-tense delight of the audience, which, swayed by his eloquence, hissed and cheered alternatively. He concluded with saying that if, properly amended Mr. Wyndham's bill would "make the peasants as safe as king on his threne" in the peasance of their land. "They in the possession of their land. They would never again have to stand trembling in the rent offices, Mr. O'Brien added, "If we go on it is not too much to say that in the next generation is will be as hard to find a man who has witnessed an eviction as it is now to find man who has not.

Pleading for a friendly apirit in the discussion, Mr. O'Brien remarked: "If all goes well, it will be the greatest resurrection of hope, joy and happlaess that has ever visited this country in a thousand years. He reached down and found the missing boy lying unconscious. He grabbed him and hurried through the smoke out of doors to the agonized mother, who was ra relieved to find the child had not been burned. But he was still unconscious, and was quickly removed to the house of Mrs. Jones, close by and doctors summoned.

It is believed that the child, on finding he had started a fire with the matches, ran away from the closet, too frightened to tell what he had done. besides fearing a possible scolding; and subsequently in the confusion hid behind the piano, where the smoke suffocated him

Owing to the excitement there was delay in sending in the alarm, the department from station 4, not arriving until after the child had been rescued. In the meanwhile the entire house had become a mass of flames, and only some books, a little silverware and furniture in the rear rooms were saved. The flames caught the roof of the residence to the west, owned by E. H. Airis, and occupied by Fisher Harris, and the neighbors immediately got out every.
