INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE.

The News presents to its readers the most interesting correspondence we have seen in our general news columns. It is the opinion of the Editor that the subject matter is of special importance to the public, and as such we deemed it to their credit to publish it. The Editor's opinion is a member of the General Assembly, and writes in the general assembly of the Church, and as such we deemed it to their credit to publish it. The Editor's opinion is a member of the General Assembly, and writes in the general assembly of the Church, and as such we deemed it to their credit to publish it.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

The News acknowledges the receipt of a copy of a paper by Rev. Dr. E. W. Winkler, in which he treats on the subject of capital punishment from a Bible point of view. The paper was read at a meeting of the ministerial association of this city, and by request of the assembly of the church, was published in this paper. With this explanation we leave the matter for the present.

QUOTING EVANGELISM.

The New York Mail and Express gives the opinion that one of the greatest statistics with which religion actively has to contend today is unquestionably to be found in the grotesque performances of certain professional evangelists. It has good words to say for Mr. Bligh's right, claiming for him that his originality of method, his vigor of phrasing, his earnestness, his convincing quality of his utterance and his absolute fearlessness in smiting evil wherever found—whether in the mansion of the lord—make him an exceptional power for the awakening of conscience and the conversion of his hearers.

THE SENATORIAL CAUCUS.

Tomorrow, Saturday, the caucus of Democratic legislators will meet to determine who shall be the party's candidate before the Legislature for the office of United States Senator for the six years commencing March 4, 1897. Nine there are but two Democrats and a Populist in the state.

FOR OUR CREWERS.

The conclusion reached by Professor Charles E. Norton, of Harvard University, as to why girls often gain, is not at all inconformity to the general view. After prolonged study, both analytical and speculative, the professor comes to the conclusion that "obese young women have not come far above barbarism." The indication of the professor that the grower is not above taxation probably is correct, since none of the elements of a civilized civilization enter into the constitution of the body of a young woman who is obese.

THE BLENDING EFFECTS.

There appears to have been a little case of which C. W. Winkler, a Chicago attorney, writes, and which he says he has seen in the records of the courts. It is a case of a young man who was killed by a young woman who was his lover.
